Nats Go West With Lead of 5½ Games

27,000 See Cronin Team Win Over Yankees, 4-3, on Rallies.

Stewart Bests Van Atta; Myer, Kuhel, Harris Batting Heroes.

By Frank H. Young.

In their previous four Sabbath encounters here, like the kiddie who persists in being bad when the family has important company, the Nats have disappointed and taken it on the chin, but it was different yesterday. In a game which kept the 27,000 holding on to their chairs until the very end, they downed the runner-up Yankees, 4 to 3, stretching a winning streak to half a dozen and their league lead to five and a half games.

Thus it is, the Nats tomorrow open their final tour of the West with the greatest lead they have enjoyed this year and with the largest advantage they have ever held when facing the Western teams on their last invasion.

Nats Twice Come Back.

It was one of the best contests staged here in many, many moons and, if the Yanks are through—as many of the so-called experts say—then they had a mighty peculiar way of showing it yesterday. Twice they took early one-run leads only to see the Nats knot the string. Then in the fifth, the Washingtonians went 2 up and managed to hold half of this margin until the end, giving them their twelfth decision out of the 19 games played to date with their keenest rivals and thus assuring them an edge in the season's play even if they lose the three remaining games listed with the Big Towners.

Van Atta Is Victim.

An added taste of sugar for the Nats and their followers was the fact that Russell Van Atta, the young southpaw who had been making monkeys of Cronin's gang in previous games, was the victim, but before the triumph was finally recorded a tenseness which must have registered on the Georgetown University seismograph hung over the stadium, for the tying Yankee run was on third-base as "General" Al Crowder, who had relieved Starter Walter Stewart in this round, whizzed over a called third strike on Pinch-hitter Dixie Walker to end the game.

Lazzeri opened this session with his third single of the day and Dickey immediately sacrificed him to the middle sack. Here play was stopped while the respective managers put on a battle of wits. McCarthy placed Eddie Farrell on second as a runner for Lazzeri and sent Charley Ruffing to the tee for Crosetti, this despite the fact that the young shortstop poled out two homers in one of the games of Saturday's twin bill with the Athletics. Cronin met these two moves with

Fire Fighter Killed In Canyon Plunge

Los Angeles, Aug. 13 (AP).—Trapped with two companions in a steep-banked canyon while fighting a forest fire near Newhall yesterday, Jene Arnette, 20, of East Liverpool, Ohio, fell nearly 100 feet in attempting to scale the canyon wall and was burned to death.

A sudden spread of the flames forced the three young men to seek escape up the canyon wall. The fires were brought under control.

Hotels in Saratoga Damaged by Storm

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—Several small hotels were damaged and hundreds of trees blown down late today in a storm that swept for 50 miles across eastern New York from Sacandaga Lake to the Vermont State line.

Telephone lines to many points were down and highways blocked. First reports from the storm area did not reveal whether any persons were injured.

Another Professor To Aid Gen. Johnson

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—The University of Chicago announced today that S. H. Nerlove, assistant professor of business economics, has been named deputy economist in the office of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, at Washington.

Prof. Nerlove will spend the next month on the code problems of the clothing and other industries, returning to his teaching post in the autumn.

Fire at Piraeus Makes 250 Families Homeless

Athens, Aug. 13 (AP).—Fire swept today through 360 dwellings in Piraeus, Port of Athens, and about 250 families were left without shelter.

Government officials spurred relief activities. Fears were expressed for a number of mothers who rushed into their burning homes to rescue children, but no loss of life has been reported.

Girl Foils 3

Cafe Worker Kills Thief, Helps Nab Another, Despite Wound.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug 13 (AP).—A pretty 18-year-old girl, born amid the roar of a British barrage near the World War battle lines in Belgium, was not to be daunted today by three holdup men.

Daughter of a Belgian mother and of a German soldier, who was away fighting at the time of her birth, Rose Ruda had too much spirit to submit helplessly as the trio robbed the restaurant where she worked.

So Rose walked to the kitchen, obtained a revolver and fatally wounded one of the robbers before she herself was shot in an arm. A short time later she helped capture the man she had shot, when he was brought to a doctor's office where Rose's wound was being treated.

The wounded robber, John Phillips, 23, of Cincinnati, died in General Hospital with a bullet in his chest, four hours after he and two companions took $50 from the restaurant and six customers.

Car Pins Woman, Dead Boy 18 Hours

Teacher Finally Struggles Free of Wreckage to Call Help.

Monterey, Calif., Aug. 13 (AP).—Pinned under a wrecked motor car 18 hours with a dead boy and his injured father, Miss Gertrude Cothran, University of California history teacher, struggled free today and summoned aid.

The boy was Alvar de Angulo, son of Dr. Jaimi de Angulo, University of California anthropologist.

The car in which the three were riding plunged down a 200-foot embankment from the Big Sur highway last night. Despite a broken arm and severe bruises, Miss Cothran finally managed to pull herself free from the wreckage. She crawled to the highway and called help.

Dr. de Angulo received a broken leg, wrenched back and other injuries. His wife, who was riding in another machine, was unaware of the accident until notified today.

Kidnap Suspects Miss Police Trap

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—Department of Justice agents, immigration and customs men and police waited in vain at the Peace Bridge tonight for a 16-cylinder automobile containing a man and woman said to be wanted in connection with the recent kidnaping in Oklahoma of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil man.

Word had come from the New York office of the Department of Justice that the pair, on the way to Buffalo, would seek today to cross the bridge leading to Canada. The names of the occupants of the car were given and later the Ohio license which the car bore was provided.

The Urschel kidnaping was one of the most sensational of the last two years.

Cuban Politician Killer Seeks Mexican Freedom

Mexico City, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Agustin Lopez Valinas, of Cuba, sentenced to ten years' imprisonment for assassination here of Julio Mella, Cuban anti-Machado leader, announced today that he would appeal for clemency on the ground that former President Gerardo Machado was the "intellectual director" of the killing.

Mella was one of the first students in Havana to protest against Machado's administration. He left Havana several years ago when he incurred the chief executive's displeasure, coming eventually to Mexico City, where he was tracked down and assassinated.

N. Y. Excursion Boat Grounds on Mud Flat

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—The excursion boat Crescent Moon, en route from Coney Island to Passaic, N. J., with 350 passengers aboard, ran aground on a mud flat in Dutch Kills, between Bayonne and Elizabeth, N. J., tonight.

A Coast Guard patrol boat and two police launches from the New York Marine division took up positions nearby, but no attempt was made immediately to remove the passengers. The Crescent Moon, captained by J. J. Cross, left Coney Island at 4:30 p. m. and went aground shortly after 6 p. m.

No Common Crew For This Craft—All Are Captains!

Saugerties, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—The crew of the ferryboat Saugerties, plying the Hudson between this town and Tivoli, consists of two men. Both are captains.

Capt. Don takes charge in the pilot house for a spell, while Capt. Hanney acts as purser, oiler, engineer, ticket taker and deckhand. Then the two reverse jobs for an equal period. They declare they don't think they'll ever have a mutiny.

Drive on NRA Foes Started By Roosevelt

Blue Eagle Is Wielded by U. S. to Enroll All Under Campaign.

White House Parley Due; 5,000,000 in Jobs by Labor Day, Is Claim.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt took over personal direction of the national recovery drive yesterday in conferences in his study at the White House with his principal aids.

Earlier in the day it became known that with the full approval of the President, recovery administrators had fashioned plans to shape the Blue Eagle insignia into one of the most powerful weapons of enforcement ever wielded by the Federal Government.

Sources close to leaders of the industrial drive disclosed the determination to use the NRA's emblem as a lever to boost all employers under the shorter-hour, higher-wage regulations.

As the main shaft of this lever, administrators prepared for the concentrated publicity drive that will be loosed soon. Dependance is to be placed upon this to push over opposition which has become apparent in some quarters of the NRA movement.

Ickes Tells of Progress.

Secretary Ickes, who is administering the job-making $3,300,000,000 public works program, outlined details of progress during the past two weeks and talked of the policy on future projects. Mr. Roosevelt wants to put the whole fund into operation as soon as expediency permits.

K. M. Simpson, deputy to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, carried to the White House a statement of progress on the codes to put the industries of the Nation on a new basis of shorter working hours and higher wages.

He reported particularly on efforts to complete the coal, oil and steel codes of fair competition. This morning the Chief Executive will confer frequently with Johnson, who planned to return by plane from St. Louis, where he delivered an address tonight.

The President wants action and indicated quite clearly yesterday in a talk with William A. Harriman and Grover Whalen, New York State and city recovery chieftains, that he was happy over progress thus far made.

President Gratified.

Whalen said he was authorized to say the President was much gratified with their report.

The callers told Mr. Roosevelt they were finding a spirit of complete cooperation among employers in New York City and State to carry out the President's reemployment agreements. They proposed a buy-now campaign as an auxiliary of the industrial drive.

Estimating that one million dollars a week additional is finding its way back to pay envelopes, Whalen and Harriman said the agreements already signed in New York affected 2,106,000 employes and 157,588 employers.

Earlier, the President issued a call for members of his special recovery council, including Cabinet officers and the heads of special units, to confer with him at the White House. Intimations were given at the Executive Mansion last night that this session might be put over until tomorrow, rather than be held today, as originally indicated.

5,000,000 By Labor Day.

Gen. Johnson said no attempt was being made to get complete figures on reemployment. He said, nevertheless, estimates coming piecemeal from the administration, as the temporary provisions for hour and wage schedules have been approved showed that well above 10,000,000 of the approximately 40,000,000 workers already have been reached.

Johnson has set as his goal the reemployment of 5,000,000 men by Labor Day.

From another quarter there came an appeal by Representative Jones, (Democrat, Texas), that all mortgage and loan companies be asked to formulate a code which would end foreclosures on city and farm properties for three years.

Jones made the proposal in a letter to Gen. Johnson, pointing out that "this would work no hardship on these companies as most of them desire to have money at interest."

Chinese Act to Arrest Tokio Agents in Plot

Hongkong, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Kwangtung provincial government has issued a warrant for the arrest of several alleged Japanese agents, including Chen Chiung-Ming, who revolted against President Sun Yat Sen 13 years ago in Canton.

Chen is accused of conspiracy to foment trouble in the Fukien ports. He is now living in the French concession at Shanghai.

French President Hurt When Struck by Bicycle

Metz, France, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—President Albert Lebrun was nursing painful, but not serious, bruises today as a result of being knocked down yesterday by a bicyclist.

The president arose smiling, despite the violence of the blow. He took a long drive today, indicating no serious consequences were expected.

Hoboes' Code

Convention Adopts Rules of Fair Practice and Fixes Pay Scale.

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—The silver anniversary convention of the Hoboes of America convened here tonight and lost no time in adopting the 'boes code of fair practice. It provides:

Hoboes will not wash dishes in a restaurant or work otherwise in a restaurant for a meal. No real hobo ever took a job away from a man with a wife and children.

Pay for cleaning snow and ice off sidewalks shall be 50 cents an hour.

Pay for shoveling coal 50 cents an hour.

Cleaning windows 50 cents an hour or 10 cents a window.

'Boes may chop wood on farms in exchange for a bed in the barn or a meal, but they shall not chop all day.

There were a few more than a score of delegates but they said they represented 50,000 votes from the Nation's principal "jungles."

Women of U. S. NRA Bulwark, Johnson Says

Tells St. Louis He Pities Men Who Would Trifle With Blue Eagle.

St. Louis, Aug. 13 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson flew into the middle West today with a plea for the President's reemployment program and explained that its success depended upon cooperation of the "people in each town" and, in the last analysis, upon the women.

"Already the ranks of the idle are thinning," he said.

To the quoted assertion of skeptics that "there are Blue Eagles everywhere, but the employers that show them are cheating," the national recovery administrator assured a crowd of 15,000 persons that action against the "unimportant chiseling fringe" will come later.

Gen. Johnson flew here from Washington in an Army plane, and soon after his address, made at the open-air municipal theater in Forest Park, started the return trip East.

The sweltering crowd, Gov. Guy B. Park, of Missouri, and other dignitaries applauded vigorously.

In asking the cooperation of the American housewife he said:

"Woman in defense of the support of her home is about as safe for trifiers as a lioness at the door of a denful of cubs, when every American housewife understands that the Blue Eagle on everything that she permits to come into her home is a symbol of its restoration to security, may God have mercy on the man or group of men to attempt to trifle with this bird."

6 Bandits Rob Guests of Club

200 Men and Women Are Searched Lying on Floor; Loot Totals $3,300.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 13 (AP).—Six shotgun bandits held up 200 guests and employes at the fashionable Nippersink Lodge, a country club, 35 miles west of here, early today and escaped with $3,300 in cash.

The leader of the masked gang strode on the dance floor and fired two shots into the floor. Guests were ordered to line up against the wall while other members of the gang rounded up other guests and employes from various rooms. Then they were ordered to lie on the floor.

The robbers searched each person, taking only cash. Sidney Piers, the manager, was made to open the safe which netted $300.

One employe, outside in a garage, gave the alarm during the robbery but Frank Schuren, marshal of nearby Genoa, arrived just after the robbers fled in two automobiles. He found most of the victims still lying on the floor.

The robbers were described as youthful and well dressed.

Strike Chiefs Split on End Of Milk War

Western Counties Told New York Protest Is Called Off.

Central County Leader Refuses to Accept Rival's Dictum.

Newport, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—An open break developed tonight between leaders in the New York State milk strike when Albert Woodhead, leader of western New York farmers, called off the strike in his territory. Felix Piseck, a central New York leader, announced, however, that he would not agree to end the strike.

Woodhead also called on farmers in western counties to abandon their proposed "march on Albany" tomorrow. He said he acted because he thought Gov. Lehman is "willing to hear the farmers' side of the story."

Piseck, at his Newport farm, in Herkimer County, refused to recognize Woodhead's authority.

"We're not taking orders from Woodhead, and we're not giving him orders," he said. "Hundreds of farmers who have been calling on us all day have agreed to begin a one week's truce tomorrow, to give the governor, the Legislature and the milk board a chance to show what they are willing to do. But the strike is not off."

Milk Holiday Halted.

New Milford, Conn., Aug. 13 (AP). The milk holiday in Connecticut, called by the Farmers National Association to start Thursday, was abandoned tonight by the association after a meeting with the State Board of Milk Control. A committee of the association accepted a nine-point program for milk control presented by the board.

Uruguayans Ask Soviet Trade Pact

Moscow, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Soviet foreign office announced today the receipt of the Uruguayan government's notice of intention to establish permanent diplomatic representation in Soviet Russia, and the dispatch of a notice in return saying that Moscow also was sending a representative to Montevideo.

Although mutual de jure recognition existed between the two countries since 1926, neither has been officially represented in the capital of the other.

Uruguay's notice said that the proposed action was inspired by "the increased volume of trade" between the two countries and proposed a trade agreement, and to this the Soviet government agreed.

Lindbergh Prepares For Hop to Iceland

Angmagsalik, Greenland, Aug. 13 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was understood today to be eager to make a flight to Iceland, but he may delay his departure at least 24 hours on account of unfavorable weather. Weather here is excellent, but reports from Iceland are unsatisfactory.

Two motor boats belonging to the Danish explorer, Knud Rasmussen, were fetching oil and gasoline today for Col. Lindbergh from the supply ship Jelling. The ship is anchored some distance from Angmagsalik as it is not equipped in a manner to enable it to force the coastal ice.

Illinois Merchant Dies In Leap From Window

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—Julius Myers, 63, Springfield, Ill., former president of the National Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association, ended his life today by jumping from the sixteenth floor of the Hotel Sherman. A note left by the merchant, said he was "unable to enjoy life."

Myers, a director of the association, was here to attend its annual convention which opens tomorrow. The body fell on a fifth floor roof projection.

Bell, Former Colorado Congressman, Dies at 81

Grand Junction, Colo., Aug. 13 (AP).—Judge John C. Bell, 81, pioneer Colorado lawyer and former representative in Congress, who has been called the "father of reclamation," died here last night.

He came to Colorado in 1874. He held several political offices before his election to Congress in 1892. Bell secured appropriations for the Uncompahgre irrigation project in this State. From that act, his his friends said, the present reclamation code was drawn.

Roosevelt Rushes U. S. Destroyers to Cuba as Island Asks Trade Aid

De Cespedes Plans on Beneficial Business Accord With U. S.

8 Porristas Killed During Inaugural

Mobs Wreak Vengeance as Armored Cars Range Havana.

The informal inauguration into the Cuban presidency of Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes early yesterday turned the page of the country's recent political misfortunes and opened the way for the writing of its esonomic rehabilitation by the cooperative efforts of Washington and Havana.

While the deposed former president devoted much attention to the negotiation of trade treaties with European powers, veering away from the United States, there was every reason to believe that de Cespedes would concentrate on extension of trade agreements with this country.

In Washington, officials were pushing the intensive study already started, of methods for lifting from Cuba some of its economic troubles.

Simple Inaugural Rites.

Addressing American newspaper correspondents, whom he received in his home following his induction into office, President de Cespedes expressed the hope that it would be possible to establish economic relations satisfactory and beneficial to both countries.

The inauguration of the new executive was simple in the extreme. The ceremony took place on the veranda of his home, in the presence of members of the supreme court, the chief of staff of the army, the chief of police and a number of friends.

None of the Diplomatic Corps attended, nor was there pomp or splendor. The oath was administered at 9 a. m. by Justice Juan Manuel Menocal, in the absence of Chief Justice Jose Clemente Vivanco, the ceremony being punctuated by occasional reports of rifle shots as students ranged the city in vengeful search of the formerly dreaded Porrista.

"I swear faithfully to carry out the duties of the office of president, upholding and fulfilling the constitution and law," the new president murmured, scarcely audibly.

Studies Cabinet All Night.

Then water was served to the guests, and the new executive retired to change from formal dress to white drill.

Senor de Cespedes did not sleep all night, holding conferences with leaders of the different factions to

Hull's Descendant Visits Famed Ship

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 13 (AP).—For most of her 82 years Mrs. Alice Hull Welch, of Medford, Oreg., had hoped one day she might visit the old frigate that, under command of her great-grandfather, made early American naval history.

Today the hope was realized. Mrs. Welch was a guest of honor aboard the Constitution. Commander Louis J. Gulliver escorted her about and showed her his private cabin, the very quarters from which her great-grandfather, Commodore Isaac Hull, directed the maneuvers of "Old Ironsides" when it defeated the British frigate Guerriere in the War of 1812.

Mrs. Welch, born in Lafayette, Ind., and a resident of southern Oregon since 1877, was induced by Medford citizens to make the trip to Portland, where the Constitution has been on exhibition several days.

Searchers for Baby Find It Is Unhurt

East Orange, N. J., Aug. 13 (AP)—Word was received here tonight that the Trudeau baby, whose mother had been sought by police to warn her against giving the infant a medicine she carried, had arrived at Lake George, N. Y., late today, safe and well.

Mrs. Linda B. Miller, grandmother of the child, said her son-in-law, Robert J. Trudeau, had talked with his wife by telephone. It was disclosed, too, the medicine had been prescribed by a physician for Mrs. Trudeau and not the baby.

Knowing the baby had not been well, Trudeau feared a mistake might be made and the medicine might prove deadly for the infant. He notified police and an alarm was sent out to intercept the automobile carrying mother and child.

Hitler's Crack Troops Thrill Berlin in Parade

Berlin, Aug. 13 (AP).—A spectacular march on the capital by 11,000 Schutzstaffel men, the elite troops of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, today thrilled parade-loving Berlin residents.

Welles Declares Warships Do Not Mean Intervention

Havana, Aug. 13 (AP).—Sumner Welles, United States Ambassador, commenting tonight on the ordering of three naval warships to Cuba, said, "A statement given out by President Roosevelt in Washington thoroughly covers the reason for sending the warships."

"It most decidedly is not intervention. I hope they will be here no more than 12 hours," the envoy continued, expressing the opinion that they would enter the harbor during the night and probably sail again tomorrow.

2 Held in Girl's Murder Shot to Death by Mob

Search Fails to Disclose Third Seized by Alabama Lynchers.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 13 (AP).—Three Negroes, who were being removed from Tuscaloosa to Birmingham for safe keeping pending trial on charges of slaying a 21-year-old white girl, early today were taken from officers by armed men and two of them later were found shot to death near Blocton, 23 miles west of Birmingham.

No trace had been found of the third, despite an intensive search throughout the day by peace officers of three counties.

The removal followed increasing rumors here that an attack would be made on the jail last night to take the Negroes, Dan Pippen, jr., 18, Elmore Clark, 28, and A. T. Harden, 16, who were under indictment in the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox in rural Tuscaloosa County several weeks ago.

Pippen and Harden were the two found shot to death shortly before noon today. Officers reported that the bodies of the two Negroes bore approximately 25 pistol wounds.

Sheriff P. L. Shamblin, announcing that armed men in two cars had overpowered his deputies and seized the Negroes just inside the Jefferson County line, said "we took many precautions to prevent anything of this nature. I believe the interference of the International Labor Defense lawyers in the case is directly responsible for this violence.

"Injection of the I. L. D. in the Pippen trial and subsequent declaration of intention to continue in the case had aroused public feeling to an intense pitch."

The I. L. D. had sent two lawyers here for the opening of the Negroes' trial, which had been scheduled for August 2.

Town Officers Caught in Raid

Judge of Massachusetts Is Listed Among Owners of Gambling Place.

Yarmouth, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP).—A gay throng of 350, including many persons prominent in the social, civic and political life of the State, was rudely disbanded early today as Assistant Attorney General George B. Lourie led thirty-five State troopers in a raid on the Casa Madrid, a resort operated by the Yarmouth Beach Club.

Officers made thirty-four arrests of employes and seized, they said, gambling equipment and furnishings valued at $25,000 and a large quantity of assorted liquors.

Those arrested included eight special officers of the town of Yarmouth, all in full uniform.

The Casa Madrid, built at a cost of $125,000, was opened two months ago. Among the listed incorporators of the beach club are Paul M. Swift, associate justice and son of the presiding justice, Frederick W. Swift, of the Barnstable District Court, before which the thirty-four arrested will be arranged tomorrow. Other listed incorporators include Clinton R. Dean, clerk of the court and Edward T. Chase, Yarmouth selectman.

Lourie said complaints to the attorney general's department and to the Department of Public Safety were responsible for the raid.

Canada Seeks More New Zealand Trade

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—H. H. Stevens, Canadian minister of trade and commerce, conferred here today with Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, of New Zealand, on the possibility of increasing trade between the two British dominions.

Forbes, who is en route to New Zealand after attending the London economic conference, said there was a movement to replace an existing trade pact with Canada, expiring next November, with a new long-term agreement.

Three Warships Steam to Isle to Protect U. S. Citizens.

Capital Surprised By Sudden Order

Executive Hopes Ships Will Aid in Peace Restoration.

(Associated Press.)

Two swift American destroyers sped through the Gulf passage to Havana last night, ordered there suddenly by President Roosevelt to protect American citizens in Cuba's political turmoil, but with no intention of intervention.

Due to drop anchor in Havana early today, the destroyers Taylor and Claxton, which had been standing by off Key West, steamed toward the Cuban capital, while a third such vessel was dispatched from Balboa to Manzanillo, Cuba, under the same orders from the White House.

The President's action caught Washington by surprise.

Summoning newspapermen to the White House, he issued through one of his secretaries a statement that his action was taken "as a matter of special precaution and solely for the purpose of safeguarding and protecting the lives of American citizens in Cuba."

Intervention Plan Denied.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized there was "no possible question of intervention."

"I am giving strict instructions accordingly to the commanders of each vessel," he added later.

The President's statement was issued after consultation both with Secretary Hull and with Ambassador Sumner Welles in Havana. It was learned authoritatively, also, that before the orders were given for the ships to sail it had been ascertained that there would be no objection from the new Cuban administration.

In a high quarter it was said that the Roosevelt administration held hope that the warships would serve not only to protect American lives, but would also have a stabilizing effect upon the continued strife in Cuba.

Will Report to Welles.

The destroyers Taylor and Claxton, which had been in naval reserve training for some days off Florida, were under the command of Lieut. Comdr. George T. Howard. He will report immediately to Mr. Welles on arrival.

Each ship has about 100 men aboard, including groups equipped as landing parties. Reserve officers on the two ships when the orders were received remained on board.

Each vessel carries four 5-inch guns, antiaircraft guns and torpedo tube. Although ordinarily operating with a reduced complement, of around 50 men, both ships were virtually at full strength because of the reserves aboard.

Third Ship Dispatched.

Either the destroyer Sturtevant or Overton, now at Balboa with the cruiser Richmond, was directed to start immediately for Manzanillo. The commander of the Richmond, chief of the special service squadron, was ordered to select either of the two.

Naval operations officers expected the Sturtevant to go, and said the vessel probably would arrive at Manzanillo about noon tomorrow.

The Claxton, under Lieut. Comdr. Kenneth Floyd-Jones, was off Dry Tortugas, about 100 miles from Havana, when ordered to sail, while the Taylor was nearer Key West, and about 90 miles from Cuba.

Texas Family of Three Perish as Home Burns

Eastland, Tex., Aug. 13 (A.P.).—A family of three was burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home here early today; the victims were Jim Tishner, 45, geologist for the Arab Gasoline Corporation; his wife, Helen, about 25, and their 10-months-old son.

Mrs. Tishner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barton, escaped unhurt. The cause of the fire was not ascertained.

Letters Reveal Complications For Dalrymple

Correspondence Expected to Handicap Efforts to Accuse Aids.

Resurrection of correspondence last night handicaped Maj. A. V. Dalrymple's efforts to shift to the Attorney General and "double-dealing" subordinates responsibility for issuance of permits to racketeer breweries.

The letters, signed with the deposed prohibition director's name, instructed Commander John D. Pennington, administrator for Pennsylvania and New Jersey, to be liberal and not object to issuance of permits to manufacture beer except where he was convinced the law would be violated.

Following his replacement Thursday, Dalrymple has declared his difficulties largely were due to permits issued to Pennsylvania and Jersey racketeer breweries without his full knowledge of the facts.

Press Conference Recalled.

It was recalled by newspapermen attending the press conference which ended in their being asked to leave, that Dalrymple admitted he had conferred on April 7 with Aaron Sapiro, the New York attorney representing the Superior Manufacturing Co. of Newark and the Eureka Cereal Beverage Co. of Paterson, which were seeking permits.

Sapiro recently was indicted in connection with a drive to break up a Chicago racketeering gang and now is fighting extradition in New York.

Dalrymple's name was attached to a letter, dated April 5, informing Pennington "it is our considered vow that the attitude of this bureau toward the issuance of permits under the act of March 22, 1933, should be one of pronounced liberality."

Views on Beer Permits.

"Unless it is made clearly to appear," the letter adds, "that the applicant for a permit may reasonably be expected to violate the law by sale of beer of a greater alcoholic content than 3.2 per cent or by shipment of beer into States where the sale thereof is prohibited by law, no objection should be interposed to the issuance of a new permit. * * *

"Accordingly, unless, as in the case of one found to have violated the law within a period of 12 months prior to the application there is a positive inhibition in the law against the issuance of a permit, I shall expect you not to object to the issuance of a permit * * * except where there is substantial evidence obtained subsequently to the issuance of the present permit which would justify a revocation and which would indicate a predisposition on the part of the permitee to violate the act of March 22, 1933."

In another letter signed with Dalrymple's name and dated April 10, the writer confirmed "my instructions to you, as conveyed over the telephone by Mr. Wegman," and added he favored granting of a permit to the Superior Manufacturing Co. if it would comply with his existing policy of liberality and lawfulness.

Political Chances Affected.

The Wegman referred to is J. Bertram Wegman, a former aid whom Dalrymple now alleges misrepresented him to Pennington in the Pennsylvania-Jersey brewery case. Wegman has contradicted these assertions.

Meanwhile, Dalrymple's charges are understood in political circles to have obliterated any chances of his working himself into some other branch of the Government service. This belief was based on steps already taken by Dr. James M. Doran, head of the Bureau of Internal Revenue's alcohol division, against some of the breweries favored by Dalrymple's regime, Attorney General Cummings' resentment of insinuations against him, and on Senator William Gibbs McAdoo's reported discarding of his protege.

Liquor Rule Not Dead, Howe Warns Public

(Associated Press.)

Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, said in an authorized interview last night that despite abolition of the old prohibition bureau "liquor control is neither dead nor forgotten."

Howe said the Prohibition Bureau had merely been absorbed by the Division of Investigation of the Department of Justice, adding that "if any racketeers or bootleggers are holding celebrations over the supposed demise of the bureau, they are due for an awful shock."

Taxes in Monongalia Less Than Last Year

Morgantown, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Direct taxes in Monongalia County for all purposes this year will be $1,503,000, compared to $1,560,000 last year.

This is $556,000 in excess of the $947,000 which the maximum classified levies of 50 cents, $1, $1.50 and $2 will yield on the year's assessment of personal, real and public utility properties.

$250,000 Asked for Schools.

Danville, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Schools here will receive a $250,000 loan from the Federal Government if requests made by the school board are granted. The first step was taken yesterday when the board presented a request to the council finance committee, asking cooperation in applying for the loan.

Bear Killed on Stony River.

Parsons, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Paul Messick and Rufus Poffenbarger have returned from camping on Stony River. They had an exciting experience when they encountered and killed a black bear weighing 250 pounds. Several bears have been seen in that territory.

121st Regiment Engineers Pass In Big Review

2,000 Witness Parade at Camp Ritchie; Many Guests in Camp.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—With more than 2,000 spectators lining the parade ground, the 121st Engineers staged a regimental parade late this afternoon with Col. John W. Lehmann, and his staff, in the reviewing stands.

Led by the Engineer band, the regiment presented a beautiful sight as it swung across the field with the Blueridge Mountains towering overhead. Coming to attention, after circling the field, the battalion commanders, Majs. Ralph S. Childs and Clarence Shields, reported to the colonel. Orders were read and the troops marched from the field.

Previous to the parade formal guard mount was held with Lieut. Harold W. Lieth, of Company B, in command. The flag was lowered while the band played the National Anthem. Guardsmen in every corner of the camp could be seen standing at attention facing the flag during the proceedings.

Many relatives and friends of the District Guards were present during the day and were the dinner guests of the various companies.

Company D, of the Engineers, won the daily kitchen inspection this morning for the first time this year, while Company A was awarded the flag for having the cleanest company area.

Two officers sent to the Waynesboro hospital, Maj. George J. Allen, Washington, and Capt. George Deininger, Annapolis, were reported as doing very well. Maj. Allen, who was removed to the hospital last Thursday because of sinus trouble, probably will return to camp in the next few days, while Capt. Deininger, who was operated on for acute appendicitis, will remain longer.

Shabby Shack Becomes Colonial Bungalow, All Equipped.

Exhibit A in Renovize Campaign Formally Opens Tonight.

That white colonial bungalow in front of the Department of Commerce Building was a shabby shack a few weeks ago. It will be opened to the public with a fitting ceremony at 7:30 p. m. today as Exhibit A of the Board of Trade's renovize Washington campaign.

The completed house follows in detail the plan of Louis Justement, architect, winner of the contest for a suitable design for remodeling the house. Final touches of interior decorating and furnishing were completed Saturday by a committee consisting of Miss Genevieve Hendricks, chairman; Mrs. Willard Hart, Mrs. Frank W. Dunmore, Miss Celestine Hodges, Woodward & Lothrop; Miss Mildred O'Neill, Dulin & Martin, and Fred Clarke, of W. E. Clarke Co.

Officials to Attend.

The formal opening will be attended by the District Commissioners, board of directors of the Washington Board of Trade and building supply and construction leaders of the city. The reception will continue from 7:30 to 9 p. m.

The rebuilding of the house was in immediate charge of Mr. Justement, Francis Sullivan, chairman of the House committee; T. A. Mullett, supervising architect; C. Wohlgemuth, chairman of construction, and J. R. Skinker, supervisor of construction.

Girl, 8, Badly Hurt In Grand Stand Crash

Collapse of an overcrowded grand stand during a baseball game at Miller's Field, Bethesda, yesterday seriously injured 8-year-old Marian Gingell, 709 Bradley road.

Marian was taken to Georgetown University Hospital by the Bethesda Fire Rescue Squad. Hospital officials said she was suffering from a fractured leg and broken pelvis.

No one else was injured in the accident, which occurred in a game between married and unmarried members of the Bethesda Fire Department.

Claggett's Body Taken To Frederick County

Bedford, Pa., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The body of Thomas West Claggett, a guest at Bedford Springs Hotel, who died suddenly, was taken to Frederick County, Md., for burial yesterday. Mr. Claggett, who was 64, was born in Frederick and belonged to one of the oldest Maryland families. He was living in Baltimore. He had come here for a rest with his wife, Edith Starr Claggett.

Woman Lost

Spent Night in Mountains After Separation From Berry Pickers.

Bedford, Pa., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Mrs. George Bowser, 50, of Cairnbrook, is recovering from fatigue and shock after having been lost in the Allegheny Mountains when she became separated from a party of berry pickers.

She was found by searchers after wandering all night.

A posse of 100 searched on both sides of the mountain.

30,000 Agents To Open Drive For Grain Cut

Farm Group to Be Formed Starting Today in 4 Wheat Areas.

(Associated Press.)

The bulk of an army of 30,000 workers will go into action in the wheat producing areas today in an effort to trim the Nation's average annual harvests.

Specifically, the newest farm drive is aimed at balancing the country's requirements for bread, breakfast foods and pretzels more nearly with the annual grain supply.

By the end of the week, farm administrators disclosed yesterday, they intend to have the formation of county control organizations well under way over a large share of the four principal wheat producing regions.

To Rush Work in Southwest

The campaign to obtain contracts from farmers agreeing to reduce their acreage will be rushed particularly in the large winter wheat-producing region of the Southwest, where planting of the crop for harvest next year already has started.

The Farm Administration yesterday had selected special extension workers in several hundred counties to supplement the staff of county agricultural workers.

Members of county organizations, known as Wheat Production Control Associations, and special committees—all farmers—will join the county agents.

In some counties where farmers are anxious to hurry their receipt of $90,000,000 in benefit payments temporary organizations already have been established.

As soon as a farmer signs an application for a contract he becomes a member of the county organization. The first job after establishment of such a group is the breaking up of county allotments into grower allotments.

Allotment Explained.

The grower's allotment is intended to represent his share of the wheat produced which will go into human domestic consumption this year, and on which a processing tax of 30 cents a bushel is being levied to provide the funds for the benefit payments.

Farm administrators determined that decentralized organization of the wheat campaign was desirable, and that as far as possible the task of administering it should be in the hands of farmers themselves.

Actual signing of contracts will not get under way until August 24.

Rotarians Visit Seminary Camp

Grantsville, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Holy Cross Camp, where seminarians from Washington are spending the summer in study, was visited yesterday by the Piedmont Rotary Club, who were having a family outing at Green Glades Camp, Deer Creek Lake.

The guests were entertained with a campfire program, the Rotarians gathering near and the women in the party listening from the motorboat anchored at the pier. It is against the rules for women to enter the camp.

The visitors were much impressed with the camp of the religious students. A two-story frame building is headquarters for the 55 young men. The first floor is used as a dining and reading room and the second as a chapel. A large, screened porch, entirely around the second floor, serves as sleeping quarters. A building under construction will be used for a kitchen and dining room. The first floor of the old building will then be set apart for recreational purposes. Two tents give additional housing facilities. Each building has an immense stone fireplace.

Water is pumped by a windmill from a 90-foot well into reservoir tanks. The camp has its own lighting system. The camp is in charge of the Rev. William Robinson.

Morgantown Store Leased.

Morgantown, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—A grocery chain has leased two large rooms on High street and will open a store.

Benefactor Now Neglected

Red Cross Is Losing Grip, Despite Its Life-Saving Work in Last Three Years in Luray Area, County Chairman Conncludes.

Luray, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Though it has spent $6,000 in relieving distress in this county in the past three years, the American Red Cross is losing its grip here. This is the conclusion reached by M. O. Swartz, county chairman of the Red Cross.

Extensively advertised meetings have resulted in attendance representing about one-twentieth of the membership. J. L. Teets, of the National Red Cross headquarters in Washington, was one of the attractions for the advertised meetings here. Mr. Teets' appearance so far has not proved a drawing card.

But for the Red Cross in this county during the past two winters, it is believed starvation would have been a reality. During the drought of 1930 the Red Cross distributed garden seed and stock feed in this county worth $1,100.

Mr. Swartz will attempt to assemble local members of the Red Cross again on August 22 to determine what shall be done with several hundred dollars in the organization's treasury.

Teachers From Outside Barred in Bedford

Bedford, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Only city residents may become teachers in local schools here hereafter, the municipal school board has ruled, rescinding a previous contrary ruling.

However, the Bedford County School Board will continue to employ the best teachers obtainable, regardless of residence.

Scare Fatal

Man, 88, Dies as Wife Becomes Locked in Cupboard.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Seeing his wife becoming locked in a cupboard by a slamming door apparently caused the death of Michael Gartner, 88, from a heart attack at East Wheeling, according to Coroner Will Cruse.

With his wife, Mrs. Catherine Gartner, also 88, the elderly man was inspecting a house into which they were moving. Mrs. Gartner entered the cupboard, the wind blew the door shut, locking her in, and when her husband outside the door did not open it she began screaming. Neighbors released her after a half hour, and they found the husband dead from fright which overwrought his heart.

U. S. Program Is Giving Jobs To Thousands

Ickes Says Road Building Has Been Started as First Works Project.

(United Press.)

Eight weeks after formation of the public works administration, the mechanism for putting men back to work is under way and actual construction has started, Administrator Harold L. Ickes reported last night.

With $3,300,000,000 available for the campaign to put jobless to work and increase purchasing power, 300 public roads projects already have been started in 185 counties in 19 States. They are furnishing employment to 27,000 men.

Road Allotments Made.

"Meanwhile," the Public Works Administration said last night, "the assignment of Federal road funds for Maryland has been approved by Administrator Ickes and Acting Secretary of Agriculture R. G. Tugwell.

"Approval of Maryland's assignment completes the road apportionment for all States with the exception of Georgia, where local differences between the governor and the State highway department have held up the program.

"While road construction is the first of public works activities to get started in a big way, the Navy's shipbuilding program soon will follow, creating jobs for many more thousands in shipyards and associated industries.

Navy to Expand Buying.

"The Navy is cooperating with the Public Works Administration in its desire to open up jobs as quickly as possible. To this end the Navy will accept early delivery on auxiliaries, standard fitting and other materials not immediately needed, but in order to create work at once.

"The administration has been advised that the Navy expects to sign the first of the new ship contracts this week."

The Public Works administrators pointed out signing of a ship contract would mean employment for men in such diversified industries as pumps, motors and electrical fittings.

Truck Driver Is Crushed As Vehicle Hits Bridge

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 13 (AP).—Clyde Roberts, 32, of Detroit, was crushed to death near here today when his truck struck a bridge abutment over a ditch on the Dunes highway and buried him under 7 tons of steel.

He is believed to have fallen asleep while driving.

Dry Cleaners 'House Cleaning' To Drive Out Racket Leaders

J. R. RIDLEY, president of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, who believes recovery provisions will end racketeering in cleaning and dyeing business.

Recovery Code Plan Godsend to Industry, Says President Ridley.

House cleaning by the dry cleaners is almost completed and the new code to be submitted by their national association contains a definite provision for driving the racketeer out of business.

"Probably no other industry in America has been so cursed with vicious labor leader types who have attempted to control the business solely for their own personal gain," J. R. Ridley, president of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, said yesterday.

"The national association is for labor. The only quarrel we have is with the unprincipled labor agitator, who has betrayed both the labor union he represented and the plant operator he pretended to protect. The national recovery act has been a godsend to our industry, and we are taking swift advantage of its provisions to clean house and build up a strong national organization."

Mr. Ridley will submit the code to 350 delegates of the association at a luncheon Tuesday in the Mayflower Hotel.

Fair Admissions Exceed 9,000,000

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—A Century of Progress International Exposition reached the half-way mark tonight with nearly 9,000,000 paid admissions. This is 3,000,000 greater than the 6,346,954 paid admissions on the half-way day—the seventy-ninth day—of the Columbian Exposition, held in Chicago in 1893. A Century of Progress closes November 1.

Should the same ratio of attendance for the 1933 fair to its predecessor of 40 years ago continue, the total attendance would be more than 30,000,000.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said previous expositions have shown that two-thirds of the total attendance came the second half of the fair.

Women Ask Pay Equal To Men Under Codes

Indianapolis, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Indiana Council of Business and Professional Women today urged that discrimination against women as to hours and wages be eliminated from all industrial codes approved by the National Recovery Administration.

Six Jailed After Mob Beats and Deserts Man

Laurinburg, S. C., Aug. 13 (AP).—Six men were placed in the Scotland County jail today after Douglas Monroe, 28, was routed from his bed early today, severely beaten and abandoned on a highway by a group of men.

Sheriff F. C. McCormick said "probably" charges of kidnaping and assault and battery with intent to kill would be brought against the men.

Three Reported Dead In Coast Train Wreck

The Dalles, Ore., Aug. 13 (AP).—Meager reports received here late today said three men had been killed and eight others injured when 15 cars attached to an S. P. & S. freight train plunged over an embankment, 5 miles east of this city, on the Washington side of the Columbia River.

Sixth Marines Cross Potomac To Meet "Foes"

Push on to Washington in Five-Day Drive From Quantico.

War was declared on an imaginary enemy operating in southern Maryland yesterday by the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade as they crossed the Potomac from their training base at Quantico, Va., into "hostile" territory to wipe out the invisible foe.

From Brig. Gen. James C. Breckenridge, who is accompanying the expedition, to the rawest recruit on his first hike, full field equipment was carried on each man's khaki-clad back. All the clothes and equipment they will require on the five-day advance on Washington through the brush and bramble are rolled into their field packs.

"On their own" and out of contact with their base, except by shortwave radio communication, the outfit may as well be in the Nicaraguan bush.

Land in Fog.

Out of the early morning fog, the gray noses of motor sailors loaded with the crack local sea soldiers pushed their way to the beach at Poseys Landing on the Maryland shore, about 30 miles below Washington, and discharged the expeditionary force on the muddy shore.

They began a 5-mile hike with the temperature paralleling tropical conditions. Nearing Marbury, Md., the brigade turned through the underbrush to Rums Point, Md., and established camp, but the difficulties which they met and overcame were perhaps equal to any which veteran members of the brigade who have seen service in various campaigns have witnessed.

Bridge Gives Way.

A narrow, unused road became so much churned mud under the supply trucks and the bridge over a small creek gave way under the weight of the motor transport train, but that didn't stop them. A detail was sent into the woods to cut timber, another hauled dirt and the gaping hole was quickly filled and the troop movement continued to the camp site.

Water, a most necessary item with troops in the field, was obtained from a stream about a mile and a half from camp and after being purified under direction of Maj. Don S. Knowlton, brigade surgeon, was hauled into camp in 300-gallon truck tanks. Eight hundred pup tents sprang up in the bare field and the brigade prepared to rest over Sunday and will continue their "invasion" at sunup Monday morning.

Lightning Kills 3 Boys On Pennsylvania Farm

Burgettstown, Pa., Aug. 13 (AP).—Lightning late today killed three farm boys who sought shelter under an oak tree during an electrical storm.

The dead are Nick Mehollic, 12, his brother, Sam, 10, and Mike Roman, 9, whose mother discovered the bodies. Alarmed at the failure of her son to return home, Mrs. Steve Roman set out to find the lad who had gone with the Mehollic boys to watch cattle in a nearby field. Mrs. Roman carried her son's body home and summoned aid.

Doctors Give Winslow Slight Hope to Recover

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 13 (AP).—Allan Winslow, American author and World War flier, was still in a semiconscious condition tonight from injuries received Saturday when he fell from a third-story window of a hotel. Doctors said he had an even chance for recovery.

Winslow, who came here on business, landed feet first in the soft turf of a park flanking the hotel. Both ankles and one thigh were fractured.

Air Circus Passenger Killed by Propeller

Vernon, Tex., Aug. 13 (AP).—Eugene Knox, 58, was killed here today by the propeller of an airplane as he alighted after a ride at an air circus here. Ray Shiflett, of Mangum, Okla., was pilot of the plane. Justice of the Peace S. N. Taylor held the accident was unavoidable.

Unionist Held Victim of Gang

Racketeers Ousted From Control Blamed for His Vanishing.

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—State's attorneys, police and American Federation of Labor officials tonight were investigating the disappearance of Harry Busse, labor union official, missing since Tuesday and believed by them to have been kidnaped or slain by racketeers.

Busse was business agent for the United Tire and Rubber Workers Union, formerly a reputed racket-dominated organization, but now operating under the federation. Busse and other union officials reported they had received threats since the ousting of the racketeers.

Other Officers Menaced.

Busse's wife said he left his home Tuesday morning with intention of looking for another job and told her he was going to hand in his resignation to the union at a meeting that night. He failed to appear at the meeting.

Don St. Aubin, president of the union, and R. J. Smith, secretary, reported they had received threats and were now under police protection.

Previous Intimidation.

"Prior to March," Smith said, "the union was under racket domination, we asked the A. F. of L. to help and it did so by outlawing the old union and granted us a new charter.

"Since then the racketeers have been trying to muscle in again. I know that six weeks ago four gunmen called at the Busse home when he was absent and left word merely that 'four men called,' that was a hint.

"Two weeks later four gunmen hailed Busse as he stepped out of his house. When he, suspicious, turned back, they leveled guns at him and ordered him to come forward, which he did. They told him to get out of the union. He was so impressed he wanted to resign that night, but we talked him out of it."

Germans Lauded For U. S. Progress

Chicago Speaker Declares They Led Battle for Liberty.

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—George Seibel, Pittsburgh, president of the German-American Gymnastic Societies, in an address at the German Day exercises at the Century of Progress fair today pictured the contributions of Germans to American culture and warned against recession from the German spirit of liberty and justice.

"Our liberal and progressive institutions in America," he said, "we owe chiefly to the German immigrant. Peter Zenger, 200 years ago, was the first apostle and martyr of our press freedom. The first protest against Negro slavery was voiced in 1688 from Germantown."

"The first rebel against British tyranny was the German, Jacob Leisler. The first who promulgated the Civil Service against the spoils system was the German, Carl Schurz."

Two Fair Visitors Shot Fleeing Chicago Bandits

Chicago, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Charles Hovis, 24, a Granada, Miss., school teacher, and Mrs. Ruby Vance, 22, of the same town, were wounded today when they and their two companions were fired upon by bandits as they were leaving Chicago after attending the Century of Progress Exposition.

When an automobile load of bandits attempted to force Hovis' automobile to the curb, he speeded up and the bandits opened fire with shotguns. Hovis and Mrs. Vance suffered minor injuries.

Railroad Trainmen's Aid Killed by Scranton Train

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 13 (AP).—Michael L. McLaughlin, of this city, international organizer for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was crushed to death today by a train in a fall from a Laurel mine coal car.

McLaughlin, riding the lead car with the electric locomotive pushing up a slight incline, fell from the brakeman's platform and the wheels passed over his abdomen. He was nationally known in railroad labor union circles for his work in adjusting grievances.

Protection Stressed in Text Ordering Warships to Cuba

The text of President Roosevelt's announcement that he is sending United States warships to Cuba follows:

Latest advices are to the effect that domestic disturbances, including acts of violence, are occurring in some parts of Cuba among certain elements of the population.

In these circumstances, I feel constrained as a matter of special precaution and solely for the purpose of safeguarding and protecting the lives and persons of American citizens in Cuba, to order certain vessels to points on the Cuban coast.

The change of government now taking place in Cuba is in entire accord with the recognized constitution and laws of that country, and no possible question of intervention or of the slightest interference with the internal affairs of Cuba has arisen or is intended by this precautionary step to protect, if necessary, the lives of American citizens, pending the restoration of normal conditions of law and order by the Cuban authorities.

I am giving strict instructions accordingly to the commanders of each vessel.

The American people deeply sympathize with the people of Cuba in their economic distress and are praying that quiet and strict order may soon prevail in every part of Cuba. The American Government will lend all aid feasible, through constituted Cuban authorities, for the relief of the distressed people of the island.

Ousted President's Son Leaves Prison in Peru

Lima, Peru, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Juan Leguia, youngest son of President Augusta B. Leguia, deposed by a revolution in 1930, was released from the national penitentiary today under the general amnesty act and permitted to depart by airplane for Tacna, across the frontier.

Juan and his father were arrested in August, 1930, after Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro led a successful revolution which overthrew the Leguia dictatorship. They were charged with "illegal enrichment" to the extent of 25,000,000 pesos (approximately $7,000,000). Neither prisoner was tried and the elder Leguia died last February in prison.

New NRA Fair Business Code Tightens Annapolis Blue Law

Sunday Sales, Winked at Before, Now Barred as Unethical.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Maryland's blue laws are becoming bluer.

The NRA movement is tightening up enforcement of Sunday-closing laws in this otherwise liberal city, and where police could not or would not maintain the laws to the letter, code-inspired business men are now fighting for a closed Sabbath.

The strict manner in which regulations of the NRA campaign are being adhered to here is shown in the drug store field. The ancient blue laws are now being invoked to a marked extent to unfair business competition under existing emergency conditions.

Despite the law certain drug stores and a few other establishments have made a practice of selling bathing suits, books, magazines and other nonmedical things that may be had at most drug stores. However, these now are particularly taboo.

Even before the NRA campaign was inaugurated certain merchants protested the growing practice of Sunday selling, except drugs and absolute necessities.

The present application of the Sunday law did not come without warning. On the contrary, police officials, cooperating with the NRA organization, visited drug stores and certain other establishments last night and issued formal notice, and at the same time obtained written agreements from proprietors that they would abstain from selling certain specific articles on Sunday.

For many years there has been a strict blue law statute applicable to Annapolis and Anne Arundel County. It prohibits sale of cigars, cigarettes, soft drinks, newspapers, &c., but not for a long time has it been enforced.

In the meatime, the campaign for reemployment and business stabilization is being pushed with great vigor here. Approximately 350 employers have signed the blanket agreement, and scores of blue eagles are on display. The city campaign is thoroughly organized, and the advisory committee of which Clarence M. White, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is chairman, is extending activities to more thickly-settled rural communities.

Florist Arrested In Beauty's Death

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The fatal shooting of an attractive beauty parlor worker resulted tonight in the arrest of a Pasadena florist, charged with suspicion of murder, and the suspension of a policeman.

Shot through the heart, the body of Helen Bandowski, 28, was found early today at the door of Harold E. Wolcott's house atop his one-story flower shop.

The inability of Wolcott and Maynard G. Miedema, the policeman, to explain the presence of three freshly ejected gunshells strewn along the store roof led to their arrest.

Clothing Store Robbed.

Six suits, a topcoat and two hats was the loot of thieves who early yesterday smashed a brick through the window of the clothing store of Leon Goldman, 1308 Seventh street northwest. Value of the stolen apparel was $60.

Lawes Urges U. S. to Handle All Big Crimes

Sing Sing Warden Holds Death Penalty Will Not End Kidnaping.

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison, expressing doubt that making death the penalty of kidnaping would accomplish its purpose, suggested today that all major crimes be made Federal offenses.

On the eve of his scheduled appearance before the United States Senate committee investigating racketeering, Warden Lawes declared in a statement that the crime problem is the most important issue before the American people today, outweighing even the problem of economic reconstruction.

"Reaches Every Home."

"It recahes into every home, through extraordinary costs in government, in insurance and immediate protective provisions," he said. "Its byproducts are the enormous budget for rleief of those rendered helpless through its machinations—victims as well as dependents of perpetrators."

Kidnaping, he said, is "but an incident in the larger problem of crime.

"Yesterday it was robbery, today it is kidnaping, tomorrow it will be something else. With every crime racket will come a new hysteria."

Declaring the kidnaper "deserves no mercy" and that shooting is "too good for him," Warden Lawes expressed doubt, nevertheless, that "the mere designation of kidnaping as a capital crime will accomplish its purpose."

Holds Prison More Drastic.

He said imprisonment for 50 years is "certainly a more drastic penalty than death."

"Criminal jurisprudence has become national in scope," he continued. "All major crimes should be made Feneral offenses. Law enforcement can not continue to be local in application or execution.

"Not uniform laws, almost always impossible of attainment, but Nation-wide laws, with power and punch behind them, affecting equally every section of the country, is the remedy for current crime."

Chaco Sentiment To Be Sounded Out

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The willingness of Paraguay and Bolivia to suspend hostilities in the Chaco territory before the South American A B C powers begin mediation proceedings will be sounded out before those countries take over the League of Nations mandate, foreign office officials declared today.

Paraguay on July 20 informed the league that she would not start arbitration proceedings until hostilities cease in the Chaco. Paraguay's stand never was clarified further, as six days later the country and Bolivia asked the league to turn the mandate to stop the dispute over to Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru for further action.

Trio Seriously Burned As Motorcycle Upsets

Losing control of his motorcycle on the Lee highway near Fairfax yesterday, Daniel W. Thompson, 20, of Ballston, and two companions were seriously burned when the vehicle caught fire after turning over.

Thompson and his companions, Ernest Denny, 19, of Fairfax, and Morris Benham, 18, of Washington, were taken to Alexandria Hospital, where officials said they would recover. Brenham also received scalp lacerations.

Farley Pledges Help To Stamp Collectors

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Farley yesterday pledged the cooperation of the Postoffice Department to the Nation's stamp collectors. Noting that President Roosevelt is a philatelist, Farley said the "practical values of an intelligent interest in stamps appear to be obvious."

His pledge was extended in greetings to the forthcoming conventions of the American Society of Philatelic Americans, at Fond du Lac, Wis., and the American Philatelic Society at Chicago.

Four Hurt in Crash On Mt. Vernon Road

John F. Mortzolf, 19, of 13 Upshur street northwest, was injured critically in a collision between two automobiles late yesterday on Mount Vernon Highway. He was a passenger in a car driven by Thomas Callow, 19, of 1417 Twentieth street northwest. Three other passengers were injured slightly.

Mortzolf was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was said to have a fractured jaw, concussion of the brain and a possible fractured skull.

Colored Catholics Here Go to Baltimore Rites

Tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock a delegation of colored Catholics of Washington will go by bus to Baltimore to attend the annual ceremonies of the reception of postulants and the profession of novies. Miss Anna Smallwood, of Washington, a member of St. Cyprian's Church, will receive the habit of nun of the Oblate Sisters of Providence.

Heavy Floods Threaten Progress in Honduras

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—Dispatches from the north coast today said heavy floods caused severe damage to plantations and were threatening the safety of residents of the city of Progresso, on the banks of the River Ulua.

Hard Skull

Steel Bullet Deflected and Flattened in Attempt to Reach Man's Brain.

Luray, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The hardness of the skull of Harold Buracker, 21, of this county, will go down in history, attesting its ability in deflecting and flattening steel-jacket bullets.

When Buracker was shot by a .38-caliber revolver, the bullet was detoured when it ran against the skull.

Persistent in its efforts to reach his brains, the bullet clipped off a small part of the skull near the temple. Buracker, however, had a reserve of harder bone further back. There it came to a sudden stop, flattened out in pancake fashion. A physician hooked the missile through the hole it had made in its attempt to reach his brain.

Shouse Warns France on Wine Barrier in U. S.

Declares Tariff May Bar Imports Unless Debt Is Paid Up.

Paris (Monday), Aug. 14 (U.P.).—Jouett Shouse, American antiprohibition leader vacationing here, today said feeling in the United States that France should pay its war debts might result in the adoption of high tariffs against French wines when prohibition is repealed.

Shouse said he already had been requested by congressmen to introduce such tariffs "as soon as the thirty-sixth State votes in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which appears certain by December."

"Feeling in the United States against France is such," Shouse said, "that Congress is likely to enact prohibitive tariffs against all French wines unless France pays up her two defaulted war debt payments."

Affiliates of Drug, Inc., Chartered in Delaware

Dover, Del., Aug. 13 (AP).—Three affiliates of Drug Inc., a $150,000,000 holding corporation, reorganization of which was ordered last week, have been granted Delaware charters.

Under the new plan, Vick Chemical, Inc., was chartered yesterday with a capitalization of $3,501,400; United Drug, Inc., capitalized at $7,002,800 and Life Savers Corporation, at $1,750,700. Each was chartered for the sale of stocks. Officers and directors of the companies will be made known on the filing of their first yearly reports.

Wisconsin Celebrates Day at Valley Forge

Valley Forge, Pa., Aug. 13 (AP).—Wisconsin State Sunday was celebrated today at services in the Washington Memorial Chapel under the auspices of the Wisconsin State Society, D. A. R.

The Rev. Jules L. Prevost, of Phoenixville, delivered the principal address in which he dwelt chiefly on a statistical review of Wisconsin's history. Wisconsin's panel in the chapel's "Roof of the Republic" already has been donated and funds for its bell in the Washington Memorial National Carillon are being raised by citizens of Wisconsin.

Transfer of Minister Makes Flock Strike

Peabody, Mass., Aug. 13 (AP).—Parishioners of St. Joseph's Polish Catholic Church engaged in an informal strike today in protest against the transfer of their pastor, the Rev. Damian Wydro, to Detroit. Only a handful of worshipers attended masses.

Meanwhile, a delegation of church members was en route to Detroit headquarters of the church to request the return of the pastor, who had unified a divided parish and under whose direction a stone edifice was completed recently.

Papal Envoy Rescued In Quebec Shipwreck

Caribou Island, Que., Aug. 13 (AP).—The small coastwise passenger steamer North Shore was pounding itself to pieces on a reef near here tonight, while a party of Roman Catholic dignitaries headed by Mgr. Andrea Cassulo, papal delegate to Canada, were safe at Rimouski, Que., after a thrilling rescue from the damaged vessel by boats manned by fishermen and the ship's crew.

The North Shore, owned by the Clarke Steamship Co., struck a reef at 5 p. m. Saturday.

Thieves Get Spare Tire, Leave One in Its Place!

Courtesy thievery is being practiced in Potomac Park.

H. M. Bratter, Clarendon, reported to park police yesterday the theft of a tire from his auto. It was stolen Friday, he believes, when the car was parked near the Tidal Basin. Two days elapsed before he noticed a dilapidated tire had been substituted for one almost new.

To spare him any inconvenience, the thief or thieves had carefully fastened their own "spare" on the car, then made off with the better tire.

Lynchburg Fights Bugs.

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Lynchburg's mosquito squad is busy this week after anopheles, a malaria-carrying insect, appearing here in large numbers. Breeding places are hard to find but the bureau of health is certain they caused at least three cases of malaria here last summer.

De Cespedes Seeks U. S. Aid In Rehabilitation of Island

He progressed rapidly with his selections, with only a few posts remaining to be filled.

He had chosen Demetrio Castillo Pokorny as secretary of war, Paul de Cardenas for presidential secretory, Federico Laredobru as secretary of the interior and acting secretary of state, Dr. Jose Manuel Presno as head of the sanitation department, Daniel Compte for the treasury post and Enrique Montelieu as chief of the public works department.

Ambassador Sumner Wells called upon Senor de Cespedes at 11 a. m. and spent 15 minutes with him. The subject of their interview was not revealed, but in discussing his future work with correspondents, the president referred to the constitutional reforms for which a program was drawn up as part of the mediation efforts of the American ambassador, and asserted:

"I intend to carry out the program in order that political parties may organize and go to the next polls with a sense of safety."

Confers With Radicals.

During the day Senor de Cespedes conferred with leaders of the Confederation Nacional Obsera de Cuba, a slightly radical body, in an effort to have the general strike called off at once. Pending further negotiations, however, the strike continued, except for newspapers, street car operators and a few other workers.

Joseph Barcelo, president of the Liberal party, accompanied by Liberal members in Congress, visited the president during the afternoon and announced their collaboration in establishing normal conditions without accepting any cabinet posts.

"We ask only guarantees of the persons of the Liberals," he said. These guarantees were promised.

Shortly after the inaugural ceremonies, an armored Porrista car passed the president's home at full speed, firing a number of volleys at the residence. No one was wounded, but as the car dashed down the street other shots fired by its occupants struck two soldiers.

A student car which was giving chase was stopped by the police, but the youths were recognized by an official of the ABC group and were ordered released by the president.

Eight Porristas Killed.

A warning was sent out in the afternoon by the ABC that Porristas were ranging the city in seven bullet-proof automobiles prepared to sell their lives dearly. The cars they occupied were those formerly used by Machado, by Police Chief Ainciart, Interior Secretary Octovia Zubizarreta, and Jose Izquierdo, all of whom fled the country with their deposed chief.

During the day eight Porra agents were killed, one of them taking his own life when cornered after firing into a crowd and wounding a youthful member of the ABC.

Except for the occasional outbursts as students encountered members of the secret police, or as mobs wreaked further vengeance on the dwellings of late Machado officials, the police had the situation well in hand. Crowds circulated in the streets and eagerly sought the newspapers as they appeared from the presses for the first time since they suspended publication nine days ago in sympathy with the nation-wide strike.

Students and Child Slain.

Three houses owned by Senator Carlos Miguel de Cespedes, former secretary of public works, but not related to the president, were entered and sacked during the day. One was burned, as was the residence of Machado's secretary of agriculture, Eugenio Molinet.

Today's fatalities included two students killed by Porristas as well as a 12-year-old girl killed by a stray bullet as soldiers attacked a crowd that destroyed a postoffice.

Contrary to reports published yesterday, members of Machado's family did not accompany him on his flight to the Bahamas. It was reported, however, that his son-in-law, Senator Baldomero Grau, his wife and a former presidential aid had left for an unknown destination aboard the presidential gunboat-yacht.

The deposed dictator arrived at Nassau, capital of the British Bahamas, at 7 a. m. yesterday, after having spent the night at Nicholls-town, on the Island of Andros, where he slept in the plane, eating cooked food brought to him by natives.

Machado Bedraggled.

The aged "iron man" appeared fatigued and bedraggled. There were deep lines under his eyes and his linen suit and straw hat were crushed and soiled.

He was escorted to the Royal Victoria Hotel where he called for brandy and tea. He ate breakfast on the verandah in his pajamas, objecting strenuously to the efforts of photographers to photograph him in such informal attire. To newspapermen he expressed himself as highly pleased with his reception and the fact that he was on British territory.

His first act, following breakfast, was to call a tailor and order a new wardrobe. Asked about his plans, he said that he would remain at Nassau until his new attire had been completed. It was reported, however, that he planned to take the next steamer to Bermuda.

Custom officials seized five revolvers carried by the former president and his party, but said that they would be returned when the party left. A guard was accorded Machado at his hotel, and this guard turned away the American consul when he called, telling him that Machado was asleep and asking him to return later.

Manuel Mireno, a personal aid to Machado, announced that he was returning to Havana during the afternoon with the plane.

Machado Family Leaves Havana on Gunboat

(Associated Press.)

Advices were received in reliable quarters late last night that Senora Elvira Machado, wife of the former president of Cuba, several members of her family and a group of personal servants had left Cuba quietly on a gunboat yesterday afternoon and would land at Key West today.

The report said the group had boarded the gunboat Guan Bueno Zayas, presumably at or near Havana. It was not stated what time the party would land at Key West.

Welles' Work Praised By Cuban Rebel Chief

Mexico City, Aug. 13 (U.P.).—A cablegram of praise for his "exceptional statesmanship and friendship to Cuba" was sent to Ambassador Sumner Welles, of the United States, at Havana today by Jose Maria Bosch, treasurer of the unsuccessful Mendieta-Menocal revolution of August, 1931.

Persian Youths On Italian Ships Guests in City

Minister Is Host to Cadets on Whom Hope of Sea Power Is Built.

Forming the nucleus of what the shah hopes will be a Persian Navy restored to some of its ancient magnificence, eight Persian cadets from the two Italian training ships, at Baltimore, were entertained yesterday by Ghaffar Khan Djalal, the Persian Minister, at luncheon in the legation.

Addressing the youths during lunch, the minister said:

"It is a good augury for the restoration of the ancient naval power of Persia, now being undertaken by His Majesty the Reza Shah Phalevi, that it is being started with the generous cooperation and technical aid of the Italian government."

Once Ruler of Seas.

At one period in ancient times Persia's power on the seas was rivaled only by that of Rome.

The Minister and Mme. Djalal and members of the legation staff took their countrymen sightseeing in the morning and entertained them at their legation home in the afternoon.

The young foreigners were impressed with the tennis courts, baseball fields, golf courses and other equipment for athletics in Washington.

Cadets Are Linguists.

According to American standards, the Persian youths are real linguists. Although they think nothing of their accomplishments in that line, they all speak English, French, German and Italian as well as their own tongue.

The training ships, Amerigo Vespucci and the Cristoforo Colombo, are to hoist their picturesque sails Friday and leave Baltimore for New York for a 12-day visit there, thence to start back to Italy. The Persian youths will go home by train from Italy.

Bridegroom-to-Be Hurt in Auto-Trolley Collision, So Wedding Is Delayed.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Because Lieut. John Sherman Hedrick was hurt in an auto-street car collision, he couldn't be married yesterday.

His car and a trolley struck head-on recently in Lancaster, Pa., and since then Lieut. Hedrick has been in the Naval Hospital, in Washington. His marriage to Miss Susan D. Carson had been set for Saturday. She is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. A. C. Carson, of Dellbrook, Riverton, near here, who have announced the postponement. The new date will be announced when the officer recovers from his injuries.

Guard Marksmen Meet at Quantico

Winchester Trio to Open Matches With Rifle Team Today.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Three members of Company I, Virginia National Guard, of Winchester, will compete with the Virginia National Guard rifle team in the Third Corps Area matches at Quantico, starting tomorrow and running through Saturday.

First Lieut. George F. Miller, Sergt. Glenn W. Seabright and Sergt. Edwin H. Smith are the Winchester militiamen named on the team, which was selected by elimination matches at Virginia Beach while the Virginia National Guard was encamped there.

In 1932, Sergt. Seabright won the National Guard and President's medals at the Quantico area match, while the regimental team of the 116th Infantry, Virginia National Guard, won the regimental team match.

Posse Pursues Assailant of Woman in Hills

Escort Is Forced to Flee in Fairfax Attack; One Suspect Released.

State and Fairfax County police were searching the Virginia hills and woods last night for a colored man who early yesterday attacked Mrs. Hazel Mattox, 33, of Belle Haven, after causing her escort, George Dunn, 36, of Accotink, to flee at the point of a gun.

The attack occurred in dense woods near the Fort Hunt road, three miles south of Alexandria. Dunn and Mrs. Mattox, returning from a dance, had stopped at the side of the road when the man jumped on the running board of their car with the order to "stick 'em up," they told police.

Attacks and Robs Woman.

Dunn was compelled to drive the car into a side road, where he was ordered to stop about 200 yards from the main highway. The man then forced him from the car and ordered him to "beat it," he said.

After Dunn ran to the highway the man attacked Mrs. Mattox at the point of the gun and fled after rifling her purse and taking the keys to the car, she told police.

Mrs. Mattox ran to the main road where she was met by Alexandria police and Dunn, who had been taken to Alexandria by a passing motorist to get aid.

Bloodhounds Fail.

After an all-night search by more than fifteen officers, State Police Sergt. E. J. McDermott arrested a suspect yesterday, but neither Mrs. Mattox nor Dunn could identify him and he was released.

Bloodhounds, procured from the District Reformatory at Lorton soon after the crime, were unable to pick up the scent of the attacker.

Police believe the assailant is the same man who held up and robbed Marine Sergt. A. T. Hale, of Quantico, and his woman companion at the same place the night of July 23.

Sheriff Eppa L. Kirby, of Fairfax County said the intensive search would continue through today and if the man was not apprehended a citizens' posse would be enlisted to aid the posse of officers.

Counterfeit $5 Notes Passed in West Virginia

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.). Counterfeit $5 Federal Reserve notes are in circulation in southern West Virginia and Federal Secret Service agents are busy trying to run down the counterfeiters. Raymond W. King, head of the Secret Service office at Huntington, in a warning about the spurious notes, said they can be detected by a "J" in the lower right-hand corner.

Three Held in Graft for Blind

Capital Trio Seized in Martinsburg Had Distributed Cards Asking Alms, but Admit Plot Was Faked.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—City police in the arrest here yesterday of a man, wife and son, giving Washington addresses, express belief they have nipped a panhandling business that has profited its agents handsomely here and elsewhere in Maryland and West Virginia.

The trio gave police the names of W. P. Nutter, 49; Panama Nutter, 37, his wife, and Virgil Nutter, 18, their son.

The woman sauntered through a downtown poolroom passing out cards asking funds for her "blind" husband. The youth was also passing out cards helping his "blind" father.

Unaware they were being followed, the woman and youth, after a brief conference, walked to a side street where they conversed with a man sitting in a District licensed automobile. Officers arrested all three.

The man told Capt. O. T. Wilson he could see as well as the average man. All three declared, police stated, they were trying to get a little "easy money" because they were "hard up." Their personal effects disclosed 1,500 cards requesting aid for the "blind man."

Capt. Wilson said all three would be charged with soliciting funds on the streets, vagrancy and panhandling.

Assemblyman Ignores Threat Of Dry Petition

Arlington County Delegate Says W. C. T. U. Aids Can't Influence Him.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

"Circulation of petitions by members of the Arlington County Woman's Christian Temperance Union opposing legalizing the sale of beer and light wines and measures to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment will have no effect on my vote at the coming special session of the Virginia General Assembly," said Delegate Hugh Reid last night.

"I have in no way changed my mind, I shall vote to legalize the sale of beer and for the setting up of the machinery for a vote by the people for repeal of the eighteenth amendment," Mr. Reid said.

More than 1,000 petitions have been printed in Arlington County and they are being circulated in every section by members of the W. C. T. U., it was revealed yesterday.

Mrs. Ethel M. Gregory, president of the local union, said that the organization is not responsible for the distribution of the petitions.

However, it was learned that they were distributed to members at a recent meeting of the union.

The petition, addressed to Senator Harry Flood Byrd, reads:

"We, the undersigned voters, are opposed to the legalizing and sale of beer and light wines and also to any measure providing for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and, hereby let you know that should our delegate to the General Assembly vote in favor of either of these measures he will do so contrary to our sentiment."

Similar petitions are being circulated in every county of the State.

Egrets Are Sighted On Maryland Waters

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.). The American egret has lately been seen on Lake Koon, which supplies Cumberland with water, and on mill dams and various streams hereabout. It is protected by Federal and State laws. The egret is entirely white, with a long train of straight plumes growing from the middle of the back, the bill and eyes yellow and the legs and feet black.

Capital Boy, Who Made Good In Manchuria, Returns Home

T. L. Edmiston Wants to Go Back Where $1 Is Equal to $4.

The monument, Thomas Circle and his home and family at 1719 Varnum street northwest, all look good to Theo L. Edmiston, but already he is looking forward to returning to Harbin and its Russo-Mongolian atmosphere.

Still in his twenties, Mr. Edmiston has seen enough of the Sino-Japanese war, devastating floods and sweeping epidemics to last an ordinary lifetime. Returning from Manchuria last week, he even had a taste of the Cuban revolt when his boat docked at Havana for a few hours. It was the same day President Machado proclaimed a state of war.

But Cuba is beside the point. The point is four years of life in Harbin, where one American dollar gets to four to six local dollars and there's no worrying about depressions—well, practically none—or circle traffic jams or baseball scores.

Has Six-Month Furlough.

Mr. Edmiston, an official in the National City Bank of Harbin, arrived in New York Saturday. Yesterday was his first day at home since 1929. He is on six-month furlough and will return to duty in February. To the East again, he hopes.

English has made great headway in the Orient through talkies, he said. One drawback, though, was the flood of American gangster pictures which hit the Manchukuan city one after the other. Filled with slang terms—"on the spot," "scram," "nerts," &c.—the films have the natives talking the same way. They think it's the king's English.

Prices went up when America went off the gold standard, Mr. Edmiston said. At that an American pay envelope has about four times the purchasing power there that it has in Washington, Omaha or Tuscaloosa.

Eastern High Graduate.

A graduate of Eastern High School in 1923, Mr. Edmiston attended the University of Arkansas and was employed by the National City Bank immediately after graduation. There was a year's training in New York and then he was shipped to Harbin.

In the meantime Japan changed Manchuria to Manchukuo, Hoover served a term and this Varnum streeter picked up quite a bit of Russian, Japanese and Chinese.

Harbin has many White Russians, refugees from their homeland since the fall of the czars. There is the Red variety, too, but both sets get along well. Of course, a moving picture which touched upon the old regime did cause a theater riot, but those things don't happen often.

3 Arrests Stop Rites at Church

Dispute Between Pastor and Evangelist Leads to Police Action.

Jonesboro, Ark., Aug. 13 (AP).—Officers today dismissed services attempted by some 2,000 persons at the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle, placed three members of the congregation under arrest and prohibited further services until the court decides a dispute between the Rev. Joe Jeffers, evangelist, and the Rev. Dale Crowley, pastor, over the right to the tabernacle pulpit.

Jeffers was a central figure in the Jonesboro church war in September, 1931, which National Guardsmen were called upon to suppress.

The church building tonight was under guard of a special deputy who will remain on duty until the court decides the controversy.

The three men under arrest on warrants sworn out by Jeffers and several of his followers were R. F. Barnett and Freeman Hinson, charged with possessing a deadly weapon, and J. O. Alexander, charged with assault and battery. They were released under $250 bond.

Barnett was arrested on the complaint of the Rev. Joe Ritchie, who alleged Barnett drew a pistol and threatened him when he attempted to enter the tabernacle. Roy Chambers, a Jeffers follower, who crawled through the window to gain entrance to the tabernacle when refused admission at the door, charged Hinson pointed a shotgun at him, threatening to shoot. Alexander was alleged to have injured Joe Fletcher in a fist fight which grew out of Fletcher's attempt to go through a door Alexander was guarding.

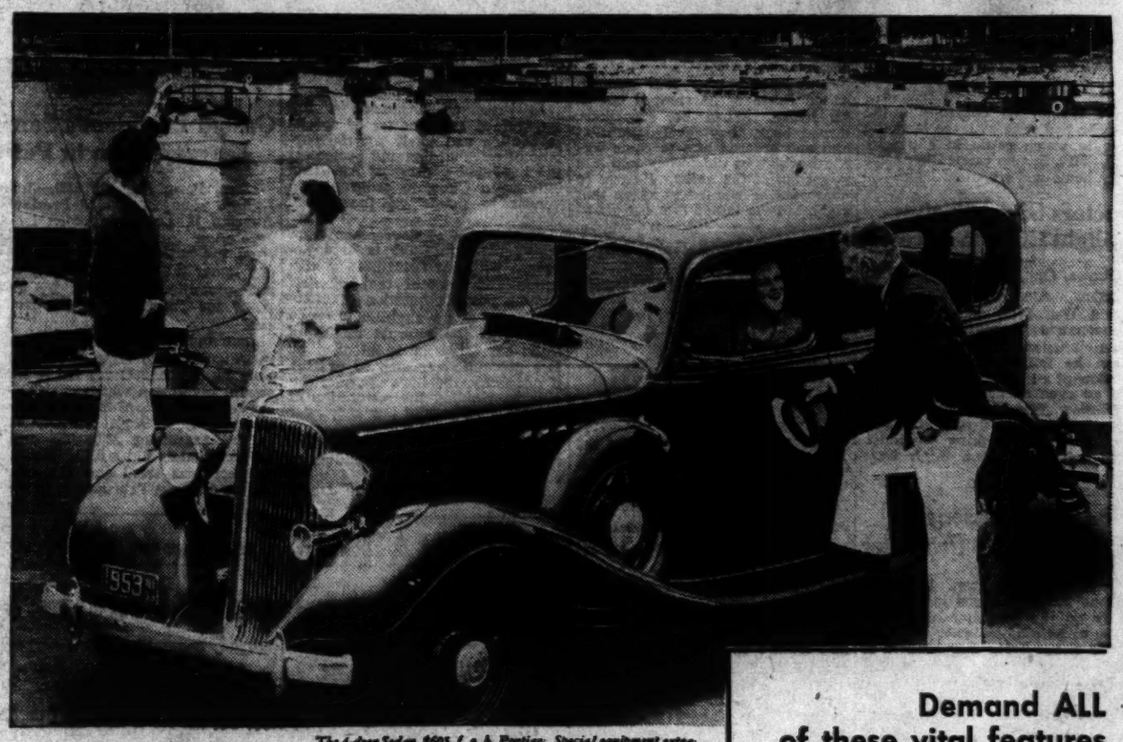
Pontiac .. THE WORLD'S LARGEST BUILDER of STRAIGHT EIGHTS



The 4-door Sedan, $695, f. o. b. Pontiac. Special equipment extra.

Here's why America is buying them!

Men and women are buying more Pontiacs than any other car in Pontiac's price range! Why? Because they have found that this big, modern Straight Eight excels on all counts . . . as you will find when you see and drive it.

You get power in a Pontiac—more power than you'll find in any other automobile at or near its price—delivered far more smoothly by Pontiac's 77-horsepower Straight Eight engine.

You get more speed, too—78 actual miles per hour. Your Pontiac holds the road better—rides more comfortably—because it's a big car, with 115-inch wheelbase and well-distributed weight (3265 pounds for the 4-door Sedan). And it's the only car in its price range with the Fisher Ventilation System—greatest comfort factor since the development of the closed body.

There just isn't anything to compare with Pontiac at its price. In Fisher Body beauty—in comfort—in Straight Eight performance. That's why America is buying Pontiacs. That's why you'll prefer Pontiac, too.

Sugar Industry Spurred to Act By Ultimatum

Leaders Reported to Have Reached Agreement on Allocations Privately.

(Associated Press.)

Despite the collapse of open negotiations toward a sugar stabilization agreement under the direction of the Farm Adjustment Administration, it was reported last night in completely reliable quarters that progress was made yesterday by representatives of the industry toward such an allocation plan.

Representatives of the various groups, it was said, were spurred by an ultimatum from the Farm Administration.

Dr. John Lee Coulter, of the Tariff Commission, who presided at some of the efforts to reach an agreement, was among those who stated publicly that the proposed stabilization plan would be dropped unless a written agreement was reached by the contending factions. Outstanding among these were Cuba and the domestic beet producers.

Confer in Hotel Rooms.

Representatives of the sugar interests remained in Washington after the close of the hearings Saturday, and yesterday there were a series of conferences in hotel rooms. The domestic beet spokesmen were among those conferring.

One of those playing a leading role in the quiet attempt to present a written agreement to the Farm Administration was Charles W. Taussig, economist and adviser to President Roosevelt.

The heart of the proposed plan would allot the supply to the domestic market on the following basis:

Cuba, 1,700,000 tons annually; domestic beet producers, 1,525,000 tons; Hawaii, 975,000; Puerto Rico, 875,000; Philippine Islands, 955,920; Louisiana, 250,000, and Florida, 160,000.

All Sought Higher Quotas.

Although almost every interest sought a higher quota, officials said the obstacle which blocked success at the open hearings was the stand of the domestic beet producers against any limitation whatever on their output.

Absence of any quota arrangement, however, would renew the effort for a lowering in the present duty of 2 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar. That country now has a 20 per cent perferential in her tarriff duties but the other producers are either domestic or insular and the tariff does not apply to them.

The Tariff Commission just now is completing months of study of the sugar situation and will present a report to President Roosevelt in the near future.

Fischback Heads Baptist Assembly

Succeeds Caverlee; Dean Emeritus Title Goes to the Rev. Withers.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Dr. Julius Fischback, of Morgantown, will head the West Virginia Baptist Assembly the coming year, having been elected president at its annual meeting under way at Alderson-Broaddus College, Philippi. He succeeds the Rev. Robert F. Caverlee, of Fredericksburg, Va.

Richard Tibbs, of Morgantown, was made vice president and other officers include the Rev. Clarence Figgett, of Mount Hope, assembly dean; Mrs. J. A. Young, of West Union, assembly matron; the Rev. James E. Fidler, of the college, manager; Ralph Moore, of Philippi, steward; Hugh Shaffer, of Philippi, registrar and treasurer, and George S. White, of Philippi, treasurer. Richard Tibbs, of Morgantown, and the Revs. Hugh Pickett, of Fairmont; G. M. Turner, of Philippi, and Lloyd Parkinson, of South Charleston, were elected directors.

The title of dean emeritus was conferred upon the Rev. A. B. Withers, of Parkersburg, who retired as assembly dean after serving for 24 years.

Hagerstown Fair Plans Announced

Directors Meet to Make Plans for Exhibition Next Month.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The directors of the Hagerstown Fair Association met yesterday afternoon to make plans for the annual fair and racing meet, opening September 12.

Another floral exhibit will be held in the main building. A fish and game show will also be held in the hall formerly used for the horticultural exhibit. Fireworks at night will be more pretentious than ever before. Many midway attractions already have been booked by Dr. E. W. Ditto, in charge of this department.

Vice President Harold F. Bester has been advised by Edward J. Brennan that applications are already pouring in from horsemen for stable reservations and a fine class of runners is expected.

Woman Held in Firing Revolver at Another

Danville, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Hair pulling is no longer the vogue in settling feminine disputes here, according to charges made in police court yesterday against Mrs. Ethel Day Brann, 27.

G. P. Eggleston said she also threatened his life when he tried to keep her from shooting Mrs. J. T. Elton.

Mrs. Brann is alleged to have thrust her fist through a glass panel in the front door of Mrs. Elton's house, and when refused admittance poked her revolver through and started shooting. The Elton family fled through the back way while the shooting continued. Residents on nearby porches also sought shelter.

Mrs. Thorn, 90, Resident Here 70 Years, Dies

Descendant of Addison, Scotch Poet, Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Addison Thorn, 90, resident of Washington for 70 years, died yesterday at her home, 3100 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Thorn, who was born in Baltimore, came here in 1864, when she married Columbus Welch Thorn, proprietor of a fuel and supply business on the site of what is now Lansburgh's department store.

She was a descendant of Joseph Addison, the Scotch poet, who is buried in Westminster Abbey. Her father was a second cousin of Francis Scott Key.

Mr. Thorn died in 1888.

Mrs. Thorn is survived by a son, Charles E. Thorn, prominent New York attorney; a daughter, Mrs. Philip G. Altenbaugh, 3611 Patterson street northwest; a grandchild and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the home of her daughter. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Farmers to Meet At Jackson's Mill

West Virginians Will Take Up Recovery Plans Aug. 21-22.

Morgantown, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—West Virginia farmers will gather at Jackson's Mill August 21-22 for their annual camp, according to plans announced by the College of Agriculture here.

Organization policies that will enable farmers to benefit by the provisions of the agricultural adjustment act will be given special consideration.

During the camp reports from the various cooperative associations in the States will be given and the annual meeting of the West Virginia Farm Bureau will be held.

The session on Monday will begin at 9:30 o'clock and will include a meeting of the executive committee of the farm bureau in the afternoon and an open forum of county officers in the afternoon.

A banquet will be held at 6 o'clock Monday evening, at which Gov. H. G. Kump will speak.

Pioneer Steamer Wharf Is for Sale

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Pioneer residents along the Chesapeake Bay will sigh wistfully for "the good old days," when wharf properties of the defunct Baltimore & Virginia Steamboat Co. are sold at auction August 21.

The company failed some years ago, and its few ships that were left were sold in 1930. Some of the wharf property, the only kind left, will be sold here next Monday. Other parcels will be sold August 23 at Upper Marlboro, Md., and at Tappahannock, Va., August 25.

Years ago, the ships of the company made regular calls at a hundred landings on the Eastern Shore, southern Maryland, and the northern neck of Virginia.

Young People Gather At League Institute

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Young people from various parts of the State began arriving at Buckhannon this evening for the seventeenth annual Epworth League Institute, which will open tomorrow on the campus of West Virginia Wesleyan College there. Several hundred will attend altogether. Joseph C. Hoffman, of Moundsville, is dean of the institute and the Rev. Winfred S. Patterson, of Oakland, Md., is manager. Argyle Knight, of Clarksburg, will be in charge of the dramatics, which will have an important part of the program.

D. A. V. Head Here To Aid Job Board

Capt. J. W. McQueen Sees Help for Veterans From U. S. Service.

Capt. J. W. McQueen, recently elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans at the Cincinnati convention, arrived here yesterday from Kansas City to serve on the Federal Advisory Council of the U. S. Employment Service which holds its first meeting today.

"Judging by the manner in which the U. S. Employment Service is attacking the problem of the disabled veterans we should be able to make real headway," Capt. McQueen said.

"But we still feel, and we intend to let Congress know, that the public generally will not allow those disabled in the war to have their cross made heavier as it has been by recent legislation."

Hibernians End Maryland Meet

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The twenty-fourth biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Maryland adjourned here late today to meet in 1935 in Atlantic City.

Francis J. Dornan, of Baltimore, was reelected president; J. T. Creegan, Cumberland, was chosen vice president; Robert E. Noonan, Baltimore, secretary, and John J. Fitzsimmons, Baltimore, treasurer.

The State Ladies' Auxiliary, which met simultaneously, reelected Miss Anna Doyle, Baltimore, president; Miss Mary Walsh, Lonaconing, vice president; Miss Mary Broening, Baltimore, secretary, and Mrs. Nellie Fannon, Mount Savage, treasurer. Miss Rose Kelly, Westernport, is past State president.

Rita Plunkett, Baltimore, won the prize posted by the auxiliary for elementary schools, and Mary Gardener, Hagerstown, for high schools, for the best essay on Irish history. The convention considered plans for the entertainment of the Ancient Order of Hibernians' national convention to be held in Baltimore in 1935.

G. F. Ross, 83, Dies At Walter Reed

Was Pennsylvania Official and Land Grant Expert for Last 60 Years.

George F. Ross, father of Walter K. Ross and Lieut. Col. Frank K. Ross, U. S. A., and who for 60 years was identified with the State government of Pennsylvania, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital following a month's illness.

Mr. Ross was born at Lewistown, Pa., October 13, 1850, and during his long service in the Pennsylvania State government he was an authority on land grants, patents and similar records of the Commonwealth.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in Pine Street Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg.

John S. Battle Is Urged For Seat in State Senate

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—John S. Battle, of the law firm of Perkins & Battle, is being urged here by friends as the logical candidate to succeed State Senator N. B. Early, of Greene, who has been appointed United States collector of internal revenue.

Mr. Battle, who has served two terms in the House of Delegates, declined to stand for reelection in the recent Democratic primary.

Girl Winner Of Film Chance Picked Tonight

Score of Candidates Will Be Seen at Stage of Loew's Fox.

Tonight's the night that Lady Luck is going to send a Washington girl to Hollywood for a part in a movie.

During the past week, Paramount scouts have been selecting girls from Wilson Line boats to take part in the final judging at Loew's Fox Theater tonight. One girl will win. All of her expenses will be paid to the California movie capital for a featured part in "Eight Girls in a Boat."

So far, more than 25 girls have been picked. Tonight a representative from Paramount's studio, The Post and the theater will choose one of them. It is not exclusively a beauty contest. Personality, the way a girl walks, her smile and the general impression she makes with an audience all will count.

All of the girls will parade across the stage at the last show tonight and the final decision will be made shortly afterward. Within a few weeks, the lucky one will leave for movieland.

Contests similar to this are being conducted in seven more American cities. Each will nominate a girl for the picture. Following the making of the movie, the girls will be given a chance for future production work and, if the producers think enough of her ability, she will be given a Paramount contract.

The girls will report at Loew's Fox at 9:30 this morning for a rehearsal. They will be told what to wear and what their part will be on the stage tonight.

Carter Barron, city manager for the Loew theaters, and Bert Adler, Paramount representative, are expecting a large attendance.

Neighbor Says He'll Swear Johnson Is Good Democrat

Saw General Vote Party Ticket Last Election, Visitor Asserts.

By Harold Stone
(Washington Post Roving Reporter).

"I'd swear on a stack of Bibles as high as this hotel that Gen. Johnson voted the Democratic ticket in the last election, and that as long as I've known him he's been a good Democrat," declared Albert Milk, Woodmere, Long Island, merchant, here yesterday.

The hotel is 12 stories high, which adds considerable weight to his declaration.

"I don't see why they want to tell something like that about the general," he continued, referring to Gray Silver's statement that Gen. Johnson once was a Republican. "I saw Gen. Johnson vote this last time right there in the Tenth Zone of Woodmere. He voted Democratic and then made sure before the inspectors that he was listed as a Democrat.

"The trouble is, he's doing a darn good job and it hurts some of these birds to think that a man can get along under adverse circumstances. I have known Gen. Johnson for some time and I know that he will accomplish whatever he sets his mind to do. But as far as him ever being a Republican—well, if he even thought about it he never spoke his thoughts loud enough so anyone could hear him."

Milk says he is a county committeeman in Gen. Johnson's county in Long Island. He says that, as a merchant, some of the general's rulings have hit him pretty hard, but that he is with him 100 per cent in what he is attempting to do.

"I don't know about the general's father and grandfather," he concluded. "But that's got nothing to do with it, anyway. They may or may not have been Democrats. He says they were and I believe him."

J. W. Palmer, Almas Temple Veteran, Dead

Last Survivor of Charter Members to Be Buried Tomorrow.

J. William Palmer, 92, the last surviving charter member of Almas Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., founded 48 years ago, died yesterday at the home of his daughters, Mrs. Frank Carden and Mrs. George Gerntster, 3576 Thirteenth street northwest.

Mr. Palmer lived in Washington since the close of the Civil War, and was one of the oldest thirty-third degree Masons in the city. He also was a charter member of the Mount Pleasant Lodge, F. A. A. M., a member of the Oldest Inhabitants Association, and Burnside Post, G. A. R. He served 56 years in the War Department.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Frank Bourn, of 3777 Oliver street northwest. The funeral will be held at the home at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Road Will Replace Rail Right-of-Way

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—History is reversing itself in West Virginia. In former days trails and highways were given over to railroad construction. Now it is the other way.

Authority has been granted to the Norfolk & Western Railroad by the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon 54 miles of line between Wayne and Lenore on condition that the right of way and bridge from Missouri Branch to Lowney, 12 miles, be donated for use as an improved highway. Wayne County officials are trying to get the remainder of the lines.

Chicago's Great Fair.

Chicago is rejoicing, not to say exulting, over the success of the Century of Progress, not only as an attraction in itself, but as a stimulus to business. Despite all the dire predictions that the present year would prove a most inopportune time for the holding of a great exposition, the daily attendance, according to recent estimates, is running 100 per cent above that at the Columbian exposition of 1893. Chicago hotels, which were reported in rather desperate straits last winter, are now full, and many of the stores of the city report business back to the 1929 volume.

The railroads are profiting from greatly increased travel. In one day the New York Central delivered 5,000 passengers in Chicago and has already employed more than 150 extra trains for the fair service, requiring 5,000 additional employes to handle the business. The Pennsylvania lines put on twenty-five extra trains in one week, while the Baltimore and Ohio and Chesapeake and Ohio are both adding extra sections every day to carry easterners to Chicago.

Great as the increase in rail travel has been, the influx of visitors who come in their own motor cars is equally remarkable. Fair officials predict that a million cars will convey sightseers to Chicago. Other visitors are going by air, by buses and by lake boats. The Century of Progress itself is today Chicago's greatest employer, requiring no less than 26,000 persons to keep the great show going.

They Get Their Man.

Discussion of the feasibility of a special Federal force to cope with the present crime emergency never gets very far without mention of the efficiency of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The service required in connection with American racketeers and kidnapers would be of quite a different character, since it would be largely confined to the cities instead of scattered over vast plains, as in the case of the Canadians. Whether a modified organization adapted to the exigencies of the present situation in this country might be useful is open to wide differences of opinion. There are many who seriously question the wisdom of the Federal Government encroaching upon the police powers of the States, or giving them excuse for further dependence upon Uncle Sam in criminal matters.

The reputation of the Canadian force for never failing to bring in the criminal it goes after is a deterrent influence against violence and crime even more important than the actual arrests made. The famous red coats are celebrating this year the diamond jubilee of the organization. Organized first in 1873 as the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, their distinguished record began with a force of only 300 men, who marched for 2,000 miles across the wild prairies and so impressed the Indians that they readily agreed to long-delayed treaties of friendship.

This present mounted force counts 2,500 officers and men. Their duties are many and varied. Commonly they are regarded as lone riders of the frozen north who follow their quarry through trackless wastes and always bring them home. But many of them are stationed along the international border in connection with the customs service and to prevent alien smuggling. They still maintain order when necessary in the Indian reserves. They are found in the Northwest territory, along the Arctic and the coasts of Hudson Bay, everywhere respected by the community they serve, and feared by evildoers.

Control of Suez Canal.

The statutes of the Suez Canal Company provide that no shareholder may cast more than ten votes. This provision makes any shareholder with 250 shares the equal in voting power with the British government, which has more than 176,000 shares. At the last meeting of the Joint East African Board, therefore, Sir Arnold Wilson brought up the question of permitting Great Britain to exercise the control justified by her financial interest.

According to Sir Arnold, various plans for changing the present position of Britain in the company have been proposed. One project suggests that blocks of stock of 250 shares each should be distributed to trustees, who would constitute a group of 704 units of ten votes each. Some years ago it was proposed that the various members of the British Empire should purchase blocks of the shares from the government, thus giving the whole control over to the empire. The French shareholders have resisted any change which would transfer political control of the canal to Great Britain.

During the last ten years nearly 70 per cent of the gross receipts of the Suez Canal have been distributed in dividends. The Suez Canal charges six gold francs a ton, which is about 50 per cent higher than Panama Canal tolls at the present rate of the dollar; yet the Panama Canal cost two and a half times as much to build, and operating costs are twice as great. The high Suez tolls have not been justified, it is felt, since only 10 per cent of the ships going to Australia today use the Suez Canal, while 25 per cent used it six years ago.

First-Class Postal Rates.

Third Assistant Postmaster General Eilenberger, addressing California postmasters at Pasadena last week, furnished interesting information regarding letter postage. When Congress recently restored the 2-cent rate on drop letters it authorized the President to restore the 3-cent rate on nonlocal letters at any time prior to next June, should he deem such action in the public interest. But the Postoffice Department considers it certain that restoration of the 2-cent rate on all letters at this time would result in a substantial loss of revenue.

Mr. Eilenberger took occasion to correct a popular misunderstanding regarding the effect of the 3-cent rate upon postal receipts. From the fact that postal receipts were somewhat lower in the fiscal year 1933, when the 3-cent rate was in effect, than in 1932, when the rate was 2 cents, it has been generally believed that the 3-cent rate produced less revenue than would have been produced by the old 2-cent rate. But it is explained that there was a continuous and accelerating decline in all postal revenues from 1930 to 1932, and into the fiscal year 1933, when the decline was checked. But for the 3-cent letter rate the revenues would have been $80,000,000 less for the fiscal year 1933. The details of revenues for the fiscal year 1933 are not yet available, but the department estimates that they amounted to $585,000,000, as compared with $588,000,000 in 1932. Thus the loss resulting from the depression, which continued for the first nine months of the fiscal year 1933, was almost offset by the gain in revenue under the 3-cent letter rate.

The mails are now beginning to increase in volume, and the department anticipates that the gains will be maintained throughout this fiscal year. If this better business should continue, it is hoped that by July 1 next the uniform 2-cent rate on all first-class mail can be restored without danger to the department's financial situation.

Heroic Farm Women.

American farm women are doing heroic work in these distressful times. The spirit of defeatism does not possess them. As one adverse circumstance after another has blasted the farmer's hopes, his wife has redoubled her energies and sharpened her wits in making both ends meet.

Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of extension work of the Department of Agriculture, pays high tribute to farm women for their achievements under difficulties which would dishearten most men. He praises their optimism and constructive outlook. When crops or live stock returns have failed, the women have kept the family ship afloat by selling vegetables, eggs, poultry, butter, milk, cheese, and even bread and cake of their own baking. This small income in some cases has been the only cash coming into the farm home.

"I know a farm women's market in Maryland," reports Dr. Warburton, "where 76 of the women have paid farm taxes from their sales. Their gardens and poultry and canned goods have provided the family with good food, too, and many of them bartered what they had, or what they could do, for what they lacked, either goods or services. They have not only helped to feed their families, but they have also cared for their households as usual, made and made over much clothing, and revived many home industries to save money. They make cheese and soap, do dry cleaning, help at butchering time, can and cure meats, and can and dry vegetables and fruits."

This is the never-say-die pioneer spirit that spurns the thought of doles. No limit of hours of labor is fixed by the farm heroines of the nation. They go forward with good cheer, delighting in their accomplishments, and happy in the knowledge that they are holding their homes together.

Combatting Crime.

While the broader aspects of combatting organized crime are being considered in the Department of Justice by Attorney General Cummings and Prof. Moley, the more specific prosecution of kidnaping cases is having effective cooperation through the agency in direct charge of Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan. Mr. Keenan finds encouragement in the record of the first month in which the Federal agents have cooperated more fully with State authorities.

The official report shows that in connection with twelve recent kidnapings nineteen persons have been convicted, fourteen other suspects are held, and six whose identities are known are being sought. Closer cooperation is being perfected between State authorities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which is able to furnish expert investigators who have the advantage of being unknown to local criminals. The staff available for this work is being increased. By the time Congress meets it is anticipated that there will be recommendations ready for additional legislation which will aid in the suppression of racketeering activities, including a law governing the sale of firearms.

Chicago's criminal court judges are showing courage in putting offenders in that city behind the bars. Judge Joseph B. David read in open court a letter threatening his life and then proceeded to give the offender before him the limit of the law. Chief Justice John Prystalski commended Judge David, saying that his attitude would spur the judiciary to greater efforts and give assurance that the campaign against crime in Chicago would continue until the dockets have been cleared.

Jackson Hole.

An inquiry into the circumstances under which land was acquired for extension of the Grand Teton National Park has been completed at Jackson, Wyo.

Statements to the effect that a scandal would be exposed by these hearings were not substantiated. Some complaints by land owners in the Jackson Hole country were heard, but they indicate opposition to the plan of extending the park rather than unfair tactics in the purchases that have been made. Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate investigating committee, issued a statement to the effect that no evidence had been deduced to support the land owners' complaints. Senator Norbeck pronounced the hearings "an outrageous expedition, the purpose of which was the running down of unfounded rumors at the expense of the taxpayers."

The Jackson Hole country contains some of the most magnificent scenery in the United States. Congress recognized the value of this region as an addition to the national park system by creating the Grand Teton National Park a few years ago. It is now proposed to add about 42,000 acres of land to this park area. Approximately 33,000 acres have been acquired by John D. Rockefeller, jr. Mr. Rockefeller set aside $1,500,000 for the purchase of land to complete the park area as a gift to the Nation.

Opposition from some Wyoming officials and Senator Carey, of that State, brought the extension project under the scrutiny of a Senate committee. Residents of Jackson Hole seem to be divided on the issue. While some landowners complained, the city council of Jackson and a group of business men, ranchers and lawyers issued a statement highly commending Mr. Rockefeller for helping to preserve this recreational area "which includes the most sublime mountain scenery in the United States."

Apparently the whole controversy arose from the fact that some citizens of Wyoming are opposed to extension of the Government's holdings in that State. Taxes on this land will be lost to the State, although the amount of such revenue is small. Some ranchers will have to move elsewhere, but they have received "fair and generous prices" for their land, according to the investigators and the citizens' committee. On the other hand, a wonderful scenic region will be preserved, and Wyoming will doubtless reap far more profits from tourists visiting that area than the State will lose in taxes.

In cases of this kind it appears that the local interests should be waived in favor of the national welfare. All America is interested in the creation of great natural parks. Only a few ranchers are interested in preserving this area for their own use. If they have been paid fair and reasonable prices for their land, it appears that justice has been done, and the general public will benefit from the gift.

A Necrology of Conferences.

From the New York Herald Tribune.

With an ironic bow toward a certain recently deceased meeting "in a London geological museum," the Boston Transcript presents its readers with a tabulated "Necrology of Conferences." A dozen great world gatherings are listed, beginning with the Brussels monetary conference in 1922, attended by thirty-six nations and resulting in "the stimulation of trade and the salvation of many governments, notably Austria, from financial chaos," and ending with the economic conference of 1933, attended by sixty-six nations and leading to "Results: None."

Only four of these twelve impressive international conferences are listed as reasonably successful—that at Brussels, the Washington conference of 1921, the Locarno conference of 1925 and the London naval conference of 1930. The Genoa economic conference of 1922 was a "failure;" the similar one at Geneva five years later produced only "agreements in principle;" the Lausanne conference of 1932 yielded only conditional agreements and the disarmament conferences produced nothing. The successes for the most part were early in the record; as the table progresses the failures become more numerous and more complete. The trick of selection may have something to do with this, for by no means all of the important international conferences of the period are included; yet in the main the showing is a fair one, and the commentary upon the conference method as an instrument for solving the world's problems is justified.

In the earlier post-war years, when the idea of international cooperation was still powerful and the powers were still working, so to speak, upon the fringes of the enormous issues which confronted them in the post-war world, the conference worked well enough. It worked so well, in fact, that the mere machinery of conferring seemed all that was necessary, and the world confused the calling of the conference with the solutions which it recorded. But as time went on, the easier things were done; the deeper issues latent in the new era began to emerge and the conference machinery began more clearly to break down under the greater tasks which were set for it. The truth is now beginning to sink in. The conference itself accomplished nothing, and a chief effect of men's faith in it as a wonder-working machine was to permit them to neglect the problem of arriving at the solutions which the conference at most could only record. There will be many more conferences, just as there will always be international relations while nations endure; but it is to be hoped that there will be no more called in the expectation that they can achieve solutions which no one has taken the trouble to make possible beforehand.

The Emblems Are Going Up. —Brooklyn Citizen.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

MARRIED BLISS, HOLLYWOOD STYLE.

("We are separating, yes, and will live apart, but there is no trouble between us. We have our difficulties, of course, but we love each other very dearly."—Statement of movie actress about to leave her husband.)

We're breaking up our little home—
It's time, we think, we parted;
On separated paths we'll roam—
We're anxious to get started.
Far, far from him I want to be (We'll write each other yearly);
He wants to be far, far from me—
We love each other dearly!

II.

I'm packing everything I own—
His furniture he's taking;
(I'll let you know my telephone)—
The lease our lawyer's breaking.
He wants his freedom very much,
I want to travel badly;
He's sick of that domestic touch—
We love each other madly!

III.

He thinks he'll move to Italy,
I'm on my way to Peking;
In this way we'll find privacy
And all the rest we're seeking.
I hope we'll never meet again
(To put it very mildly)—
This hope gives him no hurt or pain—
We love each other wildly!

IV.

You see, we're an artistic pair,
With natures temperamental:
He likes to drag me by the hair
In manner elemental;
I like to bounce rocks off his dome
(I love the sport immensely);
He likes to kick me 'round our home—
We love each other tensely!

V.

Last week he struck me with an ax—
I hit him with a table;
It dropped the darling in his tracks—
We do the best we're able!
Unhappy? All such thoughts dispel
And understand us clearly—
We understand each other well
And love each other dearly!

PREPAREDNESS.

Labor and industry have agreed to a peace pact, but President Roosevelt, ever a practical man, has named seven umpires just the same.

And, as Elmer Twitchell says, they never had to have that many, even in a football game.

SOUNDS REASONABLE.

The I. C. C. has refused to cut railroad freight rates. Its logic escapes us, but it is something to the effect that, even if the present rates are too high for general business recovery, a cut would make them too low for the best interests of those who think them too high.

QUERY TO A MOROSE MAN.

How many years have you been wed,
And why are you so sad?
Is it because the doctor said:
"The babe looks like his dad?"

The comb manufacturers, says Kermit A. Kahn, should heartily indorse the slogan: "We do our part."

The question of the moment is whether the Blue Eagle will lay an egg.

THE TALKING AUTOMOBILE.

It is perhaps good news that motorists are soon to have a grammar of tooting. They are not going to make less noise, says the London Times, but their noise is to have more precise and subtle meaning than it has today and the vocabulary with the horn is to be greatly enriched. But these things are going to happen only if, and insofar as, a certain ingenious Czechoslovakian inventor gets his way. What he plans is to teach drivers to use a Morse code so that they can talk to each other.

Motorists are a competitive lot. Unfortunately there is all too little scope for their pretensions, because the prices of cars and their powers are not secrets. But the owner-driver of the small car will be able to outshine the best in wit and rhetoric and new reputations can be made.

There Would Have Been No Prohibition If Saloons Hadn't Been Vile

By Robert Quillen.

EVILS contains the seed of their own destruction. Every school boy knows that.

But merely knowing a thing isn't worth much unless you can use the knowledge to solve problems and avoid troubles.

If everybody had remembered that evils destroy themselves, a number of crippled veterans who were driven to suicide might have found life more endurible.

Last March, when Congress was passing bills without reading them, the wrath of taxpayers prompted a measure to reform the pension system.

It was a measure uniquely effective, but it went too far. It killed the blight by killing the tree. It removed chiselers from the pension roll, but it also robbed wounded veterans of their just compensation. Maimed and helpless men, unable to earn a dollar, were notified that their pension would be cut to $6 a month.

In June, Congress discovered what it had done and made tardy amends. It decided that no veteran's compensation for a service-connected disability should be reduced more than 25 per cent. That placed a limit on injustice, but it didn't benefit the despairing ones who ended their lives when hope was gone.

Now, who bears the blame for the wrong that was done? The majority in Congress? You must go back farther than that. If firemen damage goods with water, you must blame the man who set the fire.

Every injustice done to wounded and disabled veterans lies at the door of those who abused the Nation's gratitude. If none but the deserving had obtained pensions, there would have been no scandal or menace. And when the undeserving raided the Treasury and thus made the pension system an intolerable evil, they planted the seed for a harvest of wrath that destroyed the innocent with the guilty.

It always happens that way. Any uncurbed evil goes too far and thus invites destruction. And woe to the innocent who are in bad company when the score is settled.

Watch now for a repetition of history. Repeal will find many States without laws to control liquor. And liquor, unless it is adequately controlled, will quickly become such an evil as to invite destruction.

Given enough rope, the unjust and unrighteous inevitably hang themselves.

Comment of the Press

Happy Jack Garner.
Kansas City Times.

The mysterious disappearance of Vice President Garner since the adjournment of Congress is now explained. He had no time to take a hand in the hectic application of the NRA or other phases of the new deal because he was fishing in Texas.

This observation is not made in a spirit of criticism, but rather with conscious envy. No man can enjoy fishing if he lets other affairs possess his mind. The unbroken fishing program of John Nance Garner implies that nothing is interfering with his enjoyment. And why should it? "Hath not old custom made this life more sweet, more free from peril than the envious court?" This life, "exempt from public haunt," where even the fishing boats probably are exempt from NRA, where lake and stream invite and forms and observances are in the discard—this is the life for a Vice President who knows his place and happens to like it.

To Study Hawaii.
Detroit News.

During the closing days of the late special session of Congress, a Senate filibuster defeated the Roosevelt bill, giving the President power to appoint a nonresident Governor of Hawaii. In the 10 weeks since, the Hawaiian appointment has not been made, and it is said that the administration of Gov. Judd, Republican, whose term ended early in July, may be extended until next year. Assuming the President still insisting, his Hawaiian bill probably could be put through soon after January, 1934, when the first regular session of Congress meets.

Meantime, that outstanding Roosevelt adviser, Prof. Raymond Moley, is scheduled to go to Hawaii and report on the conditions and needs there. Moley's high rating as an investigator of laxities in policing, in the prosecuting agencies and in the courts, which produce widespread crime, it seems evident, enters into his selection for this Hawaiian mission.

Politics Would Spoil All.
Springfield Republican.

The future of economic control through the Government, now being tested on a great scale, plainly is at stake. The most impressive criticisms of its express the doubt that under traditional American conditions of political patronage in all Government activities, a high degree of excellence in the administration of a "planned economy" can be realized in practice. On the actual record of the past there is much to support this skepticism. Political jobbery, large concessions to the pressure for spoils from politicians would ruin the entire emergency effort of the Federal Government.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

The Little Streets.

Accidents will happen, but still many of them shouldn't.
With just a little thought and care
'tis certain that they wouldn't.
The streets are made for traffic, but what motorist can say
He doesn't know the little streets are where the children play?

'Tis hard to teach a tiny tot who has no ground to play on
That when his ball rolls in the street the curbing he must stay on;
And yet it harder seems to be to teach some drivers wild
That they must watch the little streets or they may kill a child.

Sometimes the youngsters are to blame.
They're thoughtless and they're dareful.
But it's a grown-up's duty while he's driving to be careful.
And every driver of a car unto himself should say:
"The little residential streets are where the children play!"

I've little patience with the man who down some road goes humming
And leaves it to the children to know just how fast he's coming.
I think the task of watchfulness
the grown-ups ought to bear,
And when they drive the little streets, look out for children there.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

I, FOR one, am in favor of giving Prof. Moley another chance, of letting him go away and make another and entirely new entry into the Nation's Capital and begin all over again. For one thing he is a fellow columnist and we fellows must either hang together or we will hang separately, as somebody has so wittily said.

Bargeron.

No man ever tried harder than the professor to keep his feet on the ground. If he is given another chance I am satisfied he will do it. Bigger lights than he would have fallen earlier had they been subjected to the same pressure. We have, in fact, seen them fall without showing one-half of the resistance the professor displayed.

From the very beginning there was something in the back of the man's mind that kept telling him what was ahead. He fought it successfully until he fell into evil hands.

* * * *

THE plain truth is, there is no one in the crowd innately more modest and retiring than the professor; no one more approachable and friendly. And, while in the new pastime which we have of publicly weighing mentalities of members of the brain trust, the professor's has not always been found to weigh the most, it is my humble opinion his mind will assay with the rest.

Some of the local mind-weighers prefer Prof. Berle; others Prof. Tugwell, and so on. If I had to make a quick choice in the present market of minds I would take Prof. Moley; indeed, I would. I may be biased in his favor because in the few weeks he has been a columnist he has attained that perfect state of being able to write 1,000 words without saying a thing. It takes some columnists years to reach this.

* * * *

THE professor never got a fair break in this new deal. Instead, it broke all around him and with the suddenness and fury of a storm. He was catapulted into the limelight before he had an opportunity to get his bearings. The others eased in later and had a chance to sleep off their mental intoxication before the cameras got to them.

Friendly newspapermen unintentionally are responsible for his trouble. They began referring to him as the brain trust. They liked him, appreciated his ability, and, wanting a quick term to describe him, labeled him the brain trust. From then on the man was in the limelight and almost as much sought after as Mr. Roosevelt himself.

After all, we are used to Presidents here in Washington, but a brain trust—here was something we wanted to meet. It is no surprise at all that we got to staring at him, looking intently in an effort to see how the molecules functioned in such a mind as this.

I don't think we were rude because Mr. Roosevelt had laid down the rule that things were to be like goldfish in a bowl. And we Americans like to see; certainly, anything that is free.

* * * *

PROF. TUGWELL, the professor's colleague, of course has slipped snugly into his new setting and is doing well. He, too, has become a columnist, and the unfairness of it is that no outcry has attended him such as marked Prof. Moley's entry into the field.

The breaks simply favored Prof. Tugwell, that's all. He was never subjected there at the outset to the limelight pressure that Prof. Moley was. And also he got his disciplining early in the game and at a time when it attracted no notice.

It was when Mr. Roosevelt was at Warm Springs just before his inauguration. In an interview with a New York newspaperman Prof. Tugwell outlined Mr. Roosevelt's program, and at a time when Mr. Roosevelt didn't know what it was himself.

It caused considerable commotion in the President's camp. An analysis of the story, though, showed Prof. Tugwell hadn't really outlined much. Nevertheless, he was told the incident should be a lesson to him.

Prof. Moley made his serious mistake, of course, when he got to running with Herbert Bayard Swope; when he went off to London with him. All of us know that those were Herbert's doings in London, not the professor's. The professor should have known he couldn't keep up with Herbert. None of us can.

BEARDS COMING BACK.

In all the accounts of the visit of the Italian flying fleet the commander has been described invariably as the "young, bearded Gen. Balbo," as if wearing a beard was like appearing at breakfast in a swallow-tail coat. Yet, if rumor is to be believed, observes the Boston Transcript, the fashion of growing beards is coming back, as that fashion has had a way of doing every little while since the Assyrian monarchy pictured on its bas-reliefs the curled and permanently waved beard of Ashurnasirpal. It is only little more than 50 years since the last full-bearded President sat in the White House, and beards in some form or other had then been generally worn by our Presidents back to John Quincy Adams, the Piccadilly weepers of Van Buren having enjoyed the greatest reclame, for they were snow-white, ambrosial, by no means drooping to indicate dejection, but standing out like gonfalons in a stiff wind.

All in all, there should be no sadness in this contemplation of the beard's return, for though women have invaded man's field in so many quarters, cutting off their hair, wearing slacks, competing with him in the business world, going to Congress, he can here make a last heroic stand with his whiskers.

Italian Envoy Is Training Ship's Guest

Washington Society Girls Also Entertained at Feast on Deck.

THE AMBASSADOR OF Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, went to Baltimore yesterday to attend the dinner given last night by officers of the two Italian training ships, Amerigo Vespucci and Cristoforo Colombo. The real Italian dinner was served on the decks of the latter, which were hung with colored lights, and an orchestra played during the evening. The guests included a group of young women who had helped entertain the young officers during their brief visit in Washington and Baltimore, and a number of American naval officers.

The Minister of Albania, Mr. Faik Konitza, has closed his apartment at the Mayflower and has started on a series of visits in the North. He will spend some time at Swampscott, Mass., and in Newport, and en route to Washington, will visit on Long Island with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Farwell, at their home at Siasconset.

The Minister of Jugoslavia, Dr. Leonide Pitamic, will be the ranking guest at the luncheon to be given today by the Minister of Roumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila, for the group of his countrymen visiting in Washington en route to Europe from the Century of Progress Exposition.

Minister Sze, of China, Guest at Watch Hill.

The Minister of China, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, will return to Washington today from Watch Hill, R. I., where he has been the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Hewitt Myers.

The Charge d'Affaires of Belgium, Viscount de Lantsheere, will return to Washington tomorrow after spending a week in and near New York.

The Secretary of War, Mr. George H. Dern, who returned to Washington several days ago from the West, has with him his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Dern, who will spend some time with her father before she returns to the University of Utah. Miss Dern plans to spend her holidays in Washington and will take part in the debutante festivities of the coming season.

Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the acting Secretary of the Treasury, with their three children, Jane, David and Mary, have gone to Michigan to remain until the end of the summer.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Harold E. Payer, is in his Cleveland home, where Mrs. Payer joined him Saturday. He will return to their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel the middle of the week. Mr. Payer will probably remain in Ohio until after Labor Day.

Miss Mary K. Lamberton Engaged to Merkel Landis.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary K. Lamberton, of Washington and Carlisle, Pa., to Mr. Merkel Landis, president of the Carlisle Trust Co., was announced yesterday in Carlisle. The marriage will take place Thursday morning at the summer home of Miss Lamberton, The Mill, Pine Grove Furnace. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Hatch Sterrett, rector of All Souls' Episcopal Church, Washington, of which Miss Lamberton is a member.

Miss Lamberton is the daughter of the Late Rear Admiral Benjamin P. Lamberton, who was chief of staff for Admiral Dewey at the Battle of Manila Bay. Her philanthropic work and interest in the historical restoration of the section near Carlisle are well known. Her summer home, in the heart of the Michauz Forest, is one of the show places of the resort section. In the days of the ore mining there it was an old mill.

Mr. Landis is known as the originator and developer of the Christmas savings fund system, which has spread throughout the country. He is a local historian as was his father, the late Capt. J. B. Landis. He is a graduate of Dickinson College, of which he is a trustee, and of the Dickinson School of Law.

Dr. Pitamic Chief Guest at Ambassador Davila's Luncheon.

Capt. and Mrs. Ralph H. Wooten, who have been spending some time at Wardman Park Hotel, are leaving today for Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where Capt. Wooten has been transferred.

Miss Mae Leesnitzer has motored to Lake Champlain, where she will stay two weeks. She will then return to Washington and be joined by her sister, Miss Brownley Leesnitzer, on a trip to Chicago.

Miss Brownley Leesnitzer will return to Cornell University the latter part of the month, entering her senior year.

Mme. Marcel Dunant, of Geneva, Switzerland, who spent a few days here several weeks ago, is back in Washington for a short stay, and is at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Dr. Ellison and Daughter Entertained at Warrenton.

Dr. Everett Monroe Ellison and his eldest daughter, Miss Alice Elizabeth Ellison, were the week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. John T. Sprague on their country estate, Dunworth, near Warrenton, Va.

Mr. Herman Reisch, of Fohnsdorf, Austria, is a guest at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Parkhill and Miss Charlotte Parkhill, are at the Hotel Lincoln, New York City, for a brief stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Aldridge, accompanied by their young child, arrived here a day or two ago from their home in Brookline, Mass., and they are occupying a suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, of Chicago, arrived over the week-end and are at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The wedding of Miss Isabelle McDonald, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles M. McDonald, to Mr. Irving Middleton Ramsdell, will take place August 22.

Until four months ago, Col. McDonald was stationed in Washington, where his daughter was a popular member of the service set. At present they are living at the South Shore Country Club in Chicago.

Mr. Ramsdell is a member of the trio of writers who call themselves Kirby Williams, and who have published "C. V. C. Murders" and "The Opera Murders," through the firm of Doubleday-Doran. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Ramsdell, of Milwaukee.

-:- The Federal Diary -:- By Morgan Baker -:-

ALL aboard for the World's Fair at Chicago as guests of The Washington Post's Federal Diary!

The Federal Diary Popularity Contest yesterday got off to a flying start as many persons began clipping the nomination coupons to select the three most popular women and men in Government service as winners of six prizes.

Baker.

And The Post has chosen prizes that will be exceptionally welcome in this hot summer of readjustments, furloughs and evolution from the depression.

An all-expense tour of one week to Chicago will be awarded to the most popular woman and man. The winner in each division of first prize will be allowed to take a companion, making four all-expense tours offered to Chicago.

The next most popular woman and man will get a week-end trip to Virginia Beach with all expenses paid.

Two gold wrist watches will be given as third prize, one to a woman and the other to a man.

To avoid possible coercion and to treat those in the lower salary brackets, chief clerks and higher officials are not eligible as participants.

The winners will be determined by votes. A nominating coupon is printed in this column today and will appear daily the remainder of this week. Clip it and send or bring it to The Federal Diary Contest Editor on the second floor of The Washington Post Building. On receipt of the nominating coupon, properly filled out, 250 ballots will be given.

Contest Rules:

The contest began yesterday and officially ends Sunday midnight, September 3. Winners will be announced on or before September 6.

2. Government employes, excepting chief clerks and superiors, are eligible in the contest.

3. The contest is divided into two divisions. One selecting the most popular woman and one the most popular man.

4. The person receiving the highest total votes in each division will be awarded first prize. The next highest total votes in each division will be awarded second prize and the third highest total in each division will receive third prize.

5. In the event of ineligibility of any division winner, the contestant with the next highest total votes will automatically be adjudged the winner. Should any of the winning contestants be unable to accept the prize, the contestant with the next highest total votes will be eligible.

Must Be Federal Employe.

6. Votes are not transferable.

7. No information will be given to contestants as to their own or other contestants' standing, except through the Federal Diary columns.

8. The Nomination Ballot will give each contestant 50 starting votes. It is necessary for each contestant to be nominated before votes officially will be accepted. Only one Nomination Ballot will be accepted for each contestant.

9. The contest judges reserve the right to deduct votes from the standings that have not been submitted according to the rules.

10. Persons voting must be employes of the Government. Each voter is allowed to vote for only one woman and one man.

11. Ballots MUST be submitted in packages of 25.

Method of Procedure.

Clip Nominating Ballot from the Federal Diary columns of The Washington Post. Fill in and mail or bring ballots to The Federal Diary Contest Editor.

Two hundred and fifty ballots will be either mailed or given to the nominator. Additional blank ballots may be obtained from the Contest Editor in exchange for an equal number of signed ballots.

A Bear of a Story.

Do bears read? "No!" is the impulsive answer. Maybe you are wrong. This story, told by an authority in the Bureau of Animal Industry, Agriculture, is vouched for by several others.

In California, during a campaign against the foot-and-mouth disease, crew commissaries with large stocks of canned goods, were maintained at camps. Once established, it was not long thereafter when evidence developed indicating that plunderers with a decided taste for fruits were at work, rapidly depleting stocks. Sentinels were posted and it was discovered that hungry bruins, visiting the stores, would, after sighting around them, disregard the canned vegetables and with almost human acumen select the canned fruits, claw off the tops evenly and ravenously devour the contents.

Bears are recognized as showing intelligence in many ways, but this is the first instance (without consulting Dr. Mann, of National Zoological Park) where these animals have been detected as readers.

Today—We Begin the

Semi-Annual Selling of Furniture, Floor Coverings Draperies, Lamps and Radios

With Savings That Are Probably the Most Important Ever Offered in This Semi-Annual Event

Our Semi-Annual Selling prices are not based on today's increased replacement costs, but are fixed by the extremely low prices we paid several months ago for this merchandise.

In the furniture market—manufacturers are having to pay more for their raw materials and their labor . . . lumber costs are up 25% to 40% . . . upholstery fabrics are up 5% to 25% . . . cotton goods are subject to a "processing" tax . . . all metals are higher priced . . . the working of the industrial codes has brought higher wages—and shorter hours for both men and machinery. Consequently, furniture factories are making it plain that stock replacements of retail stores will have to be made at HIGHER PRICES—and later output of all factories is expected to cost still more.

All these increases are in line with the new policy to increase employment, raise wages, and enlarge the buying power of the American family.

Because of these facts, as we start our Semi-Annual Selling, the values in this event are doubly significant. The merchandise offered was bought at the record lows that prevailed several months ago, before the acceleration of costs and prices—and is priced in harmony with what we paid for it then. If you take advantage of the offerings, you may refurnish your home at prices that are markedly lower than those that can normally be offered at a later time.

Look in tonight's edition of The Evening Star for detailed information about many of the hundreds of values on sale Monday in The Semi-Annual Selling.

About All Merchandise Prices

It will pay you to buy whatever you need, in all lines of merchandise, during August. We say this to you because we believe you are interested in buying the things you need at the lowest possible cost—and because we believe that retail prices must soon advance in the same proportion that commodity and wholesale prices have already increased.

We have on hand sufficient stocks to supply our customers' needs for a limited time. As replacements are made, prices will have to be accordingly higher.

Half-Forgotten Romances of American History

The Story of Patrick Henry Is the Story of Two Lovely Women.

America's Patriot Found Romance in Youth and in Later Days.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

The late Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives and candidate for President in 1912, once said of William Wirt's "Life of Patrick Henry:" "I learned how to be an American from that book!"

There was much sagacity in that remark, for Patrick Henry will live in American history as our first great patriot, a man whose heart so glowed with the deathless love of liberty that it gave wings to his words and he voiced for a people its aspiration to be free in a speech so inspired that its echoes ring still through the Halls of Time.

Bred in Heroic Soil.

Patrick Henry was bred in heroic soil, a land that gave in the opening chapter of our national history a magnificent group of leaders who took the high risk of forming a new nation indifferent to the fate that might befall them at the hands of the tyrant overseas. Every school boy can quote that speech of his in the quaint St. John's Church in Richmond, when he cried aloud, in one of the immortal phrases of mankind: "As for me—give me liberty—or give me death!"

Under the spur of that slogan, America has marched to a half dozen wars, her army with banners, in each instance, secure in the righteousness of the cause of freedom. It proved anew that the orator may lead a people as well as a military chieftain. From the American Revolution really began on that day when Patrick Henry, a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, with flashing eye and daring mien, threw down the gauntlet to England's king.

Set Free Men's Souls.

Until that moment the divine right of kings had been more or less accepted by the colonies. But Henry's words set free the souls of men and the reign of King George III was doomed thereafter.

T. R. must have rejoiced in Patrick Henry, for he was the father of seventeen children, by two wives, and a character in a picturesque romance with one of Virginia's best known belles, Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge, related by marriage to John Dandridge, the father of Martha Washington.

Romance had entered into the life of Patrick Henry before he met vivacious Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge. While a mere lad, he had met and fallen in love with a certain Sarah Shelton, the daughter of an innkeeper in Hanover County. The courtship was brief and the 18-year-old lad rode home again, his bride on the saddle behind him. The pair set up housekeeping on a farm of some 300 poor acres of arid Virginia land, called Pine Slash, and Patrick Henry, his dreams of the law temporarily vanished, became a farmer, and a mighty poor one at that, if history is to be believed.

Becomes Storekeeper.

It was not overlong before Sarah Shelton Henry had borne her young husband no less than six children. When Patrick was 21, the farm house at Pine Slash burned down and he opened a store. He does not seem to have been more of a success at this mercantile pursuit than was Abraham Lincoln. At 24 this venture was over and, with an increasing quiver of children, Patrick Henry once more faced the world.

A few months before Patrick Henry has visited the home of his second wife, although he knew it not at the time. It was the hospitable house of Capt. Nathaniel West Dandridge, formerly of the British navy, but retired now through a handsome patrimony brought to him by his wife, Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge, daughter of Virginia's notable governor, Alexander Spotswood. At that time little Dorothea was not of a marriageable age, besides Patrick Henry was still a married man—a very much married one—in fact. But out of that visit came the impulse to study law and farming and, storekeeping forgotten, Patrick started out on the path that was to bring him to immortality and fame.

It rather equals things up to recall the forgotten first wives of famous men. Sarah Shelton was one of these and history has recorded more of her successor, Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge. Of course, the score is rather evened up when one remembers how often the first husbands of women who afterward marry world celebrities are overshadowed by the prominence of the second husbands of their good wives. Seldom are their names remembered when the second husbands are mentioned.

First Husbands Forgotten.

What does the world know of poor John Parke Custis, who preceded George Washington as the husband of the dashing Martha Dandridge, the belle of old Williamsburg. Where is the record writ of Bathhurst Skelton, the first man to be dearly beloved by Martha Wayles, who, when she signed the marriage register with Thomas Jefferson, wrote in the round, unformed hand of the period: "Martha Wayles Skelton." And history has even forgotten the first name of young Todd, the first husband of the piquant Dolly Madison, the gayest of the White House ladies.

So we must devote a few lines to Sarah Shelton before she makes her bow and exits from the stage of Patrick Henry's life. It is the spring of 1776, immortal year of freedom, and Patrick Henry is bereaved. He has just lost the wife of his youth—his good mate for 21 years. She had borne him three sons and three daughters, the eldest of whom, Martha, already married to Col. John Fontaine, took charge of her father's household. With Sarah gone, the family homestead in Hanover, Scotchtown, lost much of its charm for Henry. He rejoiced when he could be about his duties as a member of the Virginia House of Burgesses, the first legislative assembly in the history of the world.

Engrossed by Politics.

For a time politics engrossed all of Henry's attention and he rose to the governorship, still bereaved of the solace of a woman's bright eyes and mourning the good Sarah. But he had not known his real romance as yet. Little Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge was now a fascinating belle. They had met again and by 1777 Henry was finding his dreams of politics and revolution interfered with somewhat by thoughts of the fair Dorothea.

The courtship of Dorothea Spotswood Dandridge by Patrick Henry was welcomed by her family. In fact, her mother mentioned her child "as the bride of the most considerable man in the Commonwealth."

Their marriage took place on the 9th of October, 1777. A contemporary speaking of the bridegroom declared: "Patrick Henry was perhaps the best husband in the world. It is said that he never took any important step without consulting Dolly, his wife."

Mother of Seven Sons.

"Dolly" bore him seven sons. Of their daughters, the eldest was also named Dorothea Spotswood Henry. It is she whose portrait survives as one of the Sharpless classics, and she is said to have resembled closely her mother, of whom no pictured likeness can be discovered in this generation.

Fifty years old now, in debt, and with a young family, Henry set up housekeeping at a new home, Salisbury, not far from Hampton-Sidney College. It is said that Henry dearly loved his children and grandchildren. His romance still continued with Dolly Spotswood. Her home was a model one and the Henrys enjoyed the social life of the community.

Finally the Henrys established their home in Red Hill, where Patrick was to pass the remainder of his days. Other romances were known there as the Henry daughters found husbands and passed out of the shelter of the family rooftree. It was the sunset of life for Patrick and Dorothea Henry and a beautiful one it was, too. Speaking of their life at Red Hill a friend wrote: "Towards the close of day, in summertime, he (Patrick Henry) took the breeze on the lawn. Around him played his children, to whom he was greatly attached, and whom he treated as companions and friends. He was very fond of music, and oftentimes the sweet notes of his flute or violin, echoing on the evening air, broke the stillness of the valley."

In 1799, just at the edge of the new century, like his great leader, George Washington, Patrick Henry died, on June 6. His end was peaceful—in the full faith. "Oh, how wretched should I be at this moment," he exclaimed, a few hours before his death, "if I had not made my peace with God."

Romance Remained Sweet.

Dorothea Spotswood Henry stood by, with her children and his grouped around her. Their romance had remained true and sweet to the end.

A proof of this is to be found in the fact that although, in after life, Mrs. Henry remarried, becoming the wife of Judge Edmund Winston, Patrick Henry's cousin, she requested on her own death that she be buried beside the body of Patrick Henry in the garden of Red Hill. Her request was fulfilled and on her tombstone are these words: "To the memory of Dorothea Dandridge, wife of Patrick Henry." The inscription on Henry's tomb ends with these words: "His fame his best epitaph."

States Fast Joining Crusade To Reduce Farm Surpluses

Marginal Lands Taken From Crop Use; Game Preserves Started.

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—States are rapidly joining up in the Roosevelt conservation program with intent of withdrawing marginal lands from cultivation to aid in reducing farm surpluses and to increase fish and game preserves and parks.

Instead of producing poor yields unprofitably, to add to the farmers woes, under guidance of the Federal and State governments thousands of acres are being utilized profitably for the sportsman and scenic lover.

Legislatures of many States acted recently to reemploy these acres, a survey showed today, in conjunction with the vast Federal reforestation efforts of the civilian conservation corps of hitherto unemployed.

Minnesota's Legislature authorized the State to offer agricultural lands to isolated settlers within its vast forests, aiming to promote protection from fires and to consolidate its forests.

County Zoning Begun.

Wisconsin's conservation department and the State College of Agriculture are classifying lands and turning acres unfit for agriculture into county forest tracts. State funds aid in growing new timber. Oneida County was the first in the country, Wisconsin officials said, to enact a county zoning law, restricting portions of marginal land for recreation and forestry and prohibiting submarginal lands for agriculture.

The 1933 Tennessee Legislature authorized the governor to set aside State-owned and tax-delinquent lands as State forests.

The California legislature approved a Federal subsidy to portions of farm lands withdrawn from cultivation. Montana established grazing districts as a means of retiring marginal lands from cultivation after title had passed to a county because of tax delinquency.

Lieut. Gov. N. G. Kraschel, of Iowa, has proposed that the Government purchase unproductive Iowa land and rent it for grazing.

New Iowa State Parks.

A 25-year program in Iowa provides for the creation of additional State parks and fish protection. California recently limited the netting of sport sea fish. The Minnesota State conservation commission abolished commercial fishing and will do its own seining of streams. Missouri put a new length limit on fish to be caught.

Nebraska established two new game preserves. Florida is enlarging Welaka Lake where 1,000,000 black bass are hatched yearly for streams.

A special Massachusetts commission is studying the possibility of developing ponds for recreational purposes and developing lands near water sheds for play needs.

New Jersey hopes to acquire 250,000 to 1,000,000 acres for its forest and park program when funds are available. Its forestry program has been advanced 25 years by the Federal Conservation Corps, the State forester said.

Big Strike Looms In Dress Industry

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—The international and the joint board of the Dress and Waistmakers Union will conduct a referendum vote tomorrow to determine whether the union shall call a general strike in the dress industry. The balloting will be conducted in various halls throughout Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn.

Anticipating a vote in favor of a general strike, the union has made an etxensive organization drive in New York City and in every community in Connecticut and New Jersey, where dresses are produced.

Whales Play Near Oregon Shore.

Delake, Oreg., Aug 13 (AP).—Weekend visitors to this Coast resort found a new diversion in watching two large whales at play. The mammals, 60 feet long, splashed to the surface frequently and sent great spouts of water into the air. Unmindful of the crowds, the whales remained several hours, at times within 20 feet of the shore.

Only Eight Prerevolutionary Houses Left Standing in Georgetown Today

Leota Soars Draws Historic Map of Famous Section for Colonial Dames.

One stone has been left unturned in the frenzied restoration of Georgetown. Miss Leota Soars, who has just completed an historic map of Georgetown for the Colonial Dames of America, found it in the garden of Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln just where it had been put in 1751.

It is only a crude field stone, but Robert Todd Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, knew the legend about the rock on his N street property and instructed his gardener never to disturb it. In her intensive study of Georgetown history Miss Soars checked up on the story and discovered it is actually one of the boundary marks of the original 60 acres of land bought from George Gordon and George Beall to make Georgetown.

But that is one of the few landmarks of eighteenth century Georgetown that Miss Soars found unchanged. All in all there are just eight buildings still standing that witnessed the glories of the old shipping days on the Potomac.

"The house that is the least changed," Miss Soars revealed, "is the old Mason-Worthington place at the corner of Prospect avenue and Thirty-fifth street. Ivy has grown over the windows. It is no longer the center of activity as it was when Dr. Worthington lived there, but the house is just about as it was." John Mason, son of George Mason, of Gunston Hall, built the place in 1783 and later sold it to Dr. Worthington, first president of the medical society.

Preferred George Town.

Just a block down the street is the house which belonged to America's first Secretary of the Navy, Benjamin Stoddert. From his terraced garden Mr. Stoddert could review the American fleet as it sailed into the important Georgetown harbor. In a letter to a friend, Mr. Stoddert explained exactly why he chose to live in Georgetown: "I was urged by my friends to fix myself in Baltimore or Alexandria, but I had reasoned myself into a decided preference for George Town, then (at the end of 1783) entirely destitute of every appearance of being commercial. Still I said that no place in this quarter of the Union, not even Baltimore, was convenient to so great a proportion of products of the country as George Town and in a state of peace that the commerce of such a place must depend in a great degree on the products of the country, and that this position be so correct that the trade of Baltimore and Alexandria would decline beyond the conception of common minds." Mr. Stoddert unhappily mortgaged his home too heavily and it passed out of the family's hands.

Student Rules.

"Then there is the old North Building of Georgetown University," Miss Soars pointed out, "that was built in 1795 shortly after John Carroll, first archbishop of Baltimore, selected the site for the school." In perusing old records she came across a Georgetown College bulletin with this quaint announcement:

"Every student shall pay on entering college $10. He shall bring a mattress, a pillow, two pillow cases, two pairs of sheets, four blankets and a counterpane, or pay $6 per annum for the use of bed and bedding. He must also bring with him one suit of clothes as a uniform, which is in winter, a blue cloth coat and pantaloons with a black velvet waistcoat, in summer, white pantaloons with a black silk waistcoat are used.

"He must likewise bring with him two suits for daily wear for which no particular color is prescribed, six shirts, six pairs of stockings, six pocket handkerchiefs, three pairs of shoes, a hat and a cloak or a great coat, also a silver spoon."

Miss Soars mused, "I never did find out who built the old stone house on M street which some people claim George Washington used as his headquarters when he was laying out Washington." She explained that she could find no documentary evidence to back up such a claim. The only reference to this house was a newspaper advertisement offering the place for rent. It merely referred to it as "the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Smith."

Marbury House Disguised.

A store front and many coats of paint have disguised, almost beyond recognition, the Marbury house at Thirty-fourth and M streets. But it was a stately mansion when Uriah Forrest built it back in 1792.

"St. John's Church was started in 1796," Miss Soars stated, as she thumbed through a thick pad of notes. "But they ran out of funds after the building had gone up to the first range of windows. The unfinished shell stood there for some time and I found several facetious references to it as the 'swallow barn.'"

Dumbarton house, the national headquarters of the Colonial Dames of America, used to be known as Belle Vue. The house was moved from its original location on the old George Beall property to make way for the erection of the Q street bridge.

Georgetown has completed a strange cycle of history. Again it has become a fashionable place to live. This year two Cabinet members and many Government officials made it their home. That is the way things were back in the days of George Washington, and he did not like it. Time after time he asked the Government officials to give up the luxury of living in the City of Georgetown and move to Washington, as he considered that more patriotic.

Map Maker Finds Few Old Georgetown Landmarks

Miss Leota Soars, who has been making an intensive study of Georgetown history discovers little of the eighteenth century still remains there. She has just completed an historic map for the Colonial Dames.

Airmail Stops At Hagerstown Airport Sought

Improvements Planned for Field on Washington-to-Cleveland Route.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—A. H. Wait, of the airport division of the Department of Commerce, yesterday conferred here with the directors of the chamber of commerce, and will recommend changes to bring the Hagerstown Airport up to the required standard, so that passenger and mail planes now passing over on the Washington-to-Cleveland route can make it a regular stop.

The airport has been maintained by the Kreider-Reisner Aircraft Corporation, a subsidiary of the Fairchild Aircraft Corporation, which manufactures planes at its local plant.

It is proposed to have the city take over the airport, which is on the Shenandoah Trail four miles north of here. A meeting is planned with the mayor and city council to see if the city will not purchase the airport and then apply under the public works program for funds to make the airport a standard one.

The field now is used only for emergency landings for planes traveling the Washington-Cleveland air mail route. A new highway will be completed from here to the airport by September 1, and it is planned to place underground the telephone and power lines which now border the east end of the field. It is also proposed to enlarge the field and light it for night landings.

Miss Frances Giannini Weds.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Mr. Virgil Homer Tyler, of Schuyler, Nelson County, and Miss Frances Audrey Giannini, of this city, were married yesterday by the Rev. Willard A. Irving, at his home in Locust Grove. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Tyler, of Albemarle County, and the bride is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. Anderson Giannini, of this city.

Dogs Play Various White House Roles

Former Roosevelt Pet Has Reputation; He Chased Diplomat Up Tree.

The No. 1 tags of shining metal worn by the proud White House dogs—Meggie, the faithful, and Major, cannibalistically inclined—recall other princes and princesses of dogdom who have resided in the Executive Mansion.

In the days of the first Roosevelts, passersby were amazed to see in the crotch of one of the White House trees a very excitable Frenchman sputtering in several languages while below panted a determined looking bulldog, a special pal of President Theodore Roosevelt.

The occupant of the tree was none other than His Excellency M. Jules Jusserand, envoy of the French to this country. The Roosevelt bulldog attacked him while he was walking through the White House grounds to join the President in a game of tennis. The gallant, but cautious, diplomat remained in his tree until released by President Roosevelt.

Then there was Laddie Boy, of blessed memory, the pet of President Harding. He was inconsolable after the death of his master and fretted so he had to be sent away. Laddie Boy was a one-man dog and had all the noble canine virtues.

The Coolidge regime contributed Prudence Prim, the demure white collie Mrs. Coolidge "dressed up" in a green straw hat with green ribbons tied under her chin for a veterans' garden party. And Rob Roy, the proud white collie whom Christy coaxed into the portrait he painted of Mrs. Coolidge in the White House grounds.

With the Hoovers to Palo Alto went Weeje, the Norwegian elk hound, and several other pets, friends of little Peter, Peggy Anne and Joan Hoover, grandchildren of former President and Mrs. Hoover.

Apple Crop Bigger In Old Dominion

Estimated at 2,265,000 Barrels; 1,963,000 Total Last Year.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Virginia's commercial apple crop is estimated at 2,265,000 barrels as compared with 1,963,000 barrels last year and 2,720,000 barrels for the five-year average, Henry M. Taylor, agricultural statistician, reported today.

While the State is expected to produce more apples this year than last, Shenandoah Valley district is expected to have a total production of only about 70 per cent of last year.

The commercial apple crop for the United States, based uopn August 1 production, is forecast at 28,371,000 barrels, as compared with 28,645,000 barrels last year and 32,605,000 barrels for the five-year average. The State of Washington is expected to produce 7,920,000 barrels this year, or one-fourth of the national total.

Sons of America's Sessions Planned

National Camp Will Meet in Wilmington on Sept. 26.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—A tentative program of the National Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, to be held in Wilmington, Del., September 26-28 inclusive, was made public through national officers here today, giving for the first time the exact dates.

Herman Miller, national secretary, in outlining the program, stated that on Sunday preceding the convention, a flag will be presented to the Boy Scouts of Delaware, the address to be made by National President Orrin E. Boyle. This service will be held in Delaware Avenue Baptist Church. On Monday, there will be exercises, including a reception for the delegates and their friends, with addresses of welcome by the Mayor of Wilmington and probably the Governor of Delaware.

H. N. Bradley, of Charles Town, W. Va., national vice president, is in line for the presidency at the Delaware meeting.

Engagement Is Announced.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester H. Adelberg, of Louisville, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Adele, to Dr. Ernest G. Scott, of Lynchburg, Va. Miss Adelberg has frequently visited her sister, Mrs. Louis Chauvenet, jr., at her home, Tallwood, this county. Dr. Scott is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Scott, of Lynchburg.

MONEY IN MOTION SPELLS PROSPERITY

Banks are the media through which money is kept in motion or circulation. It is an established fact that the greater the circulation of money the more prosperous our nation will be. The same fact applies to your own community.

When you deposit in this Bank that part of your money for which you have no immediate and constructive use, you are not only helping yourself, you are helping your neighbors and you become of economic worth to your community.

For nearly half a century the Washington Loan and Trust Company has had an active and important part in the economic growth and welfare of this city. Today it occupies a stronger position than ever before and it is equipped to render an even greater service in the future. Its officials are sincerely anxious to co-operate with individuals and business organizations in their efforts to press on to a greater prosperity.

Mirror Ball Lures Birds Into Garden

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The birds were puzzled. They chirped away, but not one of them could explain it.

"It might be dangerous!" said a little sparrow.

"And it might not," said a wren.

"Who's going to find out?" asked a robin.

"I will!" declared a cardinal.

There was great excitement as he took off from a limb. He picked his course carefully, flying from one corner of the garden to the other. At last with a courageous swoop he flew close to the ground, passing close to a mirror ball newly erected on its ornate pedestal. Around and around he flew, always edging closer, then back to the tree.

"What was it?" his audience asked.

"An enormous drop of water," he told them, and there's a cardinal caught inside of it!"

All of which is a birds-eye view of an hermetically sealed garden mirror globe guarenteed to withstand the stress of sun and storm. On sale for $8.

Vacations are becoming more and more irresistible with all the new equipment the shops are providing for its enjoyment. If it keeps on this way we'll be vacationing all the time and who'll do the work? Imperturbable little robots, we predict.

A new and fascinating addition to the summer trip has just arrived on the scene—a camera and photo-coloring kit packed in an attractive case with metal lock. In includes a photo album, six bottles of liquid water colors in various shades for tinting snapshops, a camel's hair-brush, two saucers to hold water colors and complete directions for taking pictures. Don't forget when you're making out the budget for your vacation to add $1 for the new kit.

Kitchen Kits.

The housewife raises her eyebrows. "Very nice, indeed," she says. "Everything planned for the vacationer and nothing for the stay-at-homes!"

Not so! A shop which is particularly sympathetic to those about town this summer offers a kitchen kit that will delight the most immobile cook. It includes 4 dish cloths, 1 vegetable bag, 2 hot plate holders, 1 ironing board pad and an ironing board cover. Price, $1.

Cakes, four-layer creamy-looking white ones, little low chocolate ones, cup cakes in many flavors, square cakes, round cakes, cakes, cakes, cakes. Just as though they weren't enticing enough as is, a Connecticut avenue shop is displaying plates especially designed to embellish their charms.

The plates are large and provide plenty of room for the ice spread around the base of the cake. The rose print pattern adds a tempting touch. Price 75 cents.

Her home was so tastefully and carefully appointed that friends thought her income at least double what it was.

She always shopped carefully with an eye for quality, as well as appearance. And she managed to get real bargains.

The tea service was an example. It looked as though it cost a mint of money. The teapot, the sugar bowl, and cream pitcher were silver prides and joys. There was an elegance about them that couldn't be gainsaid. She was the only person who knew, for no one could guess, that they only cost $5 in an F street store.

A Little Shady.

Ship shades, otherwise designated as lamp shades with ship shapes, are among the first fall fashions in lamp lines.

A little gift shop in a fashionable hotel boasts one of the most attractive lamps in town. It is attractive, not in its intricacy of pattern, but for its simplicity and unique design.

A sapphire metal globular base is surmounted by a parchment shade, on which is appliqued an old sea-going vessel cut from map paper. Whether you buy, or merely superficially shop, it's a treat to do a little sightseeing in the direction of this lamp.

Baseball and bridge, the great American sports!

Just as sport stores specialize in bats, balls and mitts, so do mercantile houses carefully display the newest and most convenient in bridge equipment.

One large store is proudly offering what they consider the pink of perfection in bridge covers. The suede finish makes an ideal playing surface which prevents the slipping and sliding of cards.

Its waterproof quality alleviates the hostess' worry when the unwitting guest places his glass on the table and promptly overturns it. Stains are easily remedied by an application of soap and water. Price, $1.

When fall and winter come along you want to make your sun room the bright spot of your house. There'll be no sitting on the porch, no appreciating the wide open spaces of the garden. But there will be this glass-inclosed room to allay the wintry aspect.

A downtown store is showing tile-top tables in gay color combinations which will be ideal to tuck away in gloomy corners or fill up bare spots for the essential homey touch. Very small sizes, 74 cents; a little larger, 94 cents.

No matter what your color scheme, you are likely to find a match or a blend in the tile tops of the tables.

For a guest prize, a going-away present, a birthday remembrance, or whatever your present need seems to be, you'll find the hand-painted Persian pottery in a Connecticut avenue store more than likely to suit your taste. Ash trays, bowls, vases, or pitchers, designed fantastically, in a myriad of colors.

What's in Fashion?

Fashion's New Fall Silhouette Easier Fitting But Still Trim

Directed by Amos Parrish.

"What am I going to look like this fall?" Naturally you're asking that question right about now. And the answer is, "Something like last fall, but different."

Your shoulders are still going to be plenty broad, as you can see in the sketch. But they get their width in a new way.

It isn't going to be enough just to have fullness high up in the sleeves. There are all sorts of things added on the shoulders themselves to widen them.

Padded Shoulders.

Some are padded to make them stand out and up. (The sketch shows one example of this.) Others have wing-like attachments, epaulets, crests, rolls or tucks to catch the eye.

Your bodice is still going to be neatly fitted and your waistline narrow. But it's looser fitting this fall.

The bodice doesn't hug you quite so skin-tightly. Some times there's even a slight blousing.

And belts aren't pulled in so much, either. So the silhouette has an easier, more comfortable look to it. But a look which is still neat and trim.

Your skirt is still going to be straight and slim. But most skirts have low-released pleats or narrow gores to give them fullness for walking. Yet both pleats and gores are arranged so the skirt hangs straight.

How Long Are Skirts?

Is there anything new in skirt lengths? Yes, there is. Some of them are shorter.

What these are and what all the others are; is shown on a new chart which illustrates the six correct skirt lengths for all hours and occasions.

If you'd like it, we'll send you this chart on receipt of the filled-in request coupon and the proper inclosures.

Tomorrow: Fall shoes higher cut.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake,
"Leo."

If August 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 to 9 a. m., from 1 to 1:40 p. m. and from 5:45 to 6:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 to 10:40 a. m., from 2 to 2:30 p. m. and from 8:50 to 9:15 p. m.

Influences operating on this day will probably tend to induce you to drift along through the day and follow the course of least resistance. It is more than likely that you will accomplish little, and unless you force yourself to greater activity and alertness, you may lose out on something worth while.

The child born on this August 14 will perhaps prove to be an aggravating and annoying little one. He will tease his playmates a great deal and will pester his elders with a barrage of questions, more often than not of an inane sort. As these children grow older they will not be popular with those of their own age, and at school will probably not be active in school life and school doings.

If August 14 is your birthday, you would seem to have the happy faculty of being able to anticipate the future to the extent of being prepared or set for some happening. On more than one occasion, this foreseeing of events has prepared you for a shock which otherwise might have floored you. You are not, however, a psychic person, nor are your interests along those lines. You are an impersonal individual, you like most everybody you happen to meet, but you do not make any violent attachments. Your existence is not a series of emotional upheavals, wherein you attain great heights of joy only to be dashed to the depths of despair; rather, yours is more even in nature, and you are generally content and somewhat gay. You fear not the future.

If August 14 is the date of your birth, you do not readily give of your sympathies; you are inclined to feel that each person must work his own way out of his own sorrows and torments. You are not unkind, however, and when you feel that there is really something you can do to help another, you give of your time. You have qualities which would make of you a good arbitrator, for you can get people together and maintain harmony as you lead them to reach an agreement. You seldom, if ever, get angry, and when you do, it is usually quickly over. Your interest in those of the opposite sex is mild. You will probably marry late in life.

Successful people born on August 14:

John F. Hurst, M. E. bishop.

George K. Nash, lawyer and politician.

John Tipton, senator.

Park Benjamin, journalist and poet.

Red and White Gingham Plaid Beach Ensemble

Dolores Del Rio, exotic motion picture star, is seen at Malibu Beach these days in a red and white plaid gingham swimming suit with a detachable wrap-around skirt.

The gingham tunic covers a pair of red jersey trunks. The halter top ties around the neck in the new draw-string manner, leaving the back bare.

The skirt has patch pockets and large, white buttons which fasten down the side to just below the knees.

Too Much Love Deprives Child Of Pleasures

Anxious Parents Frequently Build for Unhappy Adulthood.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

Susan had been spending a week in the country with her grandparents. She came home radiant with life and happiness. A friend, on asking her if she had enjoyed herself, was startled by the prompt reply, "Oh, yes! You see I didn't have to crawl around on my stomach to keep out of people's way."

To any one who knew the child's environment the answer was not surprising. Susan was the only child of anxious parents whose whole hope of happiness was wrapped up in her.

Though actually a healthy child, her mother had convinced herself that there was in her some deep-seated trouble which was undermining her health, and peddled her from doctor to doctor looking for a diagnosis that would support her theory. Meanwhile, if Suson so much as sneezed, she was put to bed and dosed and fussed over until she almost fell ill from suggestion.

She could not go out alone lest she be run over; she could not eat this and that lest it upset her digestion, and every minute of the day and night she was conscious of being watched.

The path of an only child is no bed of roses at best, but to have it complicated with such nervous anxiety on the part of the parents makes it almost unbearable. The chances are that Susan will in time become used to the care which she now resents, and will come to demand it as her due. She will grow up a fearful, complaining woman, a burden to her husband and to her own children, and incidentally to herself.

Her parents' behavior is prompted not so much by love for Susan as by fear for themselves, and for Susan as a part of themselves. In this fear of a possible injury they are preventing their child from learning to stand on her own feet.

Food Fancy

Garnishes in Many Colors Add Tempting Touch to Plain Menu.

A tempting appearance is especially important when you're serving low-cost meats and economy dishes. Inexpensive foods can be made to look just as tempting as more costly dishes, if a little care and thought is given to preparing.

There are so many little ways of dressing up foods, suggests the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. One might group garnishes entirely by color. For example, if you want a touch of green, you can find it in a bit of home-grown parsley, or cress, or mint, some rings of left-over green pepper, a few cooked peas, small lettuce leaves or wild salad greens, celery tops, or sliced pickles, cucumber sticks, or olives.

Celery tops are yellow as well as green, and so are slices or sections of lemon. In the economy diet, the extra cost of lemons is not justified unless the lemon juice is also needed for flavor, as when lemon is squeezed over fish. Cooked sliced carrots or carrot sticks or raw grated carrot give a colorful orange garnish that also has food value at almost no cost. And, when they are plentiful, hard-cooked eggs, sliced or with the yolks riced, furnish a pleasing color note with extra food value added to spinach or hash.

Sliced tomatoes or beets, radish roses, pimiento strips, red jellies and paprika pepper all contribute red color to meat or salad dishes, while cherries, watermelon blocks, Malaga grapes and red raspberries do the same for fruit mixtures or desserts. Tomato aspic jelly is another source of bright red color for salads or a plate of cold meat.

A white border of rice or mashed potato around a brown stew or a potato salad on a plate with cold ham are examples of the decorative possibilities of a very simple contrast. When stews or hashes or creamed foods are served on golden brown toast or rounds of pastry the color as well as the flavor attracts. Mint jelly, balls or squares of white cream cheese, and in their season glazed apple rings and red-jellied apples are still other suggestions of easy, homely ways of making everyday foods tempting without expense. A dark green grape leaf under half a cantaloupe or grape fruit or a geranium or mint leaf in the iced tea may be had for the trouble of walking to the garden in many cases. Why not let them dress up economy meals as often as possible?

The Family Marketer

Housewives May Keep Food Costs Down, Despite Rise in Prices, by Judicious Selection of Produce in Season; Better Peaches to Come Later.

By Hoyt Barnett.

Straws, the kind that political writers speak of as pointing to something or another, are pointing again. This time they point definitely to higher prices for foodstuffs.

One of the straws is paper bags—the kind you get from your grocer around 25 cents worth of potatoes or a pound of beans. These bags cost the grocer 30 per cent more this week, and reports from wholesalers state that another advance will be made before the end of the week.

Whether you realize it or not, you pay for these bags. And although they are not, in themselves, important among your food expenses, their price will be added to your bill in the long run.

All types of canned and packaged goods are moving up slowly, too—a cent at a time. In many lines the price is 20 per cent or more above that of a few months ago.

Although there is nothing to be done about this advance if you insist upon buying packaged and canned goods, you still have an avenue of partial escape by taking full advantage of the fresh produce available on public markets and in retail shops.

Public Markets Crowded.

The crowds that eddied and swirled through the public markets Saturday morning testify to the economy of patronizing the producers who grow vegetables and fruits and bring them to market for your convenience.

Among the items selling at very reasonable prices are tomatoes, corn, cucumbers, cantaloupes, honeydew melons, watermelons, peppers, carrots, peaches, string beans, squash, lima beans and huckleberries.

And speaking of huckleberries, they, or blueberries, make excellent pies. But it is difficult to tell the difference between the berries without eating some. Many retailers sell them interchangeably—if you ask for blueberries, the box in front of you is blueberries. If you want huckleberries the same box is huckleberries. But the difference is that huckleberries have seeds in them.

While on the subject of berries—you can get small quantities of strawberries, the everbearing variety, and some raspberries, too. They are out of season but available.

Blackberries Are Plentiful.

Blackberries, on the other hand, are plentiful. They are coming into Washington from the Eastern Shore district and from New Jersey.

Some asparagus, too, is still coming in from Eastern Shore.

Good quality California peas and celery hearts are on the market. And cauliflower, also from California, is very good—but high. The economical housewife will wait several weeks before she serves this vegetable. It will be cheaper when the harvest begins at nearby points. And it will taste just as good, if not better.

Nice-looking fresh figs are selling at comparatively high prices. Avocados are cheaper than usual.

Peaches will be more plentiful before the end of the week. Those who plan to can them for next winter should wait a while before buying. The small ones now on the market are excellent with cream and hot biscuits.

Genuine country-cured hams are being sold at about 30 cents a pound. This is considerably higher than other hams. Some people are willing to pay the difference.

Retail Food Prices.

Eggs—Government inspected, 29 to 30 cents; extras, 24 to 26 cents; loose, mediums, 22 cents.
Butter—Prints, 31 to 33 cents; tubs, 29 to 31 cents.
Poultry—Broilers, 25 to 30 cents; fryers, 25 to 30 cents per lb.; spring baking chickens, 28 to 30 cents per lb.; heavy hens, 22 to 25 cents per lb.; medium hens, 23 to 25 cents per lb.; light hens, 19 to 21 cents per lb.
Potatoes, 3½ to 4½ cents per lb.
Peaches, 15 to 20 cents per 2½-lb. basket.
Cantaloupes, 10 cents each.
Corn, 10 cents for three ears.
Peas (California), 10 cents lb.
Lima beans (shelled), 25 cents a quart.

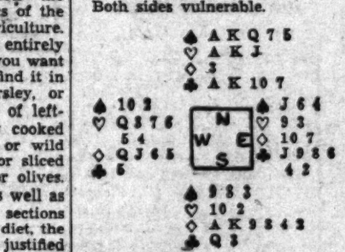
A Lay-Down Squeeze.

GRAND slam contracts are always spectacular, and they are particularly so when they present close questions in play.

The following hand involves the use of the Four-Five Notrump Convention to reach a very fine Grand Slam and at the same time requires the realization of a double squeeze position in order to make it.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
2♠	Pass	3◇	Pass
3♠	Pass	4◇	Pass
5♣	Pass	5♠	Pass
5NT	Pass	7♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding was quite conventional up to the final bid by South, and this was based on absolutely sound reasoning. His partner had shown a rebiddable suit and then at a later time had bid clubs, showing another biddable suit. He therefore could not hold an absolutely minimum rebiddable spade suit, as then he would have preferred to show the clubs first. South therefore deduced either five to the Ace-King-Queen or six to the Ace-King and with his tremendous side strength was justified in contracting for seven.

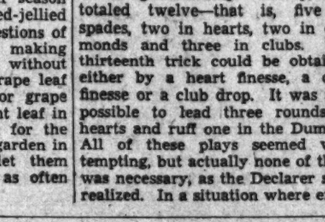
East's Opening lead was a trump, which was probably as good an Opening lead as any, on the bidding. This trick was won by Declarer in his own hand, and he immediately counted his top tricks; assuming the trumps to drop, they totaled twelve—that is, five in spades, two in hearts, two in diamonds and three in clubs. The thirteenth trick could be obtained either by a heart finesse, a club finesse or a club drop. It was also possible to lead three rounds of hearts and ruff one in the Dummy. All of these plays seemed very tempting, but actually none of them was necessary, as the Declarer soon realized. In a situation where extra tricks are possible in two side suits and reentries are sure in both hands, a double squeeze is bound to develop.

Declarer, therefore, led out all his trumps, took one round of hearts and then followed with three rounds of clubs. At this point he was down to four cards—namely, two hearts, a club and a diamond. The Dummy was down to three diamonds and a heart and it was apparent that West could not hold three diamonds and two hearts. Any division of the cards would produce the same result, as one player could not hold on to enough stoppers. Declarer merely laid down his hand and claimed the balance of the tricks.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If North is playing a contract of five diamonds doubled, how should he plan the play of the hand, provided East and West win only one spade and one heart trick before the lead is returned to North?

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Roomy Shoes Erase Frowns In Hot Months

Consider Foot Comfort Before Appearance, Says Expert; Massages Help.

By Elsie Pierce.

During the warm weather the feet get their share of discomfort.

Many women add to this natural discomfort by keeping the feet encased in tight or short shoes. As a matter of fact, the feet need a slightly larger shoe during the summer because there is a tendency to swell or become slightly enlarged during the warm months.

The majority of women have, happily, outgrown the ridiculous prejudice against generously sized feet. But a great many still cling to the old-fashioned desire for tiny feet.

American women, more than their continental cousins, continue to squeeze their feet into shoes several sizes too small for them.

White Shoes Look Larger.

White or light footgear exaggerates the size of the foot. It is therefore a much wiser plan to wear dark shoes than to choose undersized light footgear.

With the oil and perspiration glands more active during the summer than at other seasons, hose may tend to stick, the feet begin to burn and ache and the next thing you know the face takes on a give-away scowl.

To keep the feet free from perspiration frequent bathing is a necessity. The warm bath at night, with a little soap, followed by dipping the feet first in warm and then in cold water alternately fifteen times is excellent treatment for the feet.

A little common washing soda, baking soda or epsom salts may be added to the water to relieve tired feet. Cold salt baths and cold sprays in the morning are helpful in relieving excess perspiration.

Massages Are Aid.

Massage with mentholated salve or camphor ice is very refreshing to tired, swollen feet. The best time to do this is after the feet have been bathed in warm water and dried thoroughly.

Hose should be changed at least daily—twice daily if necessary—during the warm weather, and hose and shoes dusted with foot powder. Dry boric acid is good.

The light-weight, open summer sandals with sensible low heels are splendid and we have the season to thank for this fashion. Don't have the shoes too roomy or "floppy," however, and be sure the foot gets the proper support in the arch, because lack of support may cause severe pain and fatigue.

Walking on the beach barefooted is fine exercise, and the sand massage good for the feet. Walking around the room on tiptoes or picking up marbles with bare toes is strengthening exercise.

Two Tones of Gray Make Smart Three-Piece Suit

About the smartest sports clothes seen in Hollywood these days are those worn by Katharine Hepburn, dynamic and glamorous star.

One of her favorites is a three-piece suit. The collarless jacket is of dark gray wool with padded shoulders and tight-fitting sleeves. An unusual feature is the two patch pockets with scalloped edges.

The smartly tailored skirt is of a lighter gray wool. Her blouse is made of Schiaparelli material in a unique rose and dark gray print with a very high neckline.

A dark gray hand knitted cap and gloves of a lighter gray complete the trim costume.

The Stylefinder Family

A Second Postponement

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

By Mary Brook Lucas

Father Stylefinder has come home early in his cool linen suit and Panama hat. "Bad news, girls!" he says. "I've been called to Washington for a business conference of the NRA. This means we can't sail for still another week. I am sorry, but we all have to do our part."

"Of course we must, dear. We won't mind. We can do some more things I've always wanted to do in New York in August." Mother, who has been entertaining a tea, looks charming, as usual, in a plain black satin hostess dress with fichu made of bands of white, pinkish gray, and black satin ribbon, with ruffles for sleeves.

"As for me, I'm delighted!" exclaims Jeanne. "It will mean another week of my family." She is looking very cool and smart in ice blue chiffon made with classic simplicity. She is dining out, and dancing later, when she will shed her cape. Her only ornament is a buckle of rhinestones.

The only member of the Stylefinder family not quite reconciled to the postponement is Judy. She is just trying on a ravishing form-fitting gown of red taffeta which makes her feel truly Parisian. On the shoulders are huge wired bows. A wide sweep of full ruffles finishes the long skirt.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Kidnapers.

THE kidnap industry increases, grows greater, year by year; "Some one will swipe my auts and nieces," this is my constant fear. I read such stories in the papers as make my blood run cold; they are abducting bankers, drapers, by methods fierce and bold. They carry off the village plumber, a ransom they demand; his friends will have to kork all summer to get the coin in hand. They operate on every sector, and do their shameful work; they carry off the parish rector, the schoolmarm and the clerk. They are determined men embattled, they're desperate and smart, and all our cops are badly rattled, they don't know where to start. They'd soon round up the moral shirkers who steal a setting hen, but they can't cope with lawless workers who steal all kinds of men. They'd soon track down the violator of some jay parking law; but modern criminals are greater, their acts are coarse and raw. The kidnap legions are embattled, with evil lusts they burn; and Justice seems all fussed and rattled, not knowing where to turn. But Justice must be up and doing, and frame effective plan, or else admit, with vain be-shrewing, that she's an also ran.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—Since the days when it became a typical New York legend that smooth-talking dilettantes could sell Brooklyn Bridge or a gold brick to country cousins, it has been a general belief that Manhattan folk were immune to short-change artists.

The recent hot weather plague proved this otherwise. In a doorway on upper Broadway a sleek, effervescent fellow operated to considerable profit.

"Foh 10 cents, ladees and gent'l-men, you see heah the most astounding sight in N'Yawk. You won't believe youh own eyes. Amazing, stupendous, thrilling—it has never happened heah before."

Hot Stuff.

Paying your 10 cents, as myself and scores of other acclimated New Yorkers, did, one discovered that this colossal sight consisted of nothing more than a thermometer that registered 120 degrees. It was that hot in New York, a temperature which had never before been reached here

The temperature actually went to 120 degrees during the early August days, but this shill show wasn't on the level—keeping up the tradition of Broadway make-believe. The sidewalk showman held the heat to that high level by occasionally touching a match to his thermometer.

As another instance of this forced salesmanship, I point out the line of loud speakers, set up on the boardwalks of the not too exclusive beaches on Long Island.

These amplifying horns are supposed to broadcast the programs of radio stations. First there comes a lengthy advertising ballyhoo for various boardwalk concessions, and then comes the music of a phonograph record. They aren't radio programs at all. Just advertisements, and then the same record played over and over again.

Censorship Wanted.

The Government forest camps have been a boon to the boys who live in the East Side tenements of New York. For the first time in their lives they have the opportunity of participating in outdoor life, seeing real trees and flowers.

However, the camps are a disappointment for one boy from Canal street. Always wanting to be a soldier of fortune, the type that likes "to hear a band," he thinks the camps aren't military enough. It seems that all of his mail reaches him unopened and uncensored.

Observation: Gen. Balbo is the ocean flying hero who smokes cigarettes all the time and yet never signed one of those testimonial advertisements.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is not the only great man who has not permitted a physical infirmity to thwart his career.

Sir Walter Scott had an attack of epidemic poliomyelitis in his infancy. The result was crippling which, of course, persisted throughout his life. This physical disorder affecting his legs was complicated by another, which struck even nearer the bull's-eye. A man does not need legs to be a successful president of a nation or a great novelist, but he does need brains. Epidemic poliomyelitis—infantile paralysis—affects nerve centers in the spinal cord quite removed in space and considerably removed in function from the brain.

In addition to the trouble in his spinal cord Sir Walter Scott had a disorder which affected the size and shape of that part of his head in which lies the brain. He was the tenth in a family of twelve children, the first six of which died in early infancy. Before the end of the first year of life the fact that his head was of a peculiar shape became noticeable. This was evident before he had the infection with infantile paralysis.

As he matured his cranial peculiarity became more and more marked. He developed a cranial deformity which commonly is known as dome head, and which physicians know as oxycephaly and pseudo-oxycephaly. This deformity is caused by an unduly early and rapid ossification of certain sutures in the bones of the head. Since the brain must grow in size as well as improve in quality as the years go by, the sutures in the cranial bones are left ununited to permit of expansion within.

The combined resut of brain growth and head bone growth is the well known shape of the civilized man's head. When certain sutures set too early, the growing brain pushes upward and somewhat forward, causing a certain mountain ridge appearance that is called "dome head." In many cases dome heads are feeble-minded and rarely are they as intelligent as their high heads cause some to think them.

Tension Eases In Dublin With Clash Averted

Blue Shirts Fail to March and Memorial Rites Are Abandoned.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 13 (AP).—Nervousness and tension relaxed in Dublin today as the threatened clash between Gen. Owen O'Duffy's blue shirted national guard and authorities failed to materialize.

It had been feared that disorders might occur in connection with the memorial ceremonies at the cenotaph in Leinster Lawn for Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins, and Kevin O'Higgins, national heroes of early Free State history, since O'Duffy had planned to parade his men in uniform and President De Valera forbade it.

Troops in Readiness.

The government prepared for any eventuality, stationing squads of police throughout the main streets and posting heavy guards at government buildings, with armored cars and Free State troops standing by.

One scuffle occurred as six blue shirts left their headquarters in uniform after midday and were attacked by a crowd. Police rescued the six, somewhat battered, and escorted them back to their headquarters.

Memorial Rites Abandoned.

Formal functions at the cenotaph were abandoned for the first time since the memorial was erected. Only a few curious persons were admitted to Leinster Lawn, not even relatives of the dead attending.

Government officials as well as O'Duffy and former President Cosgrave, opponent of the De Valera regime, remained away. It was understood O'Duffy left town following his decision to yield to the government's ruling against the demonstration.

American Is Deported From Ireland as Red

Cobh, Irish Free State, Aug. 13 (AP).—James Gralton, an Irishman who became an American citizen a few years ago, was deported today on a charge of communist agitation and left for America aboard the Britannic.

Gralton was captured yesterday in a lonely mountain pass in county Leitrim, ending several months of dodging the police.

U. S. Aid for Idle Cited by British

Brighton, England, Aug. 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt's method of dealing with unemployment will be held up as an example to Great Britain at the Trade Union Congress here September 4.

The Boilermakers and Iron and Steel Shipbuilding Society will urge the congress to demand action from the British government to deal with unemployment on broad and comprehensive lines similar to those laid down by the American President.

The organization demands withdrawal from the labor market of children under 16 years and adults over 65, and the production of working hours in productive industry to provide for the absorption into industry of all workers between 16 and 65.

Scout Jamboree Camp Nears Close in Hungary

Gobollo, Hungary, Aug. 13 (AP).—With a crowded program of entertainments following church services this morning, the Boy Scouts in the Jamboree Camp enjoyed cooler, but clear weather for their last Sunday here. In the arena the French Scouts gave an elaborate representation of exploring through the ages.

After the Jamboree closes Tuesday, ten Pennsylvania boys, in charge of the Rev. Alexander Baroczy, who was born in Hungary, will spend ten days as guests of the cities of Miskolc and Debrecen.

Franklin Lumber Mill To Add 300 More Men

Suffolk, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The adoption by the Camp Manufacturing Co., of Franklin, Va., of the national lumber code will put 300 additional men to work in their Franklin mill alone when an extra shift will be added August 21, increasing the pay roll $230,000 a year.

The Camp company has four saw and planing mills, one at Franklin, Va.; two at Marion, S. C., and one at St. Stephen, S. C. It is one of the largest lumber companies in the Southeast.

Philippines to Push For Sugar Reduction

Manila, P. I., Aug. 13 (AP).—Officials of the Philippine Sugar Association said today legislation limiting the Philippine sugar output would be pushed, regardless of the outcome of attempts in Washington at stabilization.

Rafael Alunan, president of the association, said insular sugar production probably would be limited to 1,286,000 short tons. The new season's crop has been estimated at 1,486,000 tons.

1,000 at Denver Get Work as Code Is Used

Denver, Aug. 13 (AP).—A newspaper survey made public today indicated at least 1,000 persons have been put to work in Denver since the NRA blanket code became effective August 1, and pay rolls have been increased $1,500,000 annually.

The figures included only those firms that have added more than 20 persons to pay rolls. Business schools reported demand for graduates had increased.

Balbo Made Air Marshal, Duce Acclaims Feat

"Consecrated Fascist Revolt in Skies of Continents," Says Mussolini.

Rome, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Italian mass flight to America and return was a "consecrated Fascist revolution in the skies of two continents," Premier Mussolini declared today in addressing the Balbo aviators after a triumphal procession under the historic Arch of Constantine.

The duce, garbed in the uniform of commander of the Black Shirt Militia, conferred the title of air marshal upon Air Minister Gen. Italo Balbo, leader of the transatlantic expedition, and promoted each flier one grade in recognition of the epic achievement.

The Fascist chief, addressing members of the squadron lined up at attention on the Palatine Hill, predicted that "many years will pass before the air corps of other countries" can equal the feat which was finished yesterday with the arrival of the air armada at Ostia.

King Victor Emmanuel received the aviators before the triumphal march and the address by the premier on the celebrated plateau.

Called Lesson in Pacifism.

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Gen. Balbo's mass flight was characterized today by Count Eugenio Casagrande di Villaviera, organizer of the Royal Italian Air Corps, as a sensational attempt to demonstrate that it is "time to disarm."

"The flight," he asserted, "has an infinite lesson in pacifism for all the world."

The count, who was Mussolini's chief aid during the creation of the Italian air corps after the historic march on Rome, declared the flight proved "national isolation is illusory."

Culbertson Is Back; Scoffs at Challenge

Bridge Champion Declares Jacoby Team Should Play Marxes First.

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Ely Culbertson and his wife returned today from Europe and said he refused to take seriously the challenge from the Jacoby-Schenken-Burnstine-Frey bridge foursome.

"They should play the Marx brothers first," Culbertson said.

Since he and Mrs. Culbertson won the Schwab Cup in the international contract championship tournament in London, he said they have been swamped with similar challenges.

Culbertson said he was surprised that Jacoby was a party to the foursome's challenge, "because I already have beaten him in the Lenz match."

For the time being, Culbertson said he plans to "go into seclusion."

N. Y. Subway Spies Catch Pickpockets

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—New York police employ a hide-and-seek method of spying on pickpockets in subway stations.

Four detectives of the pickpocket court told a police magistrate today that they hide under the aprons of subway platforms and when trains pull out they peek over the edge watching for pickpockets to go to work on "sleepers" on the platform benches.

The plan netted three arrests today.

New York, Aug. 13 (A.P.).—The Child Welfare League of America announced today its officers for 1933-34, as follows:

J. Prentice Murphy, of Philadelphia, president; Mrs. Lessing J. Rosenwald, of Philadelphia; Cheney C. Jones, Boston and Mrs. Samuel S. Drury, Concord, N. H., vice president; Paul T. Beisser, of Baltimore, treasurer, and Kenneth L. Messenger, of Hartford, Conn., secretary.

Frederick County, Maryland, Has Many Hatcheries; One of 100 Acres.

One Farmer Raises 800,000 Yearly for Golffish Fanciers in East.

By Staff Correspondent.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 13.—When you are tired and can not think of anything else to wonder about, perhaps you wonder about goldfish. Why are goldfish? Where do they come from? How do they get that way? How about their so-called private lives or is it privacy?

Wonder no longer. Your goldfish most likely come from Frederick County. Ohio supplies most of the goldfish-conscious folk of the West, we are told, but Frederick County is the goldfish center of the East. Every Frederick farmer has his ponds crammed with goldfish, but the farmers are crude, unkind amateurs. It is men such as Frederick Tresselt and Ellsworth L. Stigely who add tone and art to the Frederick goldfish industry, who raise it above the common plane.

We thought this must be true the minute we laid eyes on Mr. Tresselt's hatchery at Thurmont—30 acres of it, covered with spring-fed ponds, with headquarters in a white-sided aquarium, which reposes in a clump of shade trees back from the highway.

We were convinced this was true the moment we spied Mr. Stigely, who is Mr. Tresselt's assistant. Mr. Stigely loves goldfish and the goldfish love him. In fact, we found him at dusk standing before the workbench in the aquarium, still threading nets, NRA or no NRA, and humming a fisherman's tune, while all round him in glass cases prize goldfish scampered and played, happy because he was staying overtime.

We obtained the whole story from him, of how bookkeepers and lawyers and railroad engineers become goldfish fanciers. There is just something about the work that gets a fellow—the way the fish look at you when you tap on the sides of their glass cases, the way they rise to the surface and all but say thank you when you toss in food.

Started Several Decades Ago.

A Mr. Ramsberg, who lives at Lewistown, is the first man in Frederick County who fell under the spell of the goldfish. He brought goldfish to the county 20 or more years ago and was so successful with his pets that some farmers gave up farming to compete with him. Other farmers, who merely saw the gold in them thar goldfish and who lacked the spirit and kindness of the true, dyed-in-the-wool goldfish fancier, began goldfishing on the side.

Mr. Tresselt was smitten about 12 years ago. A city-bred New Yorker, he had become a game fish technician for the New Jersey State game fish hatcheries after his graduation from college, but he was not satisfied. There was no color in the game fish profession and a fish was just a fish. Besides, he was sick of the cities and the fire sirens and subway trains and street lights, which kept him awake nights. Therefore all he needed was a vacation in Frederick County and a sight of the contentment of the goldfish raisers to send him scurrying to become one of them.

Mr. Stigely is a native. All his life he had cast envious glances at the goldfish people. About six years ago he decided he could bear the strain no longer. He prevailed upon Mr. Tresselt to give him a job. Since, he has become stout with satisfaction, his voice has become tender for his finny pals, and he has achieved that deep tan which comes from meandering from pond to pond with a goldfish net.

Snails Are His Sideline.

Mr. Tresselt raises snails as a sideline—50,000 of them last year—which he sells to New Jersey jobbers for $10 a thousand. The jobbers sell them to New York hotels for bigger prices. Then, too, just to keep from forgetting everything he ever knew about game fish he raises bass which he sells to the rich New Yorkers who have mountain lakes in need of inhabitants.

It is goldfish, though, which really bring in the gold.

One fish will lay between 3,000 and 4,000 eggs, and every egg is a potential goldfish. As the fish hatch they are segregated in pools—one pool to a size and variety—then when a market is found they are scooped up and shipped by express in squatty cans. A thousand fish can go in each can in the winter when even fish like to snuggle close together. Only 500 go in a can in the summer, because even a poor fish has the right to demand space and not be required to rub up against a perspiry companion.

Price Cut by Depression.

Before the depression $15 a thousand was the cheapest price for goldfish. Since then people have met with hard luck; they do not have time to sit down and look at goldfish, and do not feel there is any use having the pets unless they can be looked at. Consequently the price has dropped to $5 a thousand for the ordinary little just-gold fish, $30 a thousand for big just-goldfish, and $10 a hundred for Japanese fantails. However, with the NRA shortening working hours and all, Mr. Stigely feels people again will have time to look at gold fish and will help to raise the prices to normal.

The job of raising goldfish sounds quite simple, but it is not, according to Mr. Stigely. Of course, he made plain, ordinary farmers who do goldfishing on the side, merely drop a few fish into a pool, order them to multiply, then return in due time to see if they have carried out instructions.

Likely as not, the fish refuse and, as Mr. Stigely points out, you can not blame them. Winter and summer the farmers' fish go without food except that which they can rustle for themselves. Besides, they shiver through the long winter months, keeping warm as best they can without furs or overcoats.

Must Be Nursed and Coddled.

Mr. Stigely does not say so, but he gives the impression that the ordinary farmer is creating a need for humane society investigation. Fish to him are friends, they must be treated as friends, and you must nurse the fish and coddle them.

There must be water hyacinths with cupshaped leaves for the fancy fish to spawn upon. They must be brought into the warm aquarium for the cold, monotonous months so they can bask under the sun-lit glass roof.

Furthermore they must be fed. Mr. Tresselt buys eight tons of cracked corn and cracked wheat every six months. That makes the fish happy and fat, but it also makes them bilious. Too much starch, you know. What answers for a goldfish's tongue becomes coated, the fish get that tired feeling and vertigo and all the usual inevitable symptoms. That is the reason why every fish in every pond must be given a dose of Epsom salts once a week.

Essentials in Fish Culture.

"Kindness, plenty of food, plenty of Epsom salts—that's the thing," said Mr. Stigely. "That is why we were able to raise 800,000 fish last year."

But Mr. Stigely does not want to give the impression that he and Mr. Tresselt are the only folk in Frederick County who know fish and go in for them in a big way. There are fifteen or twenty other big timers. And near Urbana there is a Mr. Thomas—so important that no one bothers about his first name—who has 100 acres under water as against Mr. Tresselt's 30, and who has such a large business he must send out traveling salesmen.

These fish men are so successful that a fellow down the road has started a snake farm, but Mr. Stigely makes light of the new competition.

"Grr—rgh," he says. "Snakes. Who want's a snake. I don't even want to go near the place. Who wants a snake when he can get a goldfish."

U. S. Women Plead For German Jews

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Carrie Chapman Catt, chairman of a non-Jewish women's committee against the persecution of Jews in Germany, announced today that 9,000 American women had signed a letter of protest against the treatment of Jews in Germany.

The signers included women from each of the 48 States and the District of Columbia. The number of towns represented was 753, Mrs. Catt said.

The letter said, in part:

"We, the undersigned, protest. We call upon all nations to unite in the protest. In the words of Viscount Cecil, 'It has become a matter of international concern.' If the German majority is unwilling to protect the Jewish minority, it becomes the duty of the world's nations to assume this obligation."

The committee members include Dr. Grace Abbott, District of Columbia, and Miss Jane Addams, Illinois.

Coppers, Red Cloth Strips Used as Philippine Money

Natives on Bongabong River Are Suspicious of Silver and Gold Coins, Lieut. Hitchings Reports From Survey Made on Exploring Airship.

Leave the gold standard, change your gold into coppers, and strips of red cloth, move over on the delightful Bongabong River in the Philippines and you can live the life of Riley.

This is apparent from the report of Lieut. John L. Hitchings, Air Corps, who recently headed an exploration expedition into little known parts of Mindoro in the Philippines, and who returned with news of interest to scientists and military aviators. He brought back descriptions of pleasant places in the wilderness of Mindoro; disproved a fable of "Lost White Tribe"; mapped sections of several rivers, and one mountain range; learned that small riots among the natives can be started with little mirrors, and that silver money, or gold, is looked upon suspiciously, but that copper goes over big.

Maj. G. D. Davidson, C. A. Ret., and A. W. Exline accompanied Hitchings, who, with the assistance of officers at Nichols Field, made a comprehensive preliminary survey of the territory by airplane. A strip map was made of the section to be explored, using a vertical aerial camera, while from another plane oblique pictures of mountains were taken to add to the information given by the maps. The party then plunged into the jungle with a few cargadores, and used the aerial map in their travels.

They went to Tambonac to run down the ever-present rumor of a lost white tribe, but found none. Maj. Davidson, the anthropologist of the exposition, measured many individuals of the tribes they encountered, and brought back interesting cephalic indices. Exline found a cobra, and Hitchings photographed.

All tribes were friendly, but appeared to be ignorant of the value of silver coins. They accepted copper coins, but preferred strips of red cloth which they used for turbans and gee-strings. Beads were acceptable too. The explorers heard weird music out of a home-made guitar strung with women's hair.

On the Bongabong river, food supplies for the party became very low, and the rendezvous arranged for with an airplane from Nichols field, approached. The native carriers, however, would not believe that food would be dropped from a big white bird, and they accepted their pay and left for their homes. The plane arrived on schedule, and Hitching's trembling hand almost spoiled the movies of the parachutes settling down, laden with supplies.

On the Bongabong there are innumerable waterfalls. The water is crystal clear and ice cold. The men found and mapped the headwaters of the river, and brought back specimens of ore, in some of which were traces of gold. They also brought bamboo bows used in shooting fish. For larger game, the natives use arrows tipped with slivers of poisoned wood.

"Mindoro is not the white man's grave yard it is commonly pictured," said Lieut. Hitchings. "But our trip was possible only in the dry season, and I do not advise anyone to enter the Eastern Mindoro mountains without full protection against rain and malaria."

Preliminary Season of Guest-Star "Revivals" Is Early Possibility at National

Tentative List Of Hit Dramas Is Made Known

Popular Prices to Prevail; Jean Malin, Ben Blue; Theater Gossip.

By Nelson B. Bell.

It is a possibility, but, as yet, by no means a surety, that Washington theatergoers will be privileged to enjoy a brief preliminary season of dramatic revivals with guest stars appearing in the leading roles, at a popular scale of prices, beginning next month, according to word filtering back to the Capital from Panjandrum Stephen E. Cochran, of Col. William Harryman Rapley's National Theater in this city.

This introduction to the regular season of road attractions, including the six subscription plays to be offered by the American Theater Society of Washington, would not be of more than four to six weeks duration, in Mr. Cochran's present view.

The tentative list of resuscitated hits, with the probable stars to assume their pivotal roles, is something like this: Florence Reed in "The Shanghai Gesture," Philip Merivale and Nancy Sheridan, former leading woman of the National Theater Players, who function each spring and summer under Mr. Cochran's direction, in "Cynara," which, if memory serves, has only been seen locally in film form with Ronald Colman and Kay Francis; Bert Lytell in "Criminal at Large," Henry Hull in "The Man Who Came Back," "Twentieth Century," the Ben Hecht-Charlie MacArthur comedy set aboard a popular deluxe, railroad train; Corinne Griffith, who decamped from the motion picture lots with the coming of sound to the screen, and Basil Rathbone, last seen locally in "The Devil Passes," which introduced Diana Wynward to American audiences, in "The Command to Love;" Helen Menken in "Seventh Heaven," Madge Kennedy in one of her old successes, James Kirkwood in "The Fool," the Coburns in "The Yellow Jacket," and Guy Bates Post in "The Masquerader."

"Of course, these are only thoughts," writes Mr. Cochran, "but they may turn out to be realities. Am going back to town Monday (today) and will let you know what comes of it. Whichever way the wind blows, I will be seeing you the latter part of next week. Jolly times and happy moments. Sincerely, (Signed) Steve."

Thus does Mr. Cochran initiate that the late Woodrow Wilson doubtless would have designated another period of watchful waiting.

By way of clarification, it should be pointed out that Mr. Cochran, when he left Washington, ostensibly was on his way merely to the Sharkey-Carnera fight. Upon nosing his Packard around toward home, however, he made the practically fatal tactical error of driving around by Lake Hopatcong, N. J. Encountering a whole community of house parties of old friends in and out of the profession, Mr. Cochran has been a member of the Lake Hopatcong theatrical colony ever since! The lucky so-and-so!

Off to Pep Meeting.

Speaking of trippers, Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, leaves the Capital today at 1 o'clock to attend the RKO executive meetings at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to lay plans for the launching and successful conduct of the Greater Show Season to be inaugurated in all Radio-Keith-Orpheum houses August 26 to 28.

The conclave of RKO executives and managers will be addressed by Harold B. Franklin, president; Robert F. Sisk, director of advertising and publicity; Ned Depinet, of the sales department; Terry Turner, exploitation, and probably M. H. Aylesworth, chairman of the board, and numerous others.

Mr. Meakin plans to return to the Capital Tuesday midnight to resume his official duties on Fifteenth street Wednesday morning.

It is one of the bizarre quirks of a hectic business that Mrs. Meakin and their oldest son, Leonard, will arrive home from a summer month or two in Salt Lake City, Utah, tonight, just about the time Mr. Meakin's train is pulling into New York. That is the way show business is.

As long as we are on the topic of RKO-Keith's and its management, it might be pertinent to mention that the Fifteenth street picture house now flies the largest NRA flag of any theater in the city. The Blue Eagle emblem measures 12 by 20 feet and is kept constantly flying over the facade of the playhouse.

This is not an especial distinction bestowed upon this RKO-Keith theater only, just because it happens to be at the seat of the Federal Government. NRA flags of the same dimensions are being flown from all RKO theaters throughout the United States.

Jean Malin on Screen.

For the benefit of those curiosity-seekers who may not have recognized him, it is Jean Malin, who recently died of drowning when he mysteriously backed his car off the dock adjacent to the famous Ship's Cafe at Venice, Calif., and almost carried Patsy Kelly to the same fate, who does the female impersonation bit in the revue scenes in "Arizona to Broadway," starring Jimmie Dunn and Joan Bennett at Loew's Fox.

Jean Malin was an overnight sensation at the Club Abbey, New York, and not so long ago journeyed to the West Coast to open the Club New Yorker, where, as master of ceremonies and impersonator, somewhat after the manner of Julian Eltinge—or possibly a little more like the late Bert Savoy, who also reached a tragic end from lightning while strolling the sands at Long Beach, Long Island—he scored an instant hit.

Malin was a great favorite of the picture colony and was rapidly making a name in pictures when death overtook him under most unusual circumstances.

In the film at the Fox he appears as Ray Best, an obvious caricature of Mae West in "She Done Him Wrong," as one of three famous revue artists, in burlesque. The other two are Walter Catlett, as "Ned Flynn," palpably meant for Ed Wynn and Jerry Lester, "Jimmy Dante," easily identifiable by his schnozzle as the eminent Mr. Durante, hot-cha-cha!

True to Life.

In his bit as Mae West, Malin reenacts an incident which actually occurred in the professional life of Julian Eltinge. That is, when a gangster who has taken over a hand in running the show, begins a little smirky smartcracking, the gorgeous blonde that is Mr. Malin knocks him cold with a right to the jaw.

That is precisely what Julian Eltinge did to a burly stage hand out at the Auditorium Theater, in Chicago, when he was a feature of Cohan & Harris' Minstrels, of which the late "Gentleman Jim" Corbett was interlocutor and George ("Honey Boy") Evans one of the ends. The stage hand made some slighting reference to Mr. Eltinge as a "nance" and woke up flat on his back with a lot of the boys tossing cold water in his face and wondering whether or not to call the ambulance or the fire rescue squad or something.

Some one should have told the s. h. that Eltinge's real name was Bill Dalton and that he was good enough with his dukes to spar daily with Jim Corbett without getting himself killed!

Comes then a note from "Private Detective 62," whom I suspect of being Miss Vaughn De Leath, headlining the stage show this week at the Earle, behesting this department in this cordial fashion: "Do drop in for weak tea and ice with Frank, Bill and Vaughn, Tuesday at 4:30—Earle Club Rooms."

The "weak tea with ice" is, of course, a bit of a paraphrase, but the Frank and Bill are authentic, being none other than Mr. La Falce just back from his two-weeks-with-pay, and Mr. Ewing, of the Warner publicity department.

Having missed Miss De Leath, who is by way of being an interior decorator of note, in addition to the original feminine broadcast artiste and a present singing star of high repute, by the merest eyelash on her last two or three visits to the Capital, it seems not too much to expect to be able to make it at the appointed hour this time. Especially if these temperatures keep up and the "weak tea with ice" holds out!

A Round of Applause.

And Harold Arlen, headlining at Loew's Fox with his Harlem Choir, takes the time and trouble to join that small group of artists that includes Ruth Etting, Mitzi Mayfair and a few others who acknowledge favorable notices by brief notes to the critics, by dropping a line to say "thank you" for words of approval which this desk feels were meager in comparison with the magnitude of his achievement as a tunesmith of the first order. It is our present purpose to drop in as many times more as possible during the week just to hear him and his choir sing "Stormy Weather" the way it should be sung.

Home-Town Boy—Almost.

On the same bill with Mr. Arlen is Ben Blue, generally referred to as another of Washington's contributions to the stellar ranks of the theater.

Mr. Blue, as a matter of fact, was born in Montreal, Canada, whence his parents moved to Baltimore. After a residence of some years in the neighboring city, the Blues moved to Washington and still make their home here, although Ben has not been under the parental roof much of late years.

His first occupation in the Nation's Capital was watching motor cars left outside of night clubs. Having organized a band of youthful assistants, he soon ran this into real money.

Then he became a clerk in a local haberdashery — since defunct, although that has not necessarily any connection with the fact of Ben's clerkship — and was so amusing, what with his pantomime, flipcracking and all, that he soon was making practically all the sales in the place, just so the customers could have a chance to laugh at his quaint conceits. He was a card!

Finally he entered show business in a big way as a chorus boy in a traveling revue, at $40 per week. Within a few weeks he owned the cong concession, the candy concession, was assistant stage manager and got $10 a week extra for packing the company's trunks. This job—or these jobs—lasted a year. After that Ben opened a dancing school in Chicago and soon had three prosperous establishments flourishing under his wing. But he is never willing to let well enough alone.

So he sold out his dancing academies and took the long trek to Hollywood, where he once doubled for Valentino. As a matter of fact, Ben doesn't look any more like Valentino than you or I do, but Hollywood is like that, and in these or any other times, a break is a break.

Not a Newcomer.

Emmett Oldfield, tangling with Walter Dare Wahl in their burlesque gymnastics—the hardest kind, incidentally—at the Earle this week, is not a new addition to the team, although he has only been included in the billing during the last season or two. I wouldn't be sure that it was not this column's curiosity as to the identity of the unnamed assistant in the act, two or three season's ago, and its subsequent appraisal of him as a full 50 per cent of the turn's effectiveness, that brought about the public disclosure of his name—something to which he had been entitled since the first time he ever set foot on the stage with his larger and better-known principal.

Which is not at all to belittle the prowess of the remarkable Mr. Wahl. Mr. Wahl is an ace performer, but I seriously doubt that any other partner could make him look so good as the bewildered and self-effacing Master Oldfield does.

Another last-minute change of mind on the part of the powers that be in the booking office, results in the substitution of Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs," based on the literary classic by Hermann Sudermann and directed by Rouben Mamoulian, for "Night Flight," in which John Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery are the stars, as the attraction to follow "Tugboat Annie," at Loew's Palace Theater. This is heralded as Miss Dietrich's most notable film to date and, judging from the "still" photographs that have preceded the booking to this desk, Frau Dietrich is her loveliest in it.

Reverting momentarily to Ben Blue and how he got into pictures, a year ago when Hal Roach conceived the idea of the "Taxi Boys" screen comedies, he wanted some one who was both expert as a pantomimist and as a dancer to star. Mr. Blue was summoned, screen tested and otherwise fingerprinted and charted and promptly given the job of head man in these releases. The "Taxi Boys" comedies attained a speedy and far-flung popularity.

And as you can readily see from watching him, in person, at the Fox, Ben Blue hasn't been blue since!

In That "Going Native" Revue

Brook Johns and his banjo, center, master of ceremonies of the all-Washington revue, to be presented at Loew's Fox Theater beginning Friday, August 18, who seems to be supporting, rather than supported by, Majorie Mitchell, dancer. Left inset, Gene Ford, of the production department of Loew's, Inc., in complete charge of staging the revue, and, right inset, Evelyn Tyner, who is to be featured in "Going Native" with Mr. Johns.

Glen Echo Park.

Jolly week-enders charted a course straight to Glen Echo Park over Saturday and Sunday, where the 40 acres of fun furnished every diversion necessary.

The big Crystal Pool did much to mitigate mid-August weather, and the mere men and mermaids flocking around this miniature seashore testified to its popularity.

Saturday night's crowds in the Spanish Garden Ballroom were keenly interested in the "miss personality" contest, as well as the dancing, to the tunes of MacWilliams' orchestra.

Big thrillers were up front in popularity, as usual, including the coaster dips, airplane swings, dodgem rides, old mill and the milder fun provokers such as the Midway and the carrousel. Yesterday was the big day for picnic parties, entire families taking advantage of the unusual accommodations in the groves. Here they found tables, benches, chairs and everything necessary to eat and drink at city prices.

Film Tables.

Flashes From the Radio Dial

By Robert D. Heinl.

THE Public Forum on Racketeering at the Association of the Bar in New York City, will be broadcast over WJSV this morning from 9:30 to 9:45 o'clock and from 10 to 10:30 o'clock.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the subcommittee on racketeering, will be followed by Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to the Attorney General.

A second attack in the organized drive "Crime Must Go" will be a series started tonight over WMAL at 8:30 by the United States Flag Association with William Stanley, assistant Attorney General, and Col. James A. Moss among the speakers.

There was a time when Ravel's "Bolero" was an attractive number, but it has long since been killed off. Even Kindler felt obliged to include it in one of his Philadelphia broadcasts. Goldman's Band gives it once more tonight.

An elaborate football schedule, tentatively embracing 15 or 16 games, has been drawn up by Columbia several weeks before the athletes themselves are summoned for their first fall practice.

Among the broadcasts in prospect are Army vs. Yale, October 28; Army vs. Harvard, November 11; Yale vs. Harvard, November 25, and Army vs. Notre Dame, December 2.

PROBABLY never in the history of the country has there been such a gathering of talent of one people as at Negro Day at the Century of Progress Exposition, yet credit was not done to them by the broadcast. There were too many solos, several of them inappropriate for the occasion, and not enough opportunity for the great chorus of 3,000 Negro voices.

The spirituals were splendid but instead of the highly classical turn the program took later we longed to bear them swing into "Way Down Upon the Swanee River," or something like that. If they could have had the directorship of R. H. Burnside, of the old New York Hippodrome, or even Roxy, you'd have heard something.

Also poorly conducted was the broadcast of the "Press Veterans of 1893," a gathering of newspapermen who covered the old Chicago World's Fair. Here, too, they had talent to burn, but the radio portion of the dinner was badly timed.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who we believe hasn't been heard over the radio since his retirement from public life; Opie Read, the novelist, now 88 years old, and George Ade, were held down to a few minutes but lesser lights who came later were permitted to talk interminably to fill out the time. Harry S. New, World's Fair Commissioner, who probably made a bully good speech, was allowed to finish before the microphone was turned on. One of the speeches was so poor that a listener remarked: "It sounds as if he were trying to read his address without his glasses."

A COINCIDENCE at the Chicago Press veterans broadcast was that seated side by side were Mr. New, formerly city editor of the Indianapolis Journal, now out of existence, and Charles H. Dennis, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News. In the old days many newspapers had their own poets. New had a struggling young poet working for him by the name of James Whitcomb Riley. Dennis had an equally promising poet on his staff, Eugene Field.

In fact, Mr. Dennis was Field's biographer and made the account so realistic that Mrs. Field quietly withdrew most of the books from circulation. This we were told by Charles K. Field, radio celebrity, a cousin of the greatly loved poet.

George Ade succeeded in getting a big laugh during the Press veterans broadcast when he said, comparing the Century of Progress with the Columbian Exposition:

"You must remember the old Chicago World's Fair was held before the advent of the automobile, the airplane, the radio, the slip-ons and the step-ins. It was in the days of Buffalo Bill, Infanta Eulalie and Little Egypt."

Mr. Ade told how the women in Chicago knelt when the Infanta Eulalie, there representing the Spanish government, passed.

"It was not known at that time," Mr. Ade added, "that an Infanta in Spain was about as common as a notary public in the United States."

"ASK the NRA to draw up a code against jazz," postcards Edwin Hadley Smith, of Hampshire Gardens. "It isn't music, but merely noise. 'We Do Our Part' by tuning out the station. If sponsors knew how many listeners do this, they would bar jazz on their programs."

Not counting their radio engagements the Mills brothers, through the illness of Brother John, have lost over $70,000 in theatrical bookings alone. They will return to the air on a new commercial about October 1.

"Can you tell us one object of value in your life of which you are especially fond—and why?" an inquiring reporter asked Howard Marsh, radio comedian. "A home without a mortgage," replied Marsh, "that's why!"

Jan Garber, orchestra leader, gave up his baseball career when he broke his nose. Jan still plays softball, but no more catching behind the bat. He plays outfield now where he can duck if necessary.

NEWTON D. BAKER, Sir Herbert Samuel, of England; Dr. Hu Shih, of China, and Dr. Inazo Nitobe, of Japan, addressing the opening season of the fifth biennial conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations, at Banff, Alberta, will be heard over WMAL at 10:15 p. m. The meeting, held every two years for unofficial discussions of international problems, will be attended this year at Banff by 25 representatives from the United States, 30 from Canada, 15 from Great Britain and 20 each from China and Japan.

Madge Tucker, Lady Next Door, has answered the lure of the great outdoors and moved to the country, says Nellie Revell. The golden-haired author and director drives to town daily in her yellow coupe, which her radio children have christened "Cream-puff."

"The Lady from the Sea," one of the lesser known plays of Ibsen, will be presented by the Guild players over WMAL at 3 p .m.

Glad Again

C. C. C. Youth Loses His $5 in Holdup, But Retrieves It.

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—William Powell, young member of the Sand Spring C. C. C. camp near here, is happy again over the return of $5, his July pay, which was taken from him in a holdup Friday night.

For two weeks Powell carefully preserved that $5 bill, denying himself candy, cigarettes and amusements, only to become the victim of an alley holdup. He recognized his assailant on the street a few hours after the robbery, however, and his frantic calls for the police as he tried to hold the man brought a score of C. C. C. youths to his aid.

He soon had his money back and promised to bury it under a lonely tree in the Blue Ridge near camp for safe keeping.

Goggin Bows To Sarazen In Final

Gene Wins Back Title of P. G. A., 5 and 4, After 10 Years.

San Francisco Ace Trails by One Hole at End of First 18.

By Paul Mickelson.

BLUE MOUND CLUB, Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 13 (AP).—Storming over the fairways of Blue Mound with magic irons and a putter that routed par by four shots, Gene Sarazen won the national professional golf championship for the third time of his illustrious career today by submerging the stout-hearted Willie Goggin of San Francisco, 5 and 4.

His triumph, clinched by a great afternoon finish after the 200-pound, 6-foot professional of a municipal golf course had held him to a single hole advantage after a hard battle in the morning, came exactly ten years after his last professional crown, which he captured by beating Walter Hagen in that memorable 38-hole overtime match at Pelham.

Gene Now Satisfied.

Gene's triumph not only assured him of escaping a shutout in major championship competition this year after his open conquests of the United States and Great Britain in 1932, but it gave him more satisfaction than any other title.

"Pretty good for a washed-up golfer," he grinned with his cocksure victory smile, as he received possession of the cup and first prize money of $1,000 for the third time.

His reference to a "washed-up" golfer referred to the blast fired by Tommy Armour, of Chicago, before the tournament, in which he said Sarazen was "all washed up" as a championship contender for threatening to pass up the big show of American professional golf.

That crack by the "Silver Scot" fired a greater competitive spirit in the jaunty, little former caddy, from New York, and all week, as he romped on his way to the crown, dropped by Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, clinched his fists and said he was going to win.

Sarazen Gives Battle.

Goggin, who arose from the ranks of golf's unknowns this week in his march to the finals, gave Sarazen a great battle this morning, only to fade in the afternoon before a charging gallery of 5,000 spectators. Only one up at noon, despite a 69, one under par, Sarazen came right back with even better golf and held Goggin to a one-hole victory as he picked up five and then clinched the struggle by matching a birdie 4 on the thirty-second green with the aid of a trusty putter, which he was forced to haul out of his bag only 51 times for the required 32 holes.

But for a pair of 3-putt greens, Goggin would have led Sarazen instead of trailing him at the end of the morning 18, which saw both hooking wildly from the tee frequently and strolling through the rough. Sarazen started his victory march on the second hole as "Walloring Willie" dubbed a niblick shot and lost the hole with a 5. They played evenly until the sixth, but there Goggin squared the duel by holing a 40-foot putt down a treacherous incline for a birdie 3. Sarazen bounded one up on the short eighth, as his putter responded, by canning an 8-footer for a deuce. Goggin evened it up again on the 400-yard tenth by parking a mashie shot from 120 yards 3 feet hole high for a birdie 3.

Three putts by Goggin on the thirteenth sent Gene 1 up again,

Cubs Beat Pirates; Grimm Star at Bat

Warneke Takes 13th, 3-2; Bruins Within Half Game of Bucs.

Chicago, Aug. 13 (AP).—Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cubs batted his team to a 3-to-2 win over the second place Pittsburgh Pirates this afternoon and shoved the Bruins up to within half a game of the Bucs. Grimm had a hand in all the scoring off Bill Swift, who went the route for the Pirates. Grimm topped his batting with a home run in the seventh. Profiting most by all this was Lon Warneke, who was making his fourth try for the elusive thirteenth win of the season.

The game was the final of the year between the two clubs, and gave the Cubs a 12-to-10 edge. They now trail the league leading Giants by four games.

Mr. Harris Arrives Safely at Third on His Important Triple

The Good Ship Dave is shown above making a safe landing on the hit that proved the key to the baseball situation as far as Washington fans were concerned yesterday. It was the triple that sent Manager Joe Cronin scampering home with the tying run in the fifth inning. Harris went across with the winning run on Kuhel's smash.

Red Sox Defeat A's, 19-10; Get 11 in First

None of Runs in Frame Is Earned; Assured of 1933 Even Break.

BOSTON, Aug. 13 (AP).—A parade around the base paths marked the final appearance here of the Athletics this season as the Red Sox scored a 19-to-10 win, featured by an 11-run first inning.

No one at the game could recall when the Red Sox ever made that many runs in one inning here before, and none of them was earned.

The trouble started after Werber was put out. Walters and Cooke got on base as William and Higgins contributed an error apiece. Roy Johnson then made a two-bagger, scoring Walters and Cooke.

McManus Forced In.

Coombs relieved "Sugar" Cain after Manager Marty McManus had been passed to force in the third run. Tom Oliver singled, Rhodes doubled and Werber, up for the second time, singled; then Dick Oliver became the third Philadelphia pitcher of the inning.

Roy Johnson's single, his second of the inning, drove in another run and the Red Sox were not retired until they made four runs off Oliver, who then pitched the remainder of the game.

The Sox batted around again in the sixth when they added five more runs, while the A's, doing a little stickwork on their own account, got to Rhodes in the seventh and also scored five runs. Andrews finished up in the box for the Sox.

Boston made 16 hits to 14 for the visitors to win their eleventh game of the year from Philadelphia, thus assuring them at least of an even break as the Athletics have won eight and there remain only three to play.

Phillies Beat Giants, 2-1, in Series Final

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—Five-hit pitching by "Fidgety Phil" Collins, coupled with a pair of home runs by Don Hurst, gave the Phillies a 2-to-1 decision over the Giants in the series final today. The victory broke a four-game string of defeats, which included a pair of shutouts by the Giants.

Perry Plays Doubles In Newport Tourney

Newport, R. I., Aug. 13 (AP).—Ellsworth Vines and most of the other leading American players will resume serious action tomorrow in the opening round of the Newport Casino tennis tournament which, as usual, will be the last tuning-up affair before the national championships.

Vines, who has not played singles since he collapsed in the Davis Cup interzone finals with England, was top-seeded in the draw that comprised 82 players. Frederick J. Perry, the hero of the British Davis Cup victory, announced today he would limit his Newport competition to doubles play with F. H. D Wilde as preparation for next week's championship team play at Brookline.

Wood Defeats Sutter for Net Title

New Yorker Is Master Throughout to Win, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—A new Eastern grass courts champion was crowned today as Sidney B. Wood, jr., of New York, famous international star and fourth ranked in the country, defeated the defending title holder, Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4, 6—4.

Wood, who had displayed marvelous tennis in advancing to the final round, was in his 1931 form and completely outplayed Sutter in every department.

Misses Easy Net Shots.

Starting with his same cannonball service and powerful backhand that thrilled the gallery all week, Wood took advantage from the start. Sutter began to wilt early before the blonde New Yorker's terrific pace, and his game broke completely. Time and again the third-ranking Southerner missed his easy net shots or drove the ball out of bounds or into the net.

Sutter failed to display his easy-stroking, consistent style and fell before Wood's well-placed backhand smashes and cross-court chops.

At times Wood advanced to the net and caught the former intercollegiate champion from Tulane out of position. Frequent backhand duels featured the match, with both players sending the ball well to the corners and back court, but Sutter could not compare with Wood even in this department.

The scores of the last two sets show Sutter close to Wood, but in reality it wasn't an even match at all. Sutter scored mostly on Wood's errors, which seemed to come bunched together. Wood was steady on the serve, and while his service was not quite so severe as earlier in the tourney, evidently the result of the terrific heat, Wood nevertheless, made several aces.

Women to Open Net Play Today

New York, Aug. 13 (AP).—A battle such as she hasn't known since reaching the pinnacle of women's tennis in 1923 looms ahead of Helen Wills Moody this week as she seeks her eighth national singles championship at Forest Hills.

To equal the record for conquests set by Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, America's queen of the courts not only must vanquish the stars of the British Wightman Cup squad, and the American contenders headed by Helen Jacobs, defending champion, but she must nurse along the weakened back condition that kept her out of the international series with Great Britain.

Mrs. Moody starts play against Dr. Esther Bartosh, of Los Angeles, in the first round tomorrow. Other featured pairings are Miss Nuthall against Jane Sharp, Miss Heeley against Norma Taubele, Miss Jacobs against Eunice Dean, and Miss Babcock against Virginia Cross.

Trenton Nine Winner.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 13 (AP).—The Trenton Schroths successfully defended their championship of Region 11 in the American Legion Junior Baseball tournament by trouncing the Johnson City, N. Y. team 7—2, before 4,000 fans here today.

Dodgers Rout Braves, 11-0, After 6-2 Loss

Brooklyn, Aug. 13 (AP).—The Boston Braves came from behind to beat Ray Benge and the Dodgers, 6 to 2, in the first game of a doubleheader today, but an angry Brooklyn club rose up and exacted revenge in the second game by slamming out an 11-to-0 victory.

An error by Joe Stripp started Boston's decisive three-run rally in the sixth inning of the opener and gave Tom Zachary the decision, although he was removed for a pinch hitter in that frame.

Cards Nip Reds Twice; Climb Into Fourth Place

St. Louis, Aug. 13 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals pounced onto five errors by the Cincinnati Reds to win both ends of a double-header here today, 3 to 2 and 4 to 3.

The Red Birds climbed into fourth place and reduced the distance between themselves and the league-leading Giants to six and a half games.

St. Louis virtually won the first game on errors by Morrissey and Bottomley.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 13.

THE American League's vital statistics in this evening's editions of tomorrow's papers enable your correspondent to draw a few conclusions that may or may not be enlightening.

No sooner do I hear the news of the Nats' 4-3 victory over the Yanks in Griffith Stadium this afternoon than I grab the papers and with a bit of rapid calculation bring to light the following ifs:

If the Nats win only half of their remaining 46 games in the pennant race the Yankees must win 29 of their remaining 47 to gain a tie. If Washington in its remaining 46 games continues to play at its present .644 gait, the Yankees must win 34 of their remaining games, or play at .721 pace, which would call for them to win 34 and lose 13 to gain a tie.

May Take Slump, Spurt.

A 5½-game lead with more than two-thirds of a season already having run its course is almost prohibitive and the Nats at this writing have a strangle hold on the pennant barring a sensational slump on their part or equally sensational spurt by the Yankees. It may take them both combined to wipe out the Nats' lead if the Yanks do not bestir themselves in a hurry.

There is nothing synthetic about the Nats' lead. They have a 5-game advantage over the Yanks in the lost column, which at this stage of the race looms far more important than the won column. A deficit in the won column can be easily wiped out by a trailing team that engineers a winning streak, but those games in the lost column are lost beyond recall, with no chance to play them over.

To Be Decided in West.

The 1933 pennant will be decided in the West, that's certain. Both the Nats and the Yanks trekked westward after the game today for a tour of every city in the hinterland, sector, and that augurs well for Joe Cronin and his merry men.

Time was when Washington fans and Washington teams shuddered at the thought of a Western tour where the Nats' pennant hopes were invariably wrecked, particularly in St. Louis, which long has been known as the graveyard of Washington's flag ambitions.

But Cronin's club of 1933 has completed dissipated the bogy man of the West. The major portion of the Nats' success this season has been carved on Western diamonds and there is added testimony that the Nats are a great road club by their successful sallies into Philadelphia, New York and Boston this season.

More Strongly Fortified.

The recent failures of the Yankees in the East will not help them in the West, what with the Nats, the A's and the Red Sox having pointed out to the Western clubs that the New York team is no longer invincible. The Nats are hieing Westward more strongly fortified than at any other time this season, with Monte Weaver again in fine fettle and prepared to lend a mighty hand in the stretch rush of 46 games.

Marlboro Is Preparing for Return of Racing to This Section on August 29

Welter Again Appointed Starter

Dirt Hauled From Bowie to Bank Turns at Near-by Half-Mile Track.

Stationary Gates Overhauled; Schooling to Open This Week.

MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 13 (Spl.).—The Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association will usher in the second lap of Maryland's fall racing season on August 29. Yesterday the racing group announced the appointment of Edward S. Welter, of Baltimore, as starter.

Welter has served with success in past meetings, and his reappointment is a step in the right direction. He will send the fields away during the Cumberland meeting, which opens the fall season, and then come here accompanied by his ground crew, which consists of Bob Frend, Jay Ally and Bill Schamerhorn.

Stationary stall gates will be used during the approaching meeting. They are located on the outside of the racing strip and at the head of the various chutes. These gates are being overhauled by Superintendent Dick Pending and will be ready for horsemen to school their thoroughbreds out of them this week.

Big Demand for Stalls.

There is a big demand for stalls. Many of the horsemen now racing in New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Hampshire and Canada will ship here.

Race Secretary John P. Turner, who spent the summer in Canada serving at various tracks, sends word that at least 150 horses will be shipped from the Dominion for racing here.

Despite the extreme heat, which prevailed in this State all summer, Pending still found time to make many worth-while improvements to this course.

Many cart loads of soil have been hauled from the Bowie plant, located 6 miles from here. This soil has been used to put new life into the half-mile racing strip. In addition, some has been used to bank the turns so that fields can go into them at top speed in safety.

Workmen Busy at Track.

Pending's crew of workmen are now busy painting the grand stand, administration and other buildings on the grounds and will have the work completed within the next week.

Horsemen seeking stalls can address Superintendent Pending here or write Baltimore Life Building, Charles and Saratoga streets, Baltimore, Md.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

ONE of the strangest cases of individual eccentricity was that of M. Mezeray, secretary of the French Academy, who, for some strange reason, always worked and read by candlelight—even though the sun was shinging brightly. It appeared to be of little difference to him, in fact, whether the sun was shining or not—whether it was daytime or night—for always there was a lighted candle before him.

He even carried the candle with him in broad daylight, greeting his friends at the door at noontime with it. Why, is just another unexplained thing; perhaps M. Mezeray himself could not have explained it.

Twelve consecutive strikes in a single game constitutes a perfect 300 score in bowling—that is to say, the bowler must knock down all 10 pins 12 times in a row. Once in a while a bowler accomplishes this feat—but Ollie Craven scored two perfect games in a five-game match on March 3, this year, in Flint, Mich. On top of that Craven made ten successive strikes in another of the five games, but missed the nine pin in the eleventh frame.

17-Inning Fray Annexed by Detroit

Vic Sorrell Goes Route as Greenberg Scores to Beat Chisox, 6-5.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13 (AP).—Allowing only three hits in the last nine innings, Vic Sorrell pitched Detroit to a 17-inning, 6-to-5, victory over the White Sox today to give the Tigers their only triumph in the four-game series.

Three times in the first eight innings the Chicagoans forged into the lead, only to have Hank Greenberg, big Detroit first-sacker, tie the score at five-all in the ninth by scoring Jonathan Stone from first with his third double. Ted Lyons, who had replaced Walter Miller at the start of the ninth, then held Sorrell on even terms until the seventeenth, when Greenberg singled with one out and scored the winning run on Frank Doljack's hard-hit triple to center.

About 8,000 fans saw the game, which lasted 3 hours 49 minutes.

Garibaldi to Meet Zaharias Thursday

Likely Will Get Another Chance at Londos if He Defeats Foe.

Looming once more as a major figure in the rassle world as a result of recent developments, haughty Gino Garibaldi again bids for favor at Griffith Stadium Thursday night. His bout with George Zaharias was originally scheduled for last week, but rain intervened.

Having previously scored a fall over Jimmy Londos in a two-out-of-three affair, in Montreal, Garibaldi further boosted his stock last week, working to a spectacular draw with powerful Dick Shikat.

Should Garibaldi decisively dispose of big George, there is little question but what he will be launched upon another Londos build-up.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Hawthorne, August 13.

F-I-V-E W-I-N-N-E-R-S! And I don't mean perhaps. That's the dish Mrs. Bennings' lovely youth handed out yesterday to the common enemy (the bookie). Yes, I mean five winners. Here's the line-up: Postscript, Volta Maid, Miss Melody, Village Vamp and Beaver. Like my old friend Longshot Reilly says on the race trains, "No humbug about it. Don't tell no lies about it." May the going over we're giving them continue. Mike tried to drag me to the fair tonight, but I went deep into the books. If your money feels like it wants to go to work tomorrow, try these. BILL.

First race—Kissie ran a nice race recently behind Even Play and seems to have an edge on anything this field of maidens offers. Billy Pat has a promising race to his credit and may be the second one to the wire. Why Not is well liked by the clockers although his lone race was dull.

Second race — Doris Jean was scratched yesterday to await this and it looks like two in a row for the daughter of Westy Hogan. Picks up only 3 pounds. It's just possible tomorrow may be the day for Portmanteau. Drops 8 pounds Polly's Folly is much better than that last, I'm warning you.

Third race—Don Tasker couldn't match speed with that field in his last out and was eased up after losing the lead. Tomorrow he meets some of the lesser lights hereabouts and should keep right on. Catherine Fox's handlers will have a lot to explaining to do if she takes this after that bad Latonia race. Ed Lark to take care of the others.

Fourth race—Bitty Bit was closing fast in that last race and figures to take the measure of these. Mumsie and Jens Son are the ones to fear.

Fifth race—Looks like three in a row for Broad Meadows. Westrope will get the mount and you know the rest. Lemon Hills was shipped from Tanforan for a reason. Has a race under the belt now and that effort behind Gallant Sir out West makes him a threat. Mountain Elk for the show.

Sixth race—Dusky Devil and Westrope to take care of this field. Royal Blunder is a consistent sort and should be second ahead of my old friend, Unencumbered. Can't see the last named at a short price.

Seventh race—I'm going to try to beat Westrope here. The riding ace will be aboard Chokoloskee from all appearances. I like Annimessie. Understand he is being greased and oiled tonight for a fast race. Mad Career for the show.

Eighth race—Uncommon Gold is an honest platter and just missed a purse the last time. This looks like a good spot. Slash ran a dull race in his first out here, but packs a punch and may be dangerous. Beauty Secret to show.

Stantons and Griffiths Tie for Lead by Downing St. Joe's and Heights Nines

Both Teams Have Won 2, Lost None

McGuire, Shapiro and Fisher Are Stars of Victorious Nines.

Barbers Beat Millers; Federals Trample Woodley, 11-1.

STANTON CLEANERS, runners-up for the first-half honors, and Griffith-Blue Coals, Wee Willie Blascoe's choice to win the pennant, tied for the lead of the Capital City League yesterday by defeating St. Joseph's, 7-4, and Congress Heights, 9-8, respectively. Each team has won two games and lost none in the second half pennant chase.

Tony Burruto's Barbers knocked Miller Furniture Co. cold with a 5-3 victory, the second of the series for the first-half champions. The Federal A. C. swamped the Woodley Club, 11 to 1, in another game.

Win in Ninth Inning.

Congress Heights held an 8-3 lead over the Griffs going into the ninth inning when Glascoe's men rose in all their fury and drove Joe Farley from the mound with a savage batting attack that produced six runs and won the ball game. McGuire's single scored the winning run with two out.

A four-run rally in the sixth inning overcame St. Joseph's 2-1 lead and sent the Stantons to the front, never to be headed. Two additional runs in the seventh frame put the decision in moth balls. Cody, Shapiro and Willis Fisher starred for the winners, while "Tots" Long was outstanding for the Saints.

Frank DiNenna and "Smokey" Willner were the batting heroes of Certified Barbers' victory. Carl Bean, the Barbers' starting pitcher, was chased from the mound by the heat and relieved by Ingram in the sixth inning. The winners collected 12 hits off Milburn and Woods.

An attache at one of the embassies had an experience at the ball park yesterday that matches Maxie Rosenberg's . . . he left the stands via the dressing room door . . . and a bunch of fans on the runway mistook him for Ben Chapman, whom he resembles . . . he was booed vociferously . . . and as he left the park, a small boy asked him for an autograph . . . Angelo Bovelli, star full back with St. Mary's last season, has signed with a new professional team . . . the Pittsburgh Pirates . . . and is reported to be the highest-salaried man on the team . . . which reminds us that Walter (Cheesy) Slaird, G. W. tackle last season, has left for the Chicago Fair . . . and will stop at the Pittsburgh training camp of the Chicago Bears on the return trip . . . for a professional football tryout.

Ab Jenkins, famous racing car driver, recently broke all track records on a 10-mile track, at Salt Lake City . . . under A. A. A. timing, he broke every record from 200 to 3,000 miles in a 24-hour grind in his Pierce Arrow . . . Joe Turner has a couple of former college grid stars in training for their debut in the mat game . . . one is a former George Washington U. husky . . . Fox Theater and Chevy Chase Lake orchestras will decide the baseball championship of the Musicians' Union tomorrow morning . . . and there will be no overture preceding the first inning . . . Billy Jones, Congressional golfer, shot his third consecutive score in the 70s yesterday . . . his cards were 74—75—77 . . . Tom Mills, ousted as football coach by Georgetown University last season, has signed with a small Midwestern college . . . Tommy was high in the grid councils of Notre Dame during Rockne's regime when he resigned to accept the Hilltop post . . . now he is starting again . . . at the bottom.

By Dave Herman.

MARTIN F. McCARTHY, Beaver Dam's hope in the National Amateur this year, yesterday teamed with Mrs. G. C. Strong at Beaver Dam to capture top honors in the mixed Scotch foursome tournament. They carded a low gross of 97.

Mrs. D. E. Mattison and C. K. Dunton with 98-25—73, and Mrs. Mack Taylor and John Money, with 100-27—73, tied for first low net prize. Mrs. R. E. Wever and J. T. Strong, with 103-29—74, and Mrs. A. W. Tucker and R. Zuber, with 100-26—74, tied for second prize.

Third prize also resulted in a tie between the duo of Mrs. R. M. Brown and E. R. Strong, with 102-26—75, and Mrs. K. Sonneman and G. C. Strong, with 101-25—76.

In the play-off for the President's Cup, Dr. Leonard LaVine won the championship by defeating B. E. Bentson, 1-up in a spirited match.

Jan Jankowski, Catholic University football star, almost experienced the thrill of scoring a deuce on a par-five-hole yesterday at the sporty Indian Spring Country Club course.

The hole in question is the 525-yard sixteenth, where few eagles have been made, and birdies are precious.

A prodigious hitter off the tee, Jankowski made the hole look simple when he pounded out a 275-yard drive and a brassie second that came to a dead stop approximately one foot from the cup.

Jankowski finished with a 75.

George Diffenbaugh and Mel Shorey won an interesting match from Roger Peacock, District champion, and Dr. Larry Otell, Indian Spring Club champion, yesterday at the Indian Spring course, 4 and 3.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hird, with 92—17—75, carried off first prize in the mixed Scotch foursome at the Manor Club yesterday. Jack Dailey teamed with Mrs. J. W. Harvey, jr., to register 102—22—80 and win second prize.

J. W. Harvey, jr., the gangling golfer who recently switched his allegiance from Indian Spring to Manor, was lured into a golf match at Manor, with silent Al Treder, the home pro, as his partner.

The Harvey-Treder combination mowed down Harry Pitt, club champion, and J. T. McCarthy, 2 and 1, in a hot match. The winners had a best ball of 69, the losers a 70.

Undaunted by his failure to get past the first round of match play in the National P. G. A. at Milwaukee, Al Houghton, the Kenwood professional demon, will leave this evening for Canada to try his fortunes in the famous Canadian Open championship. Houghton will be accompanied by Walter (Red) Cunningham, stocky Burning Tree pro.

By way of tuning up for the National Amateur at Cincinnati, Luther Steward, jr., of Congressional, toured his course in 73, 1 above par, after shooting a great 34 on the incoming nine.

Several projunior golf teams from the District will compete in the tournament to be held this afternoon at the Woodholme Club, Baltimore, under the auspices of the Maryland State Golf Association.

Mrs. David Clark, former Virginia women's champion, now a member of the Army and Navy Country Club, will tour the Chevy Chase course today as the guest of Mrs. Frank R. Keefer. Others who will play are Mrs. J. E. Davis, of Army and Navy, and Mrs. Harrison Brand, of Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Clark, playing from the back tees, recently scored a brilliant 80 at Army and Navy.

Discrimination In Prices Laid To Dairy Here

Antitrust Action May Be Result of Senate Investigation.

The basis for possible prosecution of a large dairy concern on a charge of violating the Clayton antitrust law is expected to be laid by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate milk investigating committee, at hearings to be started tomorrow.

Evidence tending to show price discrimination will be introduced at the hearings before Senators King and McCarran. The Clayton antitrust law forbids price discrimination among customers.

Reveal Some Favored.

"We can show," said Mr. Seal, "that customers of this concern pay 13 cents a quart for as high as five quarts delivered daily. On the other hand customers, purchasing three quarts of milk a day, pay 11 cents a quart, showing that this discount it not a quantity discount."

The prevailing price in the District is 13 cents a quart.

"In fact," Mr. Seal continued, "an official of this dairy admitted to me, in the presence of a witness, that in order to hold a customer they will reduce the price of milk. This, in my opinion, is clearly such price discrimination as to come within the provisions of the antitrust laws."

Auditors Find Evidence.

Auditors placed in the office of this dairy, Mr Seal said, uncovered 48 instances of price reductions to favored customers. These instances were found on only nine of the company's routes.

The hearings will be started at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the offices of the Senate District Committee. Producers will testify tomorrow. Their testimony is expected to show that the dairy farmer does not obtain an unreasonably high price for his product.

Post Model Home Crowds Defy Heat

Scores Are Delighted by Inspection of Nottingham Drive Exhibit.

Return of hot weather has not lessened the crowds of visitors which daily are pleased by inspection of The Washington Post's model home. Yesterday scores of persons were escorted through this outstanding work of residential construction at 4604 Nottingham drive, in Chevy Chase, Md.

This residence, sponsored by The Washington Post, presented by Boss & Phelps, built by A. T. Newbold and furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., will be open for inspection daily until 9 p. m.

To see it, drive out Connecticut avenue to Bradley lane, then west to Wisconsin avenue and south to Nottingham drive, or out Wisconsin avenue to Nottingham drive, the first street south of Bradley lane.

Relief Due Today After Heat Kills 1

Two Other Victims Are Prostrated; Sunday Temperature, 95.

Cooler weather was promised for today by the Weather Bureau to succeed the sticky warmth of yesterday, which claimed one life and caused two heat prostrations.

Gwyn S. Hall, colored, 41, of 1109½ First street northwest, a locomotive fireman, collapsed in the cab of an engine at the Ivy City roundhouse. He was pronounced dead from a heart attack induced by the heat.

Oscar Robinson, 422 Eighth street southwest, and Leonard Smith, 32, of 328 Pleasant court southwest, were given first aid treatment, after collapsing.

A high mark of 95 degrees was reached yesterday at 2:30 p. m., beginning a slow decline at that time. Thousands took to beach, woodland and riverside for relief.

Taxi Man Bludgeoned; Robbers Get Nothing

Air Line Personnel Lines Up for Amy Mollison

Four Holdup Suspects Identified by Victim

A few minutes after Kirby Blackman, of 730 Third street northwest, had been robbed of $3, four colored men were arrested early yesterday by Policeman G. N. Nicholson, of the First Precinct. The robbery occurred at Third and G streets northwest.

The men, identified by Blackman, are Clayton Sweeney, Mose Smith, Griffin Smith and James Mack, all of the northwest section of the city.

Moral Values Found in Bible Are Stressed

Literary Worth Emphasized Also in Visitor's Sermon in Alexandria.

That the Holy Bible is truly a book of books and can not be surpassed for simplicity and conciseness was pointed out by the Rev. Henry B. Lee, of Towson, Md., in his sermon yesterday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Alexandria.

The Rev. Mr. Lee said "the Bible is not merely a book, but rather a library of books."

Contains Only 109 Words.

"In the first chapter of Genesis," he continued, "we have in 864 words a condensed account of the origin and development of the world. No man has yet written as good an account in the same number of words.

"In the same fashion the fundamental moral laws of the human race are contained in the Ten Commandments. We speak of the Constitution of the United States as the most wonderful work ever struck off by the brain of man, and yet the Constitution contains some 4,000 words, exclusive of any amendments. In the Ten Commandments, in 109 words we have the fundamental laws of the race. I defy anybody, however learned, to write as good a code in any number of words.

"In these days it has become fashionable to sneer at those old laws because they are old and to many persons nothing short of a 1933 code will suffice. The repeal of any law of our Constitution requires the working of elaborate governmental machinery, and yet there are those who would repeal the Ten Commandments by simply saying 'I do not believe.'

Simplest of All Codes.

"Hand in hand with our efforts to curb unemployment and conquer the many other evils of our day we must realize that it is vital for us to return to the Ten Commandments, to honor them and accept them for what they are—the simplest code of moral laws existing in the world today."

Topics Announced By Luther League

"Master Pictures of the Master's Face" Will Be Featured.

The convention of the Luther League to be held in Frederick, Md., over Labor Day has been planned especially for the interest and spiritual welfare of young presons.

"Christ Among the Doctors," first of the five "Master Pictures of the Master's Face," will be the subject of a talk by the Rev. Dr. Amos John Travers. The second of the pictures, "Christ in the Garden," will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther Enders, while the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder will speak on "Christ, the Light of the World."

The president of Maryland Synod, Dr. J. Edward Harms, will address the conference on "Christ and the Rich Young Ruler."

Service Band Concerts Are to Start Tonight

The Navy Band, under direction of Lieut. Charles Benter, tonight will open a series of concerts by service bands, which will be given daily throughout the week on the Capitol plaza.

Parking and seating facilities have been arranged to accommodate the large crowds which are expected at these concerts which will start at 7:30 p. m.

Thief, Hunting Food, Rewarded by Cool $75

A hungry thief was surprised when he opened an ice box at the home of Mrs. Louise A. Dellwig, 1913 Thirty-seventh street northwest, yesterday and found $75. Police are checking nearby restaurants.

Speed of Plane Crews Intrigues Amy Mollison

British Aviatrix Pauses Here on Way South; Back Tomorrow.

Not the speed of America's merchant airships, but the speed of the ground crews as they loaded and unloaded the plane in which she traveled, was the feature of Amy Mollison's trip yesterday from New York to Washington which impressed her most.

"Our ships leaving London airport are as fast as yours," Mrs. Mollison, the former Amy Johnson, noted English flier, stated as she arrived in the Capital on her way to Atlanta. "It's the speed the young men who manage things at your various airports which is breath-taking. I've never seen anybody work as fast as the young dispatchers and clerks."

At each stop Mrs. Mollison watched the unloading and loading of mail, express and baggage into the Condor of the Eastern Transport Line, in which she was traveling. She noted particularly and was intrigued by the big revolvers which the mail clerk and the colored mail truck driver wore strapped to their waists.

Mrs. Mollison will return to Washington tomorrow in time for an informal reception at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society, which will be given by John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the society, for her and her companion, Miss Elvy Kalep, Esthonia's first commercial pilot, who is in America to plan a distance flight. Officials of the British and Esthonian Legations will be invited to meet the two fliers.

Mrs. Mollinson, although accompanied by her nurse, shows no effects of the crash which ended the flight of her husband and herself when their plane nosed over into a marsh at Bridgeport, Conn., 60 miles from New York, goal of their recent attempted nonstop flight from England.

Senator's Dog, Mitten, Vanishes From Home

"Mitten, Mitten, where's Mitten?" This cry echoed through the household of Senator Porter H. Dale, of Vermont, last night. Mitten, prize Boston bulldog and pet of the Vermont senator, was missing. The dog disappeared just before dusk yesterday.

Senator and Mrs. Dale are away, but are expected to return shortly. Members of the household have offered a reward for Mitten's return. They fear, however, he may have been stolen. The Dale home is at 4331 Blagden avenue northwest.

Show Window Thieves Flee Without Plunder

Police are searching for two youths who early yesterday attempted to enter a drug store at Fourteenth and P streets northwest by breaking a show window. They fled without any loot, frightened by a pedestrian.

Girl, 4, Dies of Auto Injuries; Driver Held

A 4-year-old colored girl, Alle Faircloth, of 1635 Thirteenth street northwest, died yesterday at Freedmen's Hospital from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile Saturday night at Thirteenth and Q streets northwest.

Herman P. Jones, 25, of 121 Twelfth street southeast, driver of the car, was arrested by Policemen J. R. Wallace and G. W. Absher, of the Second Precinct, and held on a charge of reckless driving.

Woman Is Tied And Gagged as Thief Gets $7

Polite Gunman Also Robs Roomer; $80 Is Missed in House Search.

A bold intruder, who enforced his demands at the point of a pistol, last night walked into the home of Miss Marie Benson, 629 New Jersey avenue northwest, gagged her, tied her securely to a chair, bound a roomer to a radiator and made his escape with $7.50.

The intruder first encountered Vittorio Rinaldi, 48, a boarder, who was preparing a meal in the kitchen. On threat of death, Rinaldi said, he was ordered to surrender his money. After searching his pockets and finding nothing, Rinaldi declared, the man forced him to a second-floor room and there tied his hands with a belt and fastened them to a radiator.

Meanwhile, Miss Benson heard the confusion and attempted to leave the house to seek aid. The intruder, however, accosted her in a hallway and demanded she enter the room with Rinaldi. He then placed a gag in her mouth and with a quantity of picture wire tied her in a chair.

Miss Benson told police the man was polite and gentle. When she complained the gag was too tight, she said the intruder loosened a cord and asked, "Is that better?"

While his two prisoners remained helpless, the man instituted a systematic search of the house. He found the money in a bureau drawer, pocketed it and fled. Miss Benson said he overlooked $80 in her pocket book secreted in another drawer.

Street Singer Held As Robbers' Decoy

Third Precinct police yesterday questioned 11-year-old Philip Arnold, 1135 Tenth street northwest, known as "the street singer," and three of his young friends in connection with a series of thefts from apartment houses. The boys were sent to Receiving Home for action by Juvenile Court.

Young Arnold is a familiar figure in Washington during the summer, when he entertains apartment house dwellers with popular solos sung in a lusty tenor. Police have been investigating a theory that a crowd of six boys has been using Arnold as a decoy to gain access to apartments.

Christ Rebuked Wine Drinking, Dr. Chase Says

Asserts Beverage Made at Wedding Feast Was Grape Juice.

"We have not sufficiently emphasized the fact that Jesus, when dying upon the cross, refused to drink intoxicating wine, as showing that He was a total abstainer," declared Dr. William Sheafe Chase, speaking yesterday at the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church South.

"The Jews or Roman Catholic Christians who scoff at those who advocate total abstinence as inconsistent with the principle of personal liberty, and assert that no one has the right to interfere with what a person shall eat or drink, forget the importance placed upon obeying the dietary laws of the Jewish religion and the fasting laws of the Roman Church, concerning meat on Fridays and in Lent. We grow stronger by self-discipline," Dr. Chase said.

New Bible Interpretation.

Dr. Chase continued in part:

"We trust that none will be afraid to accept the truth about Jesus' attitude toward intoxicating drinks, because it involves a new interpretation of the Holy Book. The old Book should be ever new for us in moral problems. They were mistaken about Jesus' attitude toward slavery who urged that He favored it because they could find no condemnation of it by Christ in the New Testament.

"If Gladstone was right when he said, 'The four great scourges of mankind have been drink, war, pestilence and famine, and drink has been more destructive than war, pestilence and famine combined,' then we may be sure that Christ neither said nor did anything which would encourage individuals or nations to support or encourage the drink evil.

"Christ's attitude toward intoxicating drinks should not be estimated upon the interpretation of individual words, but rather in the light of His whole life purpose. It can scarcely be in harmony with the spirit of Christ's life to fail to notice that He was against all kinds of evil.

"Wine Bibber" Charge.

"The early Christians, John the Baptist, St. Paul and Timothy, were Nazarites and, therefore, were total abstainers who had taken a vow not to eat grapes or raisins or grape juice. Jesus broke away from the extreme self denial of the Nazarites. He made water into grape juice, which the wedding guests pronounced to be better than the grape juice furnished early in the wedding feats. For that reason, extremists accused Him of being a 'wine bibber.' His enemies pressed the charge.

"A careful study shows that the word translated 'wine,' in the Bible, is used in two different senses. It sometimes refers to win which is intoxicating, and sometimes to either raisin wine or unfermented grape juice, as the word bread is sometimes leavened bread and sometimes unleavened bread. The meaning in each case depends on the context.

"As the Lord, every year, makes grape juice in the vine, for the nourishment and the refreshment of men, so, in one instant, He made grape juice in the water jars, to show forth His Love and His power. To have hastened the rotting and decay of the liquid, and made intoxicating wine, was impossible for Him who was the Bread and Life of the World."

Catholic Vote Big Fellowship Fund

Daughters of Isabella Will Train Members for Social Work.

A living monument in the form of fellowships to prepare their members for work of social reconstruction has been substituted for the contemplated statue to their patron by the Daughters of Isabella, who are assembled in Montreal for their International Biennial Convention, it was announced yesterday.

A fund of $100,000 to establish a Queen Isabella Foundation in the National Catholic School of Social Service at Washington was voted unanimously.

The fund will be raised by per capita tax on members of the organization. The interest on the fund will be applied to fellowships to be awarded on a basis of competetive examinations.

Rudy, Pioneer Esperantist, Lives to See 10,000 in U. S.

Recalls in Soldiers' Home His Career as Fighter, Professor, Lecturer.

Three thousand Esperantists, representing 30 countries, packed the convention chamber when Dr. Abraham Rudy rose to speak. The place was Antwerp, Belgium, the year 1911.

Designated by the governor to represent North Carolina at the world meeting, the diminutive former soldier was the only American at the annual congress of leaders in the movement to establish Esperanto, the international language. He had been allowed five minutes to speak.

When his time was up and he made to leave the platform, the delegates demanded he continue his remarks, tongued fluently in the hybrid idiom which is Esperanto. With the permission of the chairman, he obeyed and the talk stretched into a half hour.

Dean of U. S. Esperantists.

Seated in his dormitory at the Soldiers' Home Dr. Rudy now recalls a few highlights in a career as college professor, soldier in the Spanish-American war, lecturer on religion and languages and World War interpreter.

At 68, he claims to be the oldest Esperantist in the United States, but says he is more interested in promoting an interdenominational religion. Something akin in purpose to Esperanto, which doesn't aim to supplant existing languages but to enable peoples of all nations to reach common ground more easily.

"Is Esperanto making headway?" he was asked.

"There are about five or six millions over the world using the language," he replied. "Japan is most advanced, and the United States has lagged behind all others."

10,000 Now in This Country.

In 1902 Dr. Rudy, who holds a Ph. D. from New York University among other degrees, was listed as the only Esperantist in this country. Now there are about 10,000, he estimates.

Forty years ago he read his first pamphlet on Esperanto. The newfangled language had been invented in 1887 by Dr. Zamenhof. Dr. Rudy since has published numerous pamphlets and brochures on the subject.

He can translate 20 languages, speak 8 fluently and think in 4 or 5. When free Esperanto classes were organized last Monday night at the Northeast Library, Maryland avenue and Seventh street, Dr. Rudy was on hand to recite a poem by Dr. Zamenhof and otherwise lend a hand.

"It's the young people who are going to do big things with Esperanto," he said.

Kellogg-Briand Pact Date to Be Observed

Plans for a Nation-wide observance of the fifth anniversary of the signing of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact August 27 were announced yesterday by Miss Mabel Vernon, disarmament campaign director of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Main observance of the anniversary will be at the Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago. Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, one of the signers of the pact, will be guest of honor.

Pride Hurt

Theft Suspect Jogs Memory of Victims Failing to Identify Him.

Edward Diggs, debonair colored thief who has confessed to more than 60 purse snatchings, stands a good chance to win Washington's most obliging thief prize.

During a recent line-up at police headquarters Diggs was being viewed by almost a hundred victims. Several of them shook their heads and said, "no, he is not the one."

Diggs became quite indignant and corrected their faulty memory by telling them where and when they were robbed and the exact amount he took.

"My, my," the victims said, slightly bewildered.

Fireman, Wife Fight Back as 4 Attack Them

H. Z. Kerlin Seriously Hurt as Clubs, Bottles Fly; 2 Autoists Jailed.

A terrific hand-to-hand encounter, with a District fireman and his wife pitting their efforts against the attack of four men armed with clubs and bottles, resulted early yesterday in the arrest of two men by Prince Georges County (Md.) authorities, after the fireman and his wife were felled and beaten.

A few minutes before the battle Private Houston Z. Kerlin, attached to No. 17 Engine Company, and his wife were driving in their automobile along the Baltimore Boulevard toward Washington. Near Brentwood their machine was sideswiped by another car and sent careening from the highway, Kerlin said.

The other car, he reported, was speeding toward Baltimore. He managed to back his machine onto the roadway and started in pursuit. He found the car parked in a nearby filling station, Kerlin said, and drew alongside.

Heated Words Exchanged.

Kerlin told police he asked the driver if it was his machine that forced him from the road. Hardly had he spoken, the fireman said, when the driver and three companions jumped from the car, and after a few heated words, struck him in the mouth

The five men battled for several minutes until Kerlin was felled by the oil bottle. Meanwhile, Mrs. Kerlin attempted to reach her husband's side and was roughly handled by one of the men, who struck at her with a chair, she said.

As the fight continued, Mrs. Kerlin ran to a telephone in the station and summoned Prince Georges County police. Officer Albert Anderson responded and arrested two men. The other two fled before his arrival.

Taken to Hospital.

The fireman apparently did not realize he was seriously injured and drove the machine to his home, 1106 Allison street northwest. However, he became worse and was taken to Emergency Hospital by the fire rescue squad. He suffered serious head injuries and severe lacerations. Mrs. Kerlin received a wrenched neck.

Anderson said the driver of the other machine gave his name as Robert W. Stanner, of Brentwood. He was charged with driving while drunk and disorderly conduct. Police said the second man was booked as William Caldwell. His address is not known. He was charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Both are in jail at Hyattsville.
